WILLARD NAMED NEW PRESIDENT OF U. OF ILLINOIS

Engineer Dean Will Succeed Chase.

BY TOM MORROW.

Arthur Cutts Willard, acting dean of the college of engineering, was elected president of the University of Illinois by unanimous vote of the board of trustees last night at the Blackstone hotel. Reached by telephone at his home in Urbana, Dean Willard accepted the position and will take office July 1.

The election was made necessary by the resignation last July of President Harry Woodburn Chase to become chancellor of New York university. Dean Willard, who is 55 years old, will succeed Dean Arthur Daniels of the graduate school, who has served as acting president since the resignation of President Chase.

Famed as Ventilating Engineer.

President Elect Willard, who will be the seventh person to hold the position, is internationally known in the field of heating and ventilation. He has been consultant on ventilation for the Holland vehicular tunnel under the Hudson river and served as consultant on the proposed Chicago subway in 1930.

A graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Dean Willard joined the faculty of the University of Illinois in 1913 as assistant professor in the department of mechanical engineering. Four years later he was made a full professor, and in 1920 was named head of the department of mechanical engineering, and last fall assumed the duties of acting dean of the college of engineering.

He was consulting engineer for the national army encampments in the summer of 1917 and also for the bureau of mines. He served as consultant on ventilation to the chemical war service in 1926, and as consultant to the United States public health service in 1927.

Williams Heads Board.

With L. A. Harding he is the author of "Heating and Ventilation," "Power Plants and Refrigeration," and numerous pamphlets and magazine articles. He is a member of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, American Society of Mechanical Engineers, Sigma Xi, Tau Beta Pi, Phi Kappa Sigma, Pi Tau Sigma, Sigma Tau and Triangle.

The election of Dean Willard came after the board had named Walter W Williams of Benton president of that body to succeed Edward E. Barrett of Chicago, who has held the position for two years. Harrison E. Cunningham was reelected secretary and Lloyd Morey was reelected controler.

Members of the board pointed to the election of Dean Willard, who never has been active in politics, as the answer to rumors that partisan politics might influence the election. Mr. Williams, new president of the board, termed the "rumors wholly unwarranted."

Four Leading Candidates.

The board committee, which has considered 89 candidates during a year of work, made the decision to select the new president from the ranks of the faculty several months ago. Dean Willard, Sveinbjorn Johnson, university counsel and professor of law, Dean Albert J. Harno of the college of law, and Dean Charles Manfred Thompson of the college of commerce, were considered the leading candidates.

When the committee reported to the board at the meeting yesterday it was disclosed that the field had been narrowed to Willard and Johnson. It was reported that the board voted by a majority for Dean Willard on the first ballot and, after some discussion, made the vote unanimous.

The rumor that partisan politics had crept into the board consideration was brought forward last week. It was pointed out that the regular members of the board included five Democrats and four Republicans. Johnson, once justice of the Supreme court in North Dakota, had been prominent in the Democratic party.

Blair Attends Meeting.

The board was augmented yesterday by one of the two ex officio members. Francis G. Blair, state superintendent of public instruction, brought the total votes for the new president to ten. Gov. Horner, the other ex officio member of the board, was not present.

Month's Pay for Teachers Expected Soon

A definite movement is on foot to obtain a month's pay in cash for the Chicago teachers and other school employés before the end of March, it was learned yesterday. The loop bankers and the school trustees are expected to hold a meeting and discuss pay plans before the week is out.

The pay day hinges on the success of a sale of more than $3,000,000 worth of 1933 educational fund tax anticipation warants to the banks. The school board has approximately $600,000 in cash on hand. Sale of the warants coupled with the cash would provide the necessary funds for the pay roll.

Pay For May Last Year.

The compensation would be for the month of May, 1933. Back pay rolls of the school board total $28,500,000 up to March 1 of this year.

The 1933 warants will be available for offering to the banks, it was said, because of the recent enactment of the school board's "pegged levy" bill by the third special session of the legislature. This bill pegged the 1933 educational fund levy at $43,000,000, thus raising the borrowing power of the board.

Before the passage of the levy bill the school board had issued $30,000,000 worth of 1933 warants. This amount represented the legal limit of 75 per cent of the former levy of $40,000,000. The new legislation increases the borrowing power by $3,000,000.

No More Pay Cuts.

Future pay days through the sale of warants will depend on the 1934 borrowing power, but this cannot be tapped until the passage of the school budget. This action will come before the end of March, under the school law. The 1934 educational fund levy is pegged at $43,000,000 by the new legislation.

James B. McCahey, president of the school board, declared yesterday there would be no further pay cuts for teachers or other employes in the 1934 school budget. The basic salaries of all school employés were reduced 15 per cent in 1933. This will still hold, McCahey said, and in addition the school term will extend the statutory nine month limit, as it did in 1933, instead of ten months as in previous years.

Payment of city employés for the first two weeks in January was begun yesterday. The money for the pay roll, approximately $1,900,000, was raised through the collection of taxes and miscellaneous license fees.

PRIEST BANS GIRL'S LOW NECK DRESS; ONE SHOT IN ENSUING RIOT

SAN LUIS, Argentina, March 13.—(AP)—Civil and religious authorities sought today to smooth out a conflict which began over a low neck dress and ended in a gun fight Sunday.

The Rev. Juan Guerrera told Señorita Elida Dacunda to leave mass when he deemed her apparel was immodest. The indignant señorita summoned her father, who organized a massmeeting, which telegraphed a protest to the provincial governor.

The priest emerged from the church, accompanied by members of his congregation. Firing broke out. The señorita's adherents and the priest's adherents exchanged 200 shots, scarring the façades of the church and the municipal building. One person was wounded before police restored order.

TESTS SHOW 25% OF CHEAP WHISKY IS BATHTUB TYPE

Twenty-five per cent of the cheap whisky being sold in Chicago is of the bathtub variety, according to a report made to Mayor Kelly yesterday by the city board of health.

Under the mayor's orders policemen took samples of the low priced liquor being offered in many saloons. Twenty-four samples were analyzed. Six were found to consist of a mixture of alcohol, coloring, and flavoring.

Upon receipt of the report Mayor Kelly ordered Police Commissioner Allman to trace the sales and recommend the revocation of the licenses of the vendors. He also is considering an investigation to find the manufacturers of the illicit mixtures with a view to asking the state liquor control commission to cancel their licenses from the state.

Woman Killed in Home; Apparently Electrocuted

Mrs. Mathilda Levender, 68 years old, was found dead last night in the living room of her home at 816 Cornelia avenue. The circumstances indicated she had been accidentally electrocuted. There was a wet cloth in one of Mrs. Levender's hands, and it was believed she touched a floor lamp and received a fatal shock.

Prohibit Advertising of Liquor Price in Minnesota

St. Paul, Minn., March 13.—(AP)—David Arundel, state liquor commissioner, today issued an order prohibiting liquor price advertising in Minnesota. He said the order followed complaints that advertising low priced liquors encouraged liquor buying, a view with which he agreed.

Add 291,393 Names to City Voting Lists

Registration returns from all of the wards last night showed that Chicago now has on its poll books the largest number of names in its history. A total of 291,393 voters registered during the day, bringing the total on the poll books to 1,800,658.

The turnout of voters for this intermediate registration, which did not affect voters already correctly registered, was larger than had been forecast. It does not mean, however, that there will be a heavy increase in the number of citizens actually qualified to vote in the primaries of April 10. It is predicted that nearly all of yesterday's gain will be erased during the revision process.

230,000 AUTO WORKERS WILL GET MORE PAY

All Makers Planning Shorter Hours.

Detroit, Mich., March 13.—[Special.]—Upward of 230,000 workers in the automotive industry will receive increased wages and shorter hours by March 31, if plans announced today by Henry Ford and the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce are carried out.

Mr. Ford announced he had restored the $5 a day minimum wage to 47,000 of the 70,000 employed in his plants.

Tonight the directors of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce recommended that their member firms cut the average working week of productive employés from forty to thirty-six hours, with compensating wage increases. At present, the announcement said, 183,000 persons are employed by member firms.

Costs Ford 6 Millions.

It was unofficially estimated that Mr. Ford's action would increase his pay roll $6,000,000 annually.

The directors of the automobile chamber based its estimates of the number of men affected, the statement said, on the Feb. 15 pay rolls, but it was said this figure has been materially increased since then.

The action came on the eve of a meeting of the national labor board in Washington tomorrow to hear representatives of the workers and employers of the Fisher Body company, the Buick Motor company of Flint, Mich., and the Hudson Motor Car company. The workers are asking a 20 per cent increase in wages and a weekly work schedule not to exceed forty hours.

Won't Be Coerced.

In discussing labor conditions, the directors in their statement asserted that their members, "intending to keep the law, do not intend to submit to being coerced extra-legally."

"Labor unrest in the automobile industry has been brought about principally, not by dissatisfaction with wages and working conditions, but by artificial issues that have arisen out of efforts to unionize the plants involved," the statement said.

Mr. Ford, who returned from Florida last week and plunged into a series of conference leading to his announcement today, asserted he was "mighty glad" to be able to make it.

"No one loses anything by raising wages as soon as he is able," the manufacturer said. "It always has paid us. Low wages are the most costly any employer can pay. It is equal to using low grade material; the waste makes them very expensive in the end.

"There is no economy in either cheap labor or cheap material. The hardest thing I ever did and ever had to do was to cut wages. I think we were the last big company to do it. Now I am mighty glad wages are climbing back again.

Headed Back to $6.

"This company is headed back to the $6-a-day minimum as fast as it can," he concluded.

In announcing the pay rise, executives of the Ford company warned workers against rushing to Detroit for work. They said the automobile industry does not need additional employés at present.

The blanket wage increase was the first for Ford workers since the $6 a day rate which prevailed in December, 1929, was increased to $7 in an effort to combat the depression, then just beginning. The $7 rate was maintained for twenty-two months before curtailments became necessary.

Most of those affected by today's announcement have been receiving $4 and $4.40 a day. Of the 47,000 affected, 32,681 are employed in the Detroit area and the rest at branches throughout the United States. Small increases were granted last month to 17,000 men, it was said.

Henry Ford's first announcement of a $5 a day minimum wage was made in 1914. Last fall, when he was engaged in vigorous controversy with Gen Johnson and the NRA, Mr. Ford said that the minimum in his plants then was 50 cents an hour and that the company would have to "live down" to the code minimum of 42 cents if it signed.

Storm Lashes Berengaria; 12 Passengers Injured

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 13. — The liner Berengaria docked at Southampton tonight, following a three day battle with one of the worst storms it has encountered on the Atlantic in many years. Sunday night about twelve passengers received injuries, much of the ship's furniture was damaged, and crockery was smashed. Two heavy safes, which were broken from their bolts, crashed across the purser's office, smashing furnishings.

Simpson Tells of $1,215,000 Sales to Moe

James Simpson and George Ranney, chairman and vice chairman respectively of three leading utility companies formerly headed by Samuel Insull, yesterday issued a statement concerning the companies' sales of scrap to the junk firm owned by the late Moe Rosenberg. The utilities are the Commonwealth Edison company, the Peoples Gas, Light and Coke company, and the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois. The statement was issued in response to charges that Rosenberg paid out large sums to politicians from profits on utility junk deals.

According to the Simpson-Ranney statement, these companies, from 1928 to 1931, while still under Insull's control sold scrap totaling $1,215,582 to Rosenberg's firm. The total scrap sold during these years was $1,847,023. Since the summer of 1932 when the present management took charge of the utility companies, scrap totaling $124,468 has been sold of which Rosenberg's firm received $78,371.

Tells of Investigations.

"Very shortly after that date [the summer of 1932] a general investigation and review was made by this management of purchases and sales of all kinds of merchandise from and to other companies," the statement read, "and in the case of scrap it developed that the Rosenberg Iron and Metal company purchased somewhat less than 70 per cent of the scrap material.

"Investigation further developed that the companies were receiving the market prices for all scrap sold at the time of sale and that the system governing the grades and weights was businesslike and beyond criticism. Therefore, in fairness to the buyers no change was ordered.

"Available information indicates that the sales by the former managements were made at the current market prices for scrap and at proper grades and weights. It would, therefore, appear that the profits derived from resale by the Rosenberg Iron and Metal company were in line with profits derived by any scrap dealer."

More Disclosures Made.

Further details of Rosenberg's testimony to officials in Washington last December, when the 24th ward Democratic leader was attempting to settle his income tax case, were disclosed yesterday. Rosenberg is said to have explained to the federal officials that he was interested in the consolidation traction ordinance of 1930 because he expected to make a million dollars through the building of a subway, and then retire.

Although Rosenberg is said to have told the government officials that he made campaign contributions of $500,000 in 1929 and 1930, placing the money where it would do the most good for the utilities giving him their junk business, many observers were of the opinion that he was merely exercising the type of shrewd foresight which has resulted in the accumulating of some leading American fortunes.

Rosenberg is said to have explained to the federal officials that the building of a subway would necessitate tearing out all the cables of the Illinois Bell Telephone company, and the Commonwealth Edison company, and the lines of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company. Moe expected to get 90 per cent of this business.

Told of Big Job.

"I think it would have happened if the depression hadn't come along that I would have enough to do for a couple of years hauling every day in the week from the cables of the Edison company, the telephone company

POWER OF GANG IS SMASHED BY LAW AND GUNS

Banghart Gets 99 Years in Prison.

Basil [The Owl] Banghart, machine gunner of the Touhy gang, was found guilty last evening by a jury in Judge Walter Steffen's court of kidnaping John Factor, wealthy speculator. His punishment was fixed by the jury at 99 years in the penitentiary, the same penalty that was imposed 19 days ago on three of his confederates in the crime — Roger Touhy, Albert Kator, and Gus Schaefer.

Earlier in the day forces outside the law had disposed of Charles [Ice Wagon] Connors, another Touhyite who had been identified as one of those involved in the Factor abduction. His body, bullet riddled, with his false teeth missing and a penny clutched in one rigid hand, was found beside 107th street a half mile east of Archer avenue.

A Coin of Retribution.

It was the theory of the police that the copper coin had been left by the killers as a sardonic message to indicate that the notoriously stingy Connors had refused to contribute to the defense fund for his erstwhile companions who were convicted.

Such a token—a penny or a nickel—according to gangland tradition, means that the killers are expressing their contempt of the slain. It would be left by the assassins, the police said, only in the event that the man killed had double-crossed his pals, perhaps by giving the authorities information or by cheating in money matters.

With Banghart's conviction and the final exit of Connors, the Touhy gang as a terrorizing force almost ceased to exist. Of the known members of the gang, only five—Tommy Touhy, brother of Roger; Frank [Porky] Dillon, Ludwig Schmidt, Leroy Marschalk, and James McFadden—are still alive and at large. Law enforcers and bullets have accounted for the rest. Some of the five survivors, the police believe, were the executioners of the penurious Ice Wagon. All were being sought last night.

Dillon Last Kidnaper at Large.

Dillon is the last of the actual kidnapers of Factor at large, the police said. All the others are in custody, in prison, or dead. Tommy Touhy, Schmidt, Marschalk, and McFadden, a son of Edward [Father Tom] McFadden who was cleared of the Factor kidnaping charge, never were linked with that crime.

The killing of Connors and the conviction of Banghart also settled the fate of the two men who were identified with the attempt to collect an additional ransom of $50,000 from Factor after the first ransom of $70,000 had been paid and the victim released from 12 days of captivity. The second collection attempt took place near Western Springs where the police laid a trap. Banghart and Connors escaped that time, however, with a dummy package containing $500.

Jury Gives Swift Verdict.

It required only one hour and five minutes for the Banghart jury to reach its verdict. On the first ballot the jurors decided that the defendant was one of those who aided in the seizure of Factor last July 1 outside the Dells roadhouse in Morton Grove.

Three additional votes were taken on the question of punishment. Several jurymen were reported to favor the death penalty or at least a prison term of 199 years. Presumably the argument that Banghart should receive the same penalty Roger Touhy, Kator, and Schaefer, who are already in Joliet penitentiary, won support for the 99 year term on the last ballot.

Banghart Smiles at News.

A smile spread over Banghart's face as his attorney, William Scott Stewart, informed him, before the reading of the verdict, that his punishment was the same as that of the other gangsters.

Factor, who was in court, observed to his police guards that Banghart seemed as cold as he did when he threatened the speculator with death unless his $70,000 ransom was paid.

Attorney Stewart indicated that he would not argue a motion for a new trial. He said he would only make the formal motion to preserve an appeal to the Illinois Supreme court, but had no hope that Judge Steffen would grant him a new trial.

First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley wound up the trial with a stirring plea for the conviction of Banghart. He asked the electric chair or 199 years in the penitentiary.

The prosecutor in his closing argument discussed the arsenal of two machine guns, a rifle, a shotgun, and six revolvers, which was found in possession of Banghart when he was captured in Baltimore.

Piece by piece the prosecutor grabbed up the guns from a table and waved them before the jurors. He demanded that the jury show no scruple in punishing a man who armed himself with such a supply of weapons.

Stewart made a brief closing argument. He declared the case was a frameup on the part of Factor to prevent his extradition to England on a charge of swindling British investors. It was substantially the same unsuccessful plea that Stewart made in behalf of Touhy, Kator, and Schaefer.

Story of Costner's Sister.

Taking of evidence in the trial ended at the morning session. With his usual flair for dramatics Stewart closed the presentation of defense testimony by calling to the witness stand Miss Ella Costner, sister of Isaac Costner, the Tennesseean who was imported to do the sharpshooting for the Touhy gang. Costner was arrested in Baltimore with Banghart. He broke gangland tradition by turning state's evidence and testifying against his pals.

Miss Costner took the stand in an effort to counteract the damaging testimony of her brother against Banghart. She said Costner could not have participated in the Factor kidnaping as he testified because at that time he was in her Smoky river farm resort at Cosby, Tenn. With him, she said, was Banghart.

Miss Costner succeeded in getting herself arrested when she refused to change her testimony. She was taken into custody by state's attorney's detectives.

Costner Denies Her Story.

The evidence in the case was closed when Costner took the witness stand in rebuttal for the prosecution. He denied the truth of the testimony given by his sister. She sat and glared at her brother, but he did not falter in his denial of her story.

While Costner was on the witness stand Attorney Stewart managed to get before the jury through cross-examination some affidavits made by a Tennessee mountain bootlegger, an assistant sheriff and residents of Newport, Tenn., Costner's home town. The affidavits corroborated the testimony given by Miss Costner.

Judge Steffen had previously refused to allow the affidavits in evidence or to allow a continuance of the trial until the makers of the documents could be brought to Chicago. The judge ruled that Stewart had had plenty of time to have the witnesses themselves in court.

KILLING OF CONNORS

The body of Connors, who was 57 years old, had been carefully propped up against a fence post by his killers. The legs were crossed and the hat on his gray hair was at a jaunty angle. Apparently the slayers wanted the body found quickly. It was only 20 feet from 107th street, at the edge of the forest preserve.

John McMahon, a forest preserve foreman, who made the discovery, notified the county highway police at Willow Springs. Examination of the body by Sergt. Frank Donahue of the coroner's office disclosed that Connors had been shot behind the right ear, through the chest and in the left hand. All labels, tags and papers that might have shown identity had been removed from his clothing. There were a few cents and a bunch of keys in the pockets of the slain man's trousers.

Connors' Record in Crime.

Connors had a police record dating back to 1900, when he was sentenced to Pontiac reformatory for burglary. He was arrested several times later for theft, but was not convicted again until 1911, when the authorities in London, England, sent him to jail for vagrancy.

Not caring for the unfriendly English law, Connors returned to the United States after being released from jail. In 1915 he was sentenced to prison in Trenton, N. J., for burglary and larceny, and served two years. In 1919 he was found guilty of a bank robbery in Hopkins, Minn., and was sentenced to 5 to 40 years in Stillwater penitentiary. In 1928 he was paroled on condition that he would leave the state of Minnesota.

Soon thereafter he became a member of the Touhy gang, then rising to prominence in the northwest part of Cook county. He was particularly close to Tommy Touhy.

However, it was the belief of Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for the state's attorney, that Connors separated himself from the destinies of the Touhys after several members of the gang had participated in the robbery of a mail truck at Charlotte, N. C., last December.

"He might have refused to contribute to a defense fund," said the captain, "or hidden out to escape a levy. In either case the other Touhy gang members would have a good reason to kill him."

Costner, taken from the county jail late in the afternoon to view Connors' body in the county morgue, corroborated this theory tentatively, although he said he doubted his old friend in crime had much money.

Costner Explains the Penny.

"Poor old Charley," he said. "That penny under his glove must have been a message. Charley was always careful of his dough and his false teeth. I guess the boys didn't like it when he ducked after the Charlotte job."

Costner remarked that Connors had dyed his mustache since they last met a few months ago in Lexington, Ky., and that he hadn't done a very good job of dyeing.

A few minutes after Costner left the morgue Factor, accompanied by his son, Jerome, and several guards, entered. Factor, after studying the features of the slain man, said he recognized Connors as one of his captors. Jerome became ill and was unable to aid in the identification.

The authorities at Charlotte have asked that they be given custody of Banghart, Costner, Tommy Touhy, Marschalk, Dillon and James McFadden. They also want Mae Blalock and Mrs. Tommy Touhy, who were brought to Chicago after their arrest in Baltimore with Costner and Banghart. Prosecution awaits all of these on the mail robbery charge.

FACTOR CERTAIN GUARDS WILL PROTECT SON, 8

John Factor, wealthy speculator, yesterday said that he held no fear for his son, Alvin, 8 years old, who is under guard in Los Angeles as the result of kidnaping threats. Four picked detectives are guarding the boy at the home of his uncle, Robert Cowan. Two futile attempts have been made to seize the boy. "Naturally I am worried to some extent," Factor said, "and it is a terrible thing that a child must be protected in this manner. The guards know their business, and I am unable to go out to the coast, but I have no real fear of a kidnaping."

Reports from Los Angeles last night said young Factor had been moved to a secret hiding place.

NEW HITCH HALTS DILLINGER QUIZ FOR THIRD TIME

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

Spring sunshine yesterday flooded the Hoosier town of Crown Point and brought some cheer to the faces of harassed officials and citizens who have been gloomy since March 3, when Desperado John Dillinger felt the call of the road and left the local jail for parts unknown.

It seemed too fine a day to delve into the sordid details of the Dillinger prison break and there was another postponement of a special grand jury investigation into the desperado's escape.

Mother Drawn as Grand Juror.

Six grand jurors had first been summoned for Monday. Only four showed up, and the first continuance was ordered until yesterday. Two jurors showed up yesterday, but one was disqualified because he was not a taxpayer. Criminal Court Judge William J. Murray then ordered the three jury commissioners to select another member.

At 2 p. m. yesterday the jury commissioners reported that the name of Mrs. Louise Young, a Crown Point matron, mother of three children, had been drawn as the sixth juror.

Summoned into court, Mrs. Young appeared reluctantly.

"There's no reason why you shouldn't act as a juror in this case, is there?" Judge Murray asked her.

"My mind is pretty well made up," responded Mrs. Young, "I've known Sherif Lillian Holley and Warden Lew Baker of the county jail for a long time."

Demands have been made by Indiana politicians that the woman sherif resign because of negligence of duties in permitting Dillinger to escape. One faction in Crown Point has supported her and another has accused her of laxness in the jail management.

"You're a voter and a taxpayer," Judge Murray told Mrs. Young. "You can serve as a grand juror here."

New Hitch Blocks Quiz.

Mrs. Young was about to be sworn in when a deputy sherif came galloping into court with the breathless information that the three jury commissioners had not all been present, as required by law, when Mrs. Young's name was drawn. It developed that Commissioner George Hockboum was in Chicago and that his wife had acted as jury commissioner in his absence.

"That makes Mrs. Young inadmissible as a grand juror," sighed the judge. "Let the jury commissioners try to get together this evening and draw another name."

Ends Work for Day.

That dispensed with a grand jury investigation for the day. The officials in the case announced, however, that the investigation would undoubtedly go forward today and that they were not wavering in an adamantine resolve to get to the bottom of the affair.

4TH SUSPECT SEIZED, CONFESSES PART IN ADLER KIDNAP PLOT

The arrest and confession of a fourth man in the plot to kidnap E. P. Adler, wealthy Davenport, Ia., publisher, from the Morrison hotel Feb. 21 was announced yesterday by Lieut. Thomas Kelly of State's Attorney Courtney's police detachment.

The prisoner is Edward Kendredge, 40 years old, a Negro employed in a south side theater. His arrest followed the arrest Monday in Racine, Wis., of George Wolf, 26 years old, who confessed his part in the conspiracy after he had been brought to Chicago.

Two men had been arrested previously, Charles W. Mayo, who hanged himself the day after Adler fought off the men who attempted to knock him unconscious in the hotel, and James Lacy, an ex-convict.

Kendredge, Lieut. Kelly said, admitted that he had agreed to act as cook and guard.

STREWL GUILTY IN KIDNAPING OF LIEUT. O'CONNELL

50 Years Likely to Be Sentence Friday.

Albany, N. Y., March 13.—(AP)—Manney Strewl was convicted tonight of the charge of kidnaping Lieut. John J. O'Connell Jr., nephew of the powerful upstate political leaders, last July.

Sentence was deferred until next Friday. Because of his criminal record it is expected Strewl will receive the maximum penalty, fifty years imprisonment.

The jury deliberated only three hours. The first ballot was 11-1 for guilty.

Strewl received the verdict calmly as did his widowed mother who sat between her two other sons, Jacob and Morris.

Victim's Family Absent.

None of the O'Connell family was in the courtroom when the verdict was returned.

Strewl, the go-between in the ransom negotiations, was accused of writing the ransom letters which he purported to receive from the gang.

Hands in pocket, he faced Judge Earl H. Gallup as he answered questions of the clerk regarding his life.

There was no demonstration when the verdict was announced.

Strewl said he was 30, single, and gave his occupation as clerk. He said he had twice before been convicted of law violations, once in 1922 for breaking a federal interstate commerce commission law and in 1929 for impersonating a federal officer. For those offenses he served two terms at Atlanta prison.

Believe Sentence Mandatory.

District Attorney John T. Delaney said there was doubt that the 50 year maximum was mandatory in Strewl's case. It depends, he said, upon whether the federal offences also are offences under New York state law.

"Why don't you go home and rest? It may be a tiresome wait," some one said to Strewl's mother.

"This isn't the first time I've waited for a jury to come in," she said. "I know what it is."

PROSECUTOR OF DILLINGER'S PAL RECEIVES THREAT

Letter Turned Over to U.S. for Investigation.

Lima, O., March 13.—[Special.]—Attorneys continued here today in their attempts to select a jury to try Charles Makley, Dillinger gangster, for the murder of Sherif Jess Sarber last October during a raid on the Allen county jail when John Dillinger was liberated.

A letter threatening the life of County Prosecutor Ernest M. Botkin and Capt. Matt Leach of the Indiana state police was received in the courtroom today. The letter was postmarked Indianapolis and had been mailed there at 3 p. m. yesterday. It was signed with the initials "J. D.," but police refused to disclose details of the contents.

Turned Over to U. S.

Botkin said he considered the letter the work of a crank, but the letter was turned over to postoffice authorities for investigation.

An investigation of clews here and in Chicago indicated there was little basis for the reports that Dillinger was speeding here in an effort to rescue Harry Pierpont, Dillinger aid awaiting a death sentence, and Makley. However, heavy guards remained about the courthouse.

Governor Still Under Guard.

Columbus, O., March 13.—[Special.]—Gov. George White and his daughter, Miss Mary White, were still under guard at the executive mansion today from possible kidnaping by the Dillinger gang although the governor regarded his guards as a laughing matter.

"I don't need a guard," he commented, "although, of course, Mary might. I don't think there's anything to the reports."

TRACE MYSTERY CALL.

Chicago police yesterday visited a north side hotel after Lima, O., police reported that a mysterious telephone call had been made from Leipsic, O., near the home of Harry Pierpont, condemned associate of Dillinger, to a Mrs. Grace Fender at the hotel. An investigation revealed that Mrs. Fender had been called home by the illness of a brother and that the call apparently had no connection with the Dillinger case.

Charles S. Arms Sued for $25,950 Back Alimony

Mrs. Luz C. Arms Douthit of Charlotte, N. C., filed suit yesterday in the Circuit court for $25,950 which she alleges her former husband, Charles S. Arms, 4300 Lake Shore drive, distribution manager for the Rueben H. Donnelley Printing company, owes her in back payments for alimony and support of their son, Charles, 15 years old.

Mason City Gang Uses Customers as Shields.

Mason City, Ia., March 13.—(AP)—Defying more than 50 customers and employés, seven machine gun bandits raided the First National bank here today and escaped with cash estimated by officials at $52,000.

As they fled they lined the running boards of their automobile with bystanders to protect them from possible gunfire of vigilantes and police who had stationed themselves on nearby roofs during the holdup.

The hostages were released after the bandits had gained the city limits.

Forced to Open Vault.

A large crowd that gathered outside the bank during the holdup was held at bay by machine guns stationed at each entrance to the bank. The bandits fired wildly at the crowd and into the air and wounded one bystander, R. H. James, in the leg. James is secretary of the Mason City school board.

The bandits parked their car near the rear door of the bank and, brandishing machine guns, ordered the 31 employés and about 25 customers to raise their hands. They seized persons in the lobby to prevent guards from firing.

While some of the robbers looted the cages, one of them took H. C. Fisher, assistant casher, back to the main vault, forced him to open it and pass out the money.

Sets Off Tear Gas.

Tom Walters, the bank's guard, was in his cage overlooking the bank lobby. He was spotted by the bandits after their entry and a machine gun was trained on the shatterproof glass. It was struck in a dozen places, but no bullet pierced it.

Because the lobby was filled when the bandits entered, it was impossible for Walters to get a fair shot at any of the bandits without imperiling the lives of patrons.

When the bandits entered Wills G. C. Bagley, president, attempted to reach his private office. One of the bandits pursued him and fired through the office door. The bullet grazed Bagley's chest.

When their task was completed the bandits herded all the employés of the institution out the back door, surrounded their car with men and women for protection, and drove calmly away.

The car driven by the bandits was found in a ditch a mile northeast of Hanford, located on a gravel road between Mason City and Rockford, late today. Mason City police said they had a report that two more cars picked up the members of the gang.

SEEK DILLINGER'S PRINTS.

J. W. Wallace of the sherif's office of Mason City, Ia., telegraphed the detective bureau in Chicago asking for a copy of fingerprints of desperado John Dillinger. No explanation was given as to the reason for the request.

WOMAN KILLS SELF IN HOME.

Mrs. Amelia Burbridge, 60 years old, shot and killed herself yesterday in her home at 8139 South Sangamon street. She had recently been under treatment in a sanitarium for a nervous disorder.

BOSTON WOMAN SLAIN; BROKER ESCORT IS HELD

New York, March 13.—[Special.]—A gay tour of Greenwich Village ended tonight in the death of a Brookline, Mass., divorcee and impending charges against her escort, a Wall street broker. The woman was Mrs. Edna Field Leavitt, 36, and prominent socially in Boston and environs. She died of a fractured skull. The man is Arthur W. Morse, member of the firm of Clinch, Morse and company. He was arrested on a charge of felonious assault. After Mrs. Leavitt's death the police said they would rearrest Morse on a more serious charge.

According to the police, Mrs. Leavitt came to New York ten days ago. She went out last night with Morse, whom she had known for years. After a visit to the village, they went to Morse's apartment. Soon neighbors heard screams and called police. They found the woman on a bed fully clothed and unconscious. Morse was lying under a wash basin with his face badly scratched.

IDENTIFY RIVER BODY.

The body of a man found in the north branch of the Chicago river yesterday was identified as that of Anton Verginski, 44 years old, an unemployed laborer living in the municipal shelter at 509 North Union avenue.

WORK TO REBUILD SHATTERED ARMY PRESTIGE IN AIR

Seek Mail Program Flyers Can Follow.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 13.—[Special.]—The cost of the government's tragic air mail blunder, a cost running high in lives, in dollars and in the progress of aviation, was measured here today as Secretary of War Dern took steps to redeem the army's shattered flying prestige.

American skies were still barren of mail planes today as army and postoffice officials continued their struggles to evolve a program of flying which the army pilots could carry out without further sacrifice of lives and army equipment.

At the postoffice department officials asserted the order to renew the flying of the mails was expected momentarily. But at the air corps headquarters officers said there was no telling with accuracy when preparations would be completed and that, when everything was set, sufficient leeway would be given to insure an orderly start.

Industry in Sorry State.

The aviation industry was pictured today as in its sorriest straits since 1924, with the army having failed in its task of carrying the mails; with the commercial air lines forced to cut down operations by an estimated 50 per cent because of the loss of their mail contracts, and with legislation pending in congress which some authorities insist will spell disaster or American aviation if passed.

In the hope of squaring the reputation of the army, at least, Secretary Dern today named a special committee to consider first, the equipping of army planes with modern safety devices, and, second, the necessity for additional training for army flyers.

Told to get Advice.

The war secretary had been sharply enjoined by President Roosevelt to see at once to both these purposes. The President advised Dern to go to the commercial airplane companies for guidance in giving army pilots training in night flying, instrument flying and blind flying.

To this end Mr. Dern today named his committee, and invited into its personnel such flyers as Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Orville Wright and Clarence Chamberlain. Besides these, the committee will consist of Maj. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, deputy chief of staf; Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of air corps; Maj. Gen. George S. Simonds, commandant of the army war college; Maj. Gen. John W. Gulick, chief of coast artillery, and Brig. Gen. C. E. Kilbourne, assistant chief of staff in charge of war plans.

Consider New Instruments.

In his announcement of the naming of the committee, Mr. Dern said they would consider "such flying instruments as are necessary for efficient aviation and night, beacon, and radio controled flights and landings."

With respect to personnel the committee will consider "their training and experience in cross-country flying, in night flying, blind flying and in instrument flying, and their understanding and employment of the instruments referred to above."

One of the most outspoken critics of the President's action in canceling the air mail contracts, who today summed up some of the burdens it has imposed upon the nation and the aviation industry, is Hiram Bingham, former Republican senator from Connecticut, and now president of the National Aeronautics association.

"Lost 10 Years Progress."

"President Roosevelt and his administration, with the help of congress, have turned back the clock of American aviation at least 10 years," Mr. Bingham declared.

The former senator does not blame the army air corps for the failure of the air mail adventure. He declares the President had failed to seek proper advice from the army generals on whether the army was equipped and trained to carry the air mails.

Mr. Bingham demurred at estimating the cost of the training of the ten dead flyers, but finally declared it was a well recognized fact that to train one army flyer adequately costs the government $25,000. If we found ourselves suddenly at war the gap caused by the absence of those ten officers would be infinitely greater.

"The loss of the army's planes might be similarly calculated, but in the bigger sense, the money loss is reckoned most serious in the disruption of a thriving, successful aviation industry, and in the delays and inconvenience brought to all of American commerce by the halting, the curtailment and the undependability of air mail service."

Mr. Bingham was inclined to ascribe the greatest loss to the aviation industry. He pictured the industry 10 years ago, and said it was in a state of collapse after the temporary impetus given it by the world war.

Then Government Helps.

"Then the government, by a wise policy determined under President Coolidge by the so-called Morrow aircraft board, of which I chanced to be a member, began to give aid to the industry.

"Contracts for airplanes were given to the companies under a plan which took into full consideration the value of the industry as a great arm of national defense. Through a wise administration of the new policy American aviation grew until in this day, before the calamities visited upon the industry by the Roosevelt administration, our commercial air force was the greatest in the world, carried more passengers over more miles with greater safety than any other aviation force on earth."

Senator Bingham declared that the competitive system of bidding on airplane contracts, whether for air mail deliveries or for purchases of military planes for the government, was not sound, viewed in the necessities for spurring the industry. He declared the cancelation of the air mail contracts by President Roosevelt to have been a gross blunder.

Asserting emphatically that "there was no fraud in the procurement of those contracts," Senator Bingham added that even if there had been fraud, the approach to the remedy for it taken by Mr. Roosevelt had been wrong.

WILL SAIL TO AID HER SON

Mme. Paul Dubonnet, wife of the French wine maker, famed as the "best dressed woman in the world," will sail from France today to aid her son, who is charged with slaying a ship passenger.

Going to Trial

PARIS, March 13.—(AP)—Dressmakers, milliners, shoemakers, a hairdresser and a manicurist stood in line outside the apartment of Mme. Paul Dubonnet today as she rushed preparations to sail tomorrow for New York, where her son awaits trial for murder.

Mrs. Dubonnet, the wife of a millionaire French distiller, is the former Jean Nash, once celebrated as one of Europe's best dressed women.

Her son, Andrew D. Kirwan, 23, is charged with the murder of Gilliam Sessioms of Seattle aboard the liner President Garfield shortly before it put into New York on Feb. 10. For nearly a month he refused to reveal that he was the son of Jean Nash, by the first of her five marriages.

Speaking for his wife, Dubonnet said: "Under the present circumstances it seems reasonable to understand that my wife cares to make no statement. I am accompanying her to New York tomorrow and our plans upon arrival are indefinite. I am not able to inform you whether my wife will call upon her son or not. Please understand this is exceedingly trying for her. I am doing all in my power to spare her needless worry."

REPORT BOYLE STOCK OFFICES $60,000 SHORT

The blue sky division of the state's attorney's office late yesterday took possession of the offices of the H. A. Boyle & Co., stock brokers, at 39 South La Salle street, following an investigation disclosing an alleged shortage of $60,000 in customers' accounts with the company.

H. A. Boyle, president of the company, was questioned briefly by Assistant State's Attorneys James J. Cherry and Eugene J. O'Connor, and then released in custody of his attorney. He will be questioned further today concerning the alleged shortage.

PRESIDENT SENDS SENATE BIG ARMY PROMOTION LIST

Washington, D. C., March 13.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today sent to the senate a number of promotions in the army, virtually recasting the makeup of this service. He named as major generals Lucius Roy Holbrook and Frank Sherwood Cocheu, now brigadier generals.

At the same time the President nominated Rear Admiral Claude C. Bloch judge advocate general of the navy.

Col. Louis Hermann Bash was made quartermaster general with rank of major general; Col. Upton Birnie Jr., chief of field artillery, rank of major general; Col. William Frederick Hase, chief of coast artillery, major general; Col. Leon Benjamin Kromer, chief of cavalry, major general, and Brig. Gen. William Harvey Tschappat, chief of ordnance, major general.

MERGER OF ALL U. S. AIR SERVICES OVER LAND URGED

Seen as Goal Resulting from Mail Fiasco.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 13.—[Special.]—Unification of administration of all federal air services on land was pictured today as the goal of the administration and as the desired outcome of the present air mail controversy.

The suggestion by Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic senate leader, was thrown into the midst of a bitter senate debate during which the chamber resounded to the charge by Senator Arthur R. Robinson, Indiana Republican, that in transferring carrying of the mails to the army air corps President Roosevelt countenanced "legalized murder."

Warmly, Democratic Senator Robinson denied the indictment of the President. But he admitted that the 10 deaths of army flyers and the numerous other crashes had shown the need for a thorough reorganization of the air service.

Only Navy and Marines Out.

The plan he outlined would unite under a single head all federal services directly or indirectly connected with aviation except the flying services of the navy and marine corps. The head of the new organization, the senator indicated, should be "a fighting man."

The Democratic leader pointed out that under the present setup the federal funds for the advancement of aviation are disbursed by the army, the navy, the commerce department, the weather bureau, the coast guard, the postoffice department, and the national advisory committee for aeronautics.

"One of the results which must come," he said, "is the efficient organization of the army air service, the assembling under a single head of the bureaus which have to do with aviation, the placing at the head of the aviation service of one not only well trained and familiar with the history of the problems but who believes that aviation is an essential and indispensable part of the military service of this nation.

Compensation for Record.

"If that result is achieved there will result some measure of compensation for the tragedies which have happened, due in large part to unusual and extraordinary weather conditions, and in some part to lack of proper and adequate equipment.

"I should like to see the movement to concentrate aviation bureaus under one head, under an able and aggressive leadership carried forward, and I should like to see coupled with that a provision for all aviation purchases, so far as practicable, to be made by a single organization, audited by the controler general. This will give the people what they are entitled to have—an efficient and able air force—and will tend to remove the opportunity for dishonesty and fraudulent arrangements."

The Democratic leader explained later that he spoke on his own responsibility. But his plan fitted significantly into the administration plan, evident in the President's recent letter and the administration bill to restore carrying of the mails to private operators. The letter contained suggestions and the bill contained provisions designed to make American commercial aviation an integral part of the scheme of air defense.

The administration plan for greater coöperation between the military and civilian air services was emphasized when W. W. Howse, first assistant postmaster general, appeared before the committee to continue his testimony concerning the pending bill. He asserted that not only should military and naval pilots be given a chance to fly the commercial air routes, but that civilian pilots should be required to engage in a certain amount of military flight training every year.

Under the measure now being considered by the senate postoffice committee, specifications for planes flying the air mail would receive the approval not only of the secretary of commerce, but also of the secretaries of war and the navy.

Democrat Maintains Calm.

The speech of the Democratic Robinson was a calm and mild reply to the impassioned accusations hurled by Republican Robinson of Indiana, who took the deaths of the army flyers for his starting point and declared it was "all due to a tragic blunder in the White House."

"These ten brave men are dead due to the ineptitude of the administration," he declared. "If we say they are dead as a result of the deliberate order of the administration, then it is murder, legalized murder. At least it is manslaughter." Then he recalled the recent order of the President curtailing air corps operations and pointed out that the President had said he had been advised that the air corps could do the job.

Blames "Political Counsel."

Referring to the statements of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff, and other army heads, that the President had ordered the air corps to fly the mail without previously consulting them, Senator Robinson said it was evident that President Roosevelt had acted on "political and not technical counsel." He blamed Postmaster General Farley, who is also chairman of the Democratic national committee, for having advised the President.

In his reply to the Indiana Republican, Senator Robinson of Arkansas called the other "unjust."

"My information is," he said, "that many days prior to the carrying of the mail by the army, the head of the army air corps made an unqualified declaration that the army was fitted in training and equipment to perform the task. The President takes full and unqualified responsibility for what was done."

TWO ARMY STUDENT FLYERS DIE IN CRASH NEAR SAN ANTONIO

San Antonio, Tex., March 13.—[Special.]—An accident in which two student fliers, trapped in their disabled army observation plane, plunged to death near Camp Bullis this morning was under investigation by Kelly field authorities tonight.

Victims of the crash were Nelson Samuels, 22, of Severna Park, Md., and James W. Carson, 26, Spartanburg, S. C. Carson was listed as pilot of the ilifated craft, which apparently fell earthward so swiftly that neither occupant was able to take to his parachute.

As their bodies were brought to San Antonio from the accident scene, about eighteen miles from here, mourners were gathering at Fort Sam Houston here for the military funeral of Lieut. Arthur R. Kerwin Jr., killed in a mail plane crash near Cheyenne, Wyo., Saturday.

Both Samuels and Carson were students at the air corps advanced flying school at Kelly field. Cadet Samuels was a graduate of the United States Naval academy, Annapolis, but was not commissioned in the navy. He was transferred to the army flying school at his own request.

Carson was listed as having graduated at the South Carolina A. and M. college. He was a son of J. L. Carson of Spartanburg. Samuels' mother is Mrs. Kate Samuels, Severna Park There was no eyewitness to the crash, which occurred half a mile from a ranch house. Both flyers apparently were killed instantly. The plane wreckage did not burn. The students were on a training flight at the time of the accident. That the plane spun in was the theory of investigators.

AIR LINE CARRIES CONTRACT CASE TO HIGHER COURT

New York, March 13.—[Special.]—Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., formerly operators of the mail run to Los Angeles, appealed today from the recent decision of Federal Judge John C. Knox denying an injunction to restrain Postmaster General Farley and Postmaster Kiely of New York from abrogating the company's contract. Judge Knox held he was without jurisdiction.

Richard W. Robbins, president of T. & W. A., in attacking the McKellar-Black bill for recoördinating and reallocating mail contracts, said that filing the appeal had been delayed in the hope that proper provisions would be taken to safeguard the rights of the former air mail contractors.

"It is vindictive and punitive, rather than constructive," he said of the bill. "It is the product of minds bent on wrecking an industry that had attained an enviable success and was performing a notable service for the American people. It is the climax of a most discreditable display of recklessness and irresponsibility."

SURGEONS HEAR OF NEW ANESTHETIC WITH FEW AFTER-EFFECTS

Los Angeles, Cal., March 13.—[Special.]—Surgeons at the national convention of the American College of Surgeons today witnessed a demonstration of a little known anesthetic, known as "cyclopropane," and described by Dr. Elden T. Tice as the safest anesthetic known to medical science. The clinic was held at Los Angeles Methodist hospital.

Unlike ether and other modern anesthesia, Dr. Tice said, cyclopropane does not deprive the body of oxygen, and "a patient is fully recovered from the effects of this gas within 15 minutes after its application is halted. It will prove a boon to mankind when placed in general use within a few months."

Dr. Malcolm MacEachern and Dr. Franklin Martin, director general of the organization, both of Chicago, spoke. Dr. Frederick A. Besley of Northwestern university and Dr. George W. Crile of Cleveland will deliver addresses tomorrow.

A new temperature record for 1934 was set at 1 p. m. yesterday, when the mercury touched 64 degrees. From this point there was a sharp descent, the reading at 7 p. m. being only 34. To make the change even more unwelcome, the cold was accompanied by mingled snow and rain during the evening.

The official forecast indicated that generally fair skies would prevail today and that temperatures would be near the normal for the date, or not far from the mark registered last night. Increasing cloudiness and milder airs are anticipated tomorrow.

Yesterday's high was nine degrees above the previous 1934 record, set on Feb. 14. It was only one degree below the maximum for March 13, set in 1922.

FRIEND AND FOE ADMIT DEFEAT OF OCEAN CANAL

St. Lawrence Treaty Up for Vote Today.

BY JOHN HERRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 13.—[Special.]—The senate will vote on ratification of the St. Lawrence seaway treaty tomorrow with rejection of the agreement with Canada conceded by both sides.

Senator Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.], foreign relations committee chairman in charge of the treaty, admitted tonight that only a miracle could save the treaty—and he did not look for a miracle.

Confident of their ability to defeat ratification, the opponents of the treaty will make no attempt for the adoption of reservations, but will work for a vote directly upon the main issue.

Lewis Withdraws Reservation.

Senator J. Hamilton Lewis [Dem., Ill.], opposition leader, late today withdrew a reservation he had pending. Senators William H. Dieterich [Dem., Ill.], Bennett C. Clark [Dem., Mo.], and Josiah W. Bailey [Dem., Mo.], are expected to follow suit tomorrow.

The opposition ranks were reported tonight to be unbroken. The Mississippi valley senators, those from seaboard states, those motivated by fear of dangerous competition with the railroads, others determined to fight further government funds for power, still others convinced that the St. Lawrence route would prove uneconomic, formed a group that may possibly poll an opposition vote even larger than the vote for ratification.

Instead of losing votes at the last minute the treaty foes were reported to have gained recruits as the result of the President's recent tariff action. Hostile to the tariff bill, they intend to express their resentment by switching their previous intention to go along on the treaty. In order to ratify the treaty a two-thirds vote would be necessary.

Senators who have fought for the treaty—in some cases against their own private wishes—are disappointed that the President has not used his influence more strenuously.

Perhaps the biggest opposition group of all comes from the Mississippi valley. They foresee the lakes to gulf waterway would be crippled by the treaty's limitation upon the Chicago water diversion from Lake Michigan.

Clark Fights Ratification.

It was as spokesman for this group and their midwestern constituents that Senator Clark of Missouri made the major speech of the day against ratification.

Senator Clark repeatedly professed his loyalty to the policy of waterway development; but that, he explained, did not mean that he must approve the pending treaty. He said it was plain that the chief interest of President Roosevelt was to create cheap power for the benefit of his own state of New York and its neighboring states.

Power, however, was not the primary consideration for the people of the Mississippi valley, the senator declared.

"To us," he asserted, "nothing can compensate for the calamity of shutting off the vast resources of our great valley in perpetuity from deep water. We see in the proposed treaty a menace to the necessary development of the system of Mississippi valley waterways.

"In conformity with a broad national viewpoint, we of the Mississippi valley have cheerfully supported with our votes and our taxes the reclamation of arid lands in the west, the construction of the Panama canal, the improvement of harbors on the Atlantic and Pacific seaboards, the improvement of channels and harbors of the great lakes system, and the Muscle shoals and Boulder dam projects."

Says Treaty Offers Injury.

"In return we have expected and demanded that the development of the great system of the Mississippi and its tributaries to give the Mississippi valley empire access to deep water should likewise be treated as a great national project.

"But when we are asked, as in this treaty, to vote not only for the benefit of another section, even another nation, but also are asked to bind ourselves to the permanent isolation of most of the Mississippi valley, then it is time that we of the Mississippi valley states should awake and gird for defense."

Predicts Further Harm.

Senator Clark cited the Panama canal, saying:

"The Panama canal has given so great a transportation advantage to the seaboard states as almost to place an absolute bar in the path of our industrial development."

Mr. Clark said in reapportionment of seats in the house of representatives Mississippi valley states lost seventeen congressmen, whose places were distributed among coastal, lake, and gulf states with access to adequate water transportation.

"Industry after industry," he added, "has left the central west to move to locations affording better opportunities for water transportation. It is now seriously proposed to add to our catastrophe by affording to other sections of the United States and to Canada, in active competition with our industries and agricultural interests, immediate and cheap access to the sea, and by forever closing the door on the development of our inland waterway system that would afford the middle west access to the gulf.

Cites Diversion.

"Those results inevitably flow from the limitation of fifteen hundred second feet placed upon the diversion of water from Lake Michigan by article eight of the pending treaty. This treaty strikes at the economic existence and well-being of the greater portion of the Mississippi valley."

No limit was placed, he pointed out, on a possible diversion by Canada from Georgian bay, thence to connect by canal with the Ottawa river to form an all-Canadian water route.

"The treaty provisions for the internationalization of Lake Michigan and the permanent limitation of diversion from Lake Michigan are indefensible" Senator Clark maintained. "Not many can foresee with any certainty what the needs of the lakes to gulf waterway may be a few years hence. There is no sense in the United States deliberately and forever limiting the diversions from Lake Michigan, the future need for which no one can possibly foresee, and at the same time granting to Canada in perpetuity the right to such diversions as she may deem necessary. In this way the United States would be put at a tragic disadvantage in negotiation for all time to come."

Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, majority leader, made the principal argument in favor of the treaty.

"The St. Lawrence waterway is a natural channel for commerce," he said. "It is therefore a sound economic proposal to construct this canal. It will serve a substantial part of the population of the United States and Canada. The cost of construction is fair in view of the benefits anticipated.

"Ever since I have been in congress I have heard opposition from railroads to the construction and improvement of waterways. I have never known an instance in which a great waterway was developed that it did not add to the commerce of that section and indirectly, if not directly, benefit the railroads."

PRESIDENT ACTS TO CURB HOUSE VETERAN FIGHT

Would Put Economy Plans to Test.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 13.—[Special.]—Threatened with another revolt over veterans' legislation, President Roosevelt's chieftains in the house scurried today to the powerful rules committee in an effort to preserve the administration's economy program.

They brought back a special rule, the adoption of which will send the hotly contested independent offices bill directly to conference. There administration forces will seek to lop off a large part, if not all of the 354 million dollars the senate added to the measure in veterans' benefits and federal employés pay.

Would Curb House Revolt.

The rule represented the weapon with which Mr. Roosevelt's henchmen in the lower house of congress will combat the tremendous wave of veterans' sentiment which yesterday swept the soldiers' bonus bill to overwhelming passage over the President's objection.

The strategy of the administration leadership will be put to the test tomorrow, when the rule is called up for a vote. Rebuffed today in an effort to send the independent offices bill to conference by unanimous request, the Roosevelt chieftains are bent on forcing the majority to vote the whole economy program up or down at one time.

It is the determination of the veterans' bloc in the house, on the other hand, to get a separate vote on the amendments by which the senate loaded the bill with ex-service men's pensions and government pay. They insisted today on expressing the attitude of the house membership on each issue involved before sending the appropriation measure to conference. Under this procedure, conferees on the part of the house would be bound by the house vote in their deliberations with spokesmen for the senate; and the house conferees, all administration supporters, are anxious to have a free hand in trying to force a senate recession or compromise on the economy amendments.

May Restore Some Pay.

Indications were that a compromise will be effected between the White House and congress on restoration of the 15 per cent cut imposed on government workers a year ago. The formula to be agreed upon, it was reported, will provide for a retroactive 5 per cent restoration effective as of Feb. 1, last, and another 5 per cent effective July 1.

On the veterans' question, however, there seemed less likelihood of an amicable settlement in view of the present temper of the house. Chairman Clifton A. Woodrum [Dem., Va.] of the house conferees, indicated the willingness of the administration to accept a compromise, but there was considerable doubt whether the house will accept any curtailment of the 354 millions already approved by the senate.

"I have every reason to believe that the President is willing to meet the legislative branch on this question in a spirit of conciliation," Mr. Woodrum told the house in appealing for unanimous consent to send the supply bill to conference. "If you gentlemen want tangible results for the veterans, and not just speeches, we must approach this matter ready to make concessions."

125 Millions at Stake.

In response to a question from Minority Leader Bertrand H. Snell of New York, Mr. Woodrum stated that from 115 to 125 million dollars is the difference in money between what the administration might accept as a compromise on the veterans' matter, and what the senate has already voted.

Mr. Snell indicated the Republican minority will make every effort to get a separate vote on the pay cut proposition and the veterans' benefits before the bill is sent to conference.

"Unless we have that vote before the bill goes to conference," he pointed out, "we will have no opportunity of expressing ourselves on the two issues involved. We will have to accept or reject the conference report with no chance of considering the pay restoration and veterans' benefits as separate matters."

Britten for Restoration.

Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.], interposed that he is ready to vote for a full 15 per cent restoration of government pay cuts and declared he would like to vote on that issue before the bill is sent to conference.

Under the rule the membership of the house tomorrow will be forced to vote en bloc on the amendments of the senate. Whether or not the threatened revolt against the administration will materialize in rejection of the rule was a matter of conjecture tonight.

DEMOCRATS OF HOUSE GIVE A DINNER FOR IGOE, EX-COLLEAGUE

Mr. Igoe served 20 years as a member of the house, much of the time as minority leader.

Howard L. Doyle of Decatur was toastmaster. Speakers included Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Donovan, Speaker Arthur Roe, Senator Mark A. Penick of Quincy, Frank Wilson of Woosung, Thomas P. Sinnett of Rock Island, Senator Carl Behrman of Peoria, Sidney Parker of Texaco, and Frank Porter of McLeansboro.

Mr. Igoe lauded the Roosevelt administration and promised to support the President if elected.

J. R. Finkelstein Accused of Failure to File.

Jacob R. Finkelstein, a promoter, was named yesterday in a criminal information charging failure to file an income tax return for 1930, when his income amounted to $98,753.46. Attorney Benjamin Landis filed a motion to reduce the bail from $5,000 to $2,000 and promised to surrender Finkelstein today.

The offense is a misdemeanor carrying a maximum penalty of one year in jail and a fine of $10,000. The information was rushed by United States District Attorney Dwight H. Green because the satutory limitation for filing the charge is tomorrow.

Grand Jury May Investigate.

It was reported that a grand jury investigation may be made later of Finkelstein's income for 1930, and also for 1929. However, the necessary authorization for such action has not been received from Attorney General Homer S. Cummings.

Finkelstein, who is a close friend of former Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, is an official of the American Reduction corporation, 105 West Adams street, and lives at the Congress hotel. He lived in Terre Haute, Ind., until about eight years ago. There he promoted a steel plant project.

$50,000 Fee in Deal.

According to the information, Finkelstein in 1930 received $50,000 of a commission from the Grigsby-Grunow company for effecting the purchase of the entire capital stock of the Matchless Electric company, an Indiana concern. Grigsby-Grunow was adjudicated bankrupt yesterday in the federal court.

During 1930 he also is said to have received $15,000 for services in connection with the merger of loan companies in Indiana and $8,500 for representing the Morgan Utilities company in income tax matters before the bureau of internal revenue at Washington.

Attorney Landis last night said the charges that Finkelstein's 1930 income exceeded $98,000 were misleading.

"Documentary evidence will show," he asserted, "that Finkelstein incurred losses that year exceeding his gross income."

GROUP REDUCES HOURS, RAISES RATES OF PAY

Washington, D. C., March 13.—[Special.]—The code authority for the packaging machinery industry today announced its intention of reducing hours and increasing wages, in conformity with the recovery administration's program.

In a telegram to Administrator Johnson, the industry stated it was adopting the 30 hour week instead of 40, and it added that "members of the canning and packing machinery industry" also have indicated a desire to join the reduced hour schedule.

Under the code for the packaging machinery industry, signed by President Roosevelt on Oct. 31, 1933, common labor received a minimum wage of 40 cents an hour for a maximum 40 hour week. Under the new arrangement the minimum wage will be 50 cents an hour for the 30 hour week.

The Schenley Products company, distillers, was the first company to go on the shorter work week in response to the administration's proposals. Last Monday 1,000 men were added to this company's pay rolls, it was announced.

INDUSTRY BACKS TARIFF PLAN, BUT POINTS OUT PERIL

Insists on "Day in Court" to Protect Itself.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 13.—[Special.]—From organized industry today came a carefully qualified indorsement of President Roosevelt's plan to rejuvenate American world trade through reciprocal agreements with foreign nations.

James A. Emery, general counsel for the National Manufacturers' association, appeared before the house ways and means committee to praise with one voice the broad principle involved in the program and to warn with another that executive power to juggle tariff rates holds peril as well as a promise of benefit for domestic producers.

Favors Congress Approval.

His clients, Mr. Emery told the committee, believe the President should be authorized to negotiate any trade agreements that may advance the foreign trade of the United States. They hold the opinion that Mr. Roosevelt should not be restricted in removing commodities from or adding them to the free list.

But the business men composing the manufacturers' association, Mr. Emery declared, feel that they should have at least "a day in court" before the President acts to raise or lower tariff rates in return for reciprocal action by another country. Likewise, he stated, the members of the association feel that trade agreements are essentially treaties and should be subject to the approval of congress.

Points Out Dangers.

Industry, together with agriculture, hopes to benefit from the trade agreements contemplated under the administration's tariff program, Mr. Emery went on. But he declared that industry and agriculture, which are to be vitally affected by any rearrangement of tariff rates, should be provided a tribunal before which they can protest any contemplated alteration of a protecting tariff wall.

"The vesting of tariff and treaty making authority in the executive," Mr. Emery warned, "creates a vast and critical element of uncertainty for industry which is already so seriously hampered by unknown quantities."

Mr. Emery's testimony in opposition to certain features of the Roosevelt tariff proposal provoked a heated partisan wrangle among members of the ways and means committee. The witness was repeatedly interrupted by Democratic members who plied him with lengthy questions. Finally Representative James A. Frear [Rep., Wis.] demanded that the majority committeemen cease hindering the lawyer in his recital—the Democrats, said Mr. Frear, were deliberately seeking to argue with Mr. Emery.

Pounds for Order; Breaks Gavel.

Several Democratic members started to answer hotly, and Chairman Robert L. Doughton [Dem., N. C.] rapped sternly for order—rapped, that is, until the head flew suddenly off his gavel and landed on the lap of Representative Samuel B. Hill [Dem., Wash.], sitting next to him.

Prior to Mr. Emery's appearance, the committee heard Francis Sayre, assistant secretary of state, declare: "It looks like disaster if something isn't done for our foreign trade."

"It is imperative," he asserted, "for the United States to adopt a constructive program to retain, if not regain our markets abroad. Unless the tariff is brought into conformity with the tactics of other nations, the United States is going to lose and lose seriously what little foreign trade it has today."

FIGHTS RETURN TO ITALY; LIFE TERM WAITS HIM

Santo Virrusso, an Aurora restaurant owner, fought yesterday before United States Commissioner E. K. Walker to save himself from deportation to Italy, where a life sentence—imposed upon him while he was in the United States—awaits him.

In 1923, according to evidence presented to the commissioner, Virrusso, reputed to be a member of the Mafia, was charged with murder, but was acquitted when witnesses refused to identify him. He came to the United States soon after. In 1927, after Mussolini ordered the annihilation of the Mafia, the case was resurrected, the same witnesses named Virrusso as a killer, and he was sentenced to prison for life.

The Italian government requested Virrusso be sent back to Italy. He has been in jail since last November. His attorney, Charles S. Deneen, argued yesterday that the defendant was not a fugitive from justice when he left for the United States, as he had been acquitted of the charge, and that the sentencing of a defendant in his absence is repugnant to the accepted administration of justice in this country.

Commissioner Walker is expected to decide the case March 23.

INDICTED AS KIDNAP LEADER

INDICT DOCTOR'S WIFE, 5 MEN IN KIDNAPING CASE

St. Louis, Mo., March 13.—[Special.]—Police have instituted a search for Mrs. Nellie Muench, wife of Dr. Ludwig O. Muench, St. Louis physician, following the return by a grand jury today in Clayton, St. Louis county, of an indictment charging the woman and five others with complicity in the kidnaping here of Dr. Isaac Dee Kelley Jr., physician and member of a wealthy family.

Mrs. Muench, former proprietor of a fashionable women's apparel shop, left home hurriedly when informed of the jury's action. She told inquirers she was going across the river for a while into Illinois so she could "think things over."

Dr. Kelley was lured from his home at 32 Portland place by a false sick call on April 20, 1931, and was released eight days later in East St. Louis. At the time, it was reported, $100,000 ransom was turned over, although Dr. Kelley denied any payment.

It was disclosed the kidnaping victim had been held for a short time in a house in St. Charles county, Mo. An affidavit given by a witness before the grand jury told of Dr. Kelley's being held a prisoner in the tenant farm home of John Johnson, Negro, one of the group indicted today.

Others under indictment are Bart Davit, who was acquitted three years ago of the attempted kidnaping of Oscar Johnson II., son of the wealthy Mrs. Oscar Johnson; Felix Francis McDonald, now serving a ten year sentence in the Missouri penitentiary for the attempted abduction of Johnson; Angelo Rosegrant, St. Louis county, and Tony Wilders, St. Louis.

Circuit Judge Mueller announced he would not set any bond in the cases unless such action was recommended by the prosecuting attorney's office.

Principal witnesses before the grand jury were Dr. Kelley and Adolph Fielder, 325 pound former justice of the peace of Maplewood, St. Louis county. The latter made an affidavit early last month naming the six persons indicted.

On the basis of this disclosure, warrants were issued against the six on Feb. 7. Mrs. Muench, Davit, Rosegrant, and Johnson were arrested at the time and later released on bond.

Before disappearing into Illinois today Mrs. Muench declared the charge was "a crime and an outrage."

"I'll take an oath on my mother's Bible that I know no more of this than you do," she told a reporter. "I'd a thousand times rather be indicted for murder than for this."

HUGE LOSS SEEN BY WOODRING IN REOPENING BIDS

Defends War Buying as for Best Interests.

Washington, D. C., March 13.—[Special.]—In defense of his changes in specifications for the trucks that were to be procured for motorization of the army with the $10,000,000 PWA fund, Harry H. Woodring, assistant secretary of war, today told the house military affairs investigating committee that the government would lose from a half to a million dollars if the old bids were thrown out and the whole plan readvertised.

"We have 75 per cent of the motor industry of the world in the United States," he asserted. "In conformity with the law and with common sense we changed specifications, not once, but twenty times. And I want to say to you here and now that they are the best that have ever been sent out."

The picture Mr. Woodring gave the committee was far different from that portrayed in the criticism heaped upon him as chief of war department procurement during the last few months, and which resulted in a grand jury investigation. The jury yesterday declined to indict a single person.

"Bossed" by Underlings.

His was the story of a civilian thrown into a situation where practices had grown old with custom, of being "bossed by official subordinates." It was the story of one plucky enough to pit his position and authority against continuation of such policies.

He told the committee, as he did in the case of airplane procurement methods, that competitive bidding was the best for the industry and better for the taxpayer and the service.

"There have been unfair criticisms and insinuations made against me," he declared, "all because it was charged I changed specifications for the proposed automobile purchase. My answer is yes. My technicians changed them and I approved their suggestions."

Insists on Best Features.

Mr. Woodring said that the principal opposition arose because he had insisted upon the most up to date machinery. He revealed that he specified a "force feed" lubricating system for the engine plants.

"There was a complaint because some bidder wanted the old "splash" cooling system, but the newer method insured longer life for the trucks and engines." He explained various other technical improvements which caused changes in specifications.

In a statement outside the committee chambers, Mr. Woodring denied any hostility between himself and Secretary Dern, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staf, or any members of the general staf. He confirmed reports of a difference of opinion between him and Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of the air corps, on the method of purchasing army airplanes.

The statement in part:

"It is intimated that I have denied some one business or that I have given some one business; that I have changed specifications so as to broaden competition, or that I have approved specifications narrowing competition. The implication is made in every case that there is something sinister about the conduct of my office. The implication is false.

"I am criticized for exercising supervision over the procurement of supplies, as the law requires me to do.

"Every action of mine affects the financial situation of somebody. I have no illusions that I can please everybody in every transaction. In nine hundred and ninety-nine cases out of one thousand, no exception is taken to my official action. But occasionally some one is dissatisfied because certain business goes to a competitor instead of himself. These rare instances have led to the objections that we hear about. But disappointments to some people are inevitable if I am to do the job that I am sworn to perform.

Seeks Economies.

"During the time I have been the assistant secretary of war I have considered it my duty to exercise such supervision and control over the procurement activities of the several supply agencies as will insure that supplies are procured economically.

"I have always considered that competition for government business should be encouraged to the fullest extent practicable in each particular case. Every qualified manufacturer should have an equal opportunity to obtain this business, and the government should have the advantage of the lower prices which accrue through such competition."

EVANSTON LEADS NATION'S CITIES IN TRAFFIC SAFETY

Evanston, in competition with 300 other American cities, yesterday was awarded first place in the national traffic safety contest sponsored in 1933 by the National Safety council. The year before the north shore city shared the same honor with Pittsburgh, Pa., but there was no co-leader in 1933.

The judges, who met in New York, stated that Evanston had made "the greatest traffic safety progress in 1933." In divisional contests Milwaukee won the award for cities of more than 500,000 population and La Grange that for cities of 10,000 to 25,000. Providence, R. I., Grand Rapids, Mich., and Fond du Lac, Wis., were other divisional winners. La Grange Park was voted a certificate of merit for its safety measures.

Mayor Charles H. Bartlett and Chief of Police William O. Freeman of Evanston were greatly pleased by the honor. They attributed the results largely to the efficiency of the police department accident prevention bureau, directed by Frank Kreml.

TEACHERS BACK GAS TAX PLAN IN SEEKING MONEY

But Just Lukewarm, They Say After Parley.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 12.—[Special.]—Hope that a plan has been evolved to settle the row over legislation to increase the amount of tax funds going to schools was expressed here tonight after Gov. Horner, legislators and teachers had spent a day around the conference table.

The governor said that the teachers promised they would support the plan wholeheartedly. The teachers said that while the proposal was not just what they wanted, it was "a step in the right direction." Legislators present—those who will do whatever is done—showed two attitudes, Democrats favoring and Republicans more or less noncommittal.

Armed with a promise of support from Mayor Kelly of Chicago, the governor proposed that one-third of the three-cent gas tax be contributed equally to the state school distributive fund by the state, the counties and the cities.

Kelly Goes Along.

Each would divert one-third of their one-cent allotment and 10 million dollars would thus be switched from road building to educational purposes.

The school fund is now $10,975,000 in arrears.

Mayor Kelly notified the governor that he would not oppose an additional one-third of one cent diversion from Chicago's share of the tax and this would add $1,150,000 to that portion of the state fund already allotted the city.

The promise was also made to the teachers that this year the entire 10½ million dollar distributive fund would be paid in full. Sales tax collections will make this possible. Then an estimated 3½ millions in the back tax collections was added and the total that the fund will hold for the coming year was approximated at 25½ millions.

Levies Can Be Shifted.

"Some say the proposed plan will take some money from road building purposes and will force money for schools on those districts of the state which are in sound financial condition.

"This is easily answered. Where a school district of the state has enough money to meet its school needs it can reduce its school levy by the extra amount which it will receive from the state distributive fund.

"If it feels the need for additional highways it can increase the road fund levy by that sum. Thus there will be no general increase in local taxes, yet the various school districts in need will have relief.

"Use of the portion of the gasoline tax contemplated provides immediate revenue. Any other plan, including the issuance of bonds and anticipation warants, would mean a delay as well as a doubt in getting this money to the places where it is sorely needed.

Assistance to Chicago.

"I believe the proposed distribution of the gasoline tax offers an equitable and simple solution of the immediate school problem.

"Furthermore, Mayor Kelly has offered to contribute as much as two-thirds of Chicago's share of the gasoline tax to Chicago schools, and it is proposed to take one-third of Chicago's share of the gasoline tax in addition to the one-third which goes into the state distributive fund, in which Chicago participates, to help the Chicago schools."

The house will be asked first to pass the plan. Its principal provisions were attached to a bill on second reading in the form of an amendment this evening and the new measure went to third reading. Republicans did not object to this, indicating that they were holding their fire until tomorrow and the passage roll call. The measure whereby Chicago would give up an additional one-third cent to the school fund was introduced and went to second reading.

Legislators Eager to Leave.

Then, if the bill passes, it can be read the first time and advanced to second reading in the senate tomorrow. It could go to third reading on Thursday and at a post-midnight session could be passed early Saturday, completing enactment.

All the members are restive and want to get back to their home districts where the primaries involving the house and half the senate are less than one month away. But they will not leave, it was believed, until some sort of school legislation is passed.

The teachers have been supporting the Schnackenberg-Swanson bill to divert 98 per cent of the liquor tax collections to the school fund. They also favor the senate bill, backed by seven Republican senators, to divert all but 30 million dollars of sales tax collections to the fund.

Having used the sales tax to supplant the state's general property tax, the governor, of course, does not want that set up disturbed and neither is he willing that liquor revenue be given the schools.

Consider Amending Measure.

Last week the house of representatives overrode his protests and passed the Schnackenberg-Swanson bill. If it is determined to adopt the plan outlined today, it will likely be made an amendment to some pending bill in the house and the fight for passage started there.

The Schnackenberg-Swanson bill and the bill to divert sales tax collections were put to third reading by the senate today.

The teachers say that the sales tax will pour about 43 millions into the state's coffers for the next twelve months. Director of Finance K. L. Ames Jr. says the 33 millions is a good estimate.

The teachers also believe that liquor revenue will reach 6 millions the first year. Mr. Ames says that it will be closer to 4 millions.

W. L. Sullivan Considered for Federal Tax Board

William L. Sullivan, assistant corporation counsel, is being considered for appointment as a member of the United States board of tax appeals, according to dispatches from Washington yesterday quoting United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis. Sullivan's candidacy for the tax board became known when he asked that his name be withdrawn from consideration as a possible appointee in the office of Attorney General Homer S. Cummings.

A VISITING BRIDE MOURNS LOSS OF MATE AND $1,000

Mrs. Hazel Smith Heterington, 22 years old, last night was mourning the loss of her husband, Courtney, and $1,000 that used to belong to her mother in Birmingham, Ala. Courtney and the money both disappeared while the couple were here on their honeymoon, she asserted.

"I met him while we were both singing in a gospel tabernacle down home," said the bride, as she waited for a bus to start back to Alabama. "Such a nice man and such a fine tenor. He knew the Bible from cover to cover, too, and said he used to be a minister.

"We were married three months ago. Mother mortgaged our home and gave me the $1,000. But Courtney was interested in photography, and told me he believed he could make a lot of money selling pictures of insects to universities and museums. He had to get the lens he wanted in Waukegan, he said, and Saturday he set out for it. He's never come back and I'm tired of waiting."

COHEN, ATLANTA, CONSIDERS PARTY TREASURER POST

Democrats Need Cash for Coming Election.

Washington, D. C., March 13.—(AP)—John S. Cohen, newspaper executive, former senator, and a man familiar with the ways of politics, came to the capital today to decide whether he would accept a place as treasurer of the Democratic national committee.

The Atlantan, who previously had rejected a post in the new administration, will, if he accepts, fill the position vacated several weeks ago by the resignation of Frank C. Walker to accept a government job.

Should he accept, Cohen would find his immediate task the work of raising funds for the approaching congressional campaigns. The money bags of the party are none too tightly stuffed. The extent to which the committee will enter the campaigns remains to be made clear but Chairman Farley already has announced it would not participate in the local primaries, leaving each candidate to fight his own home district intraparty battles.

Woman Quits Job.

Farley said after a White House visit today that the decision had been reached to ask Cohen to serve.

Shortly before this announcement, Mrs. Katherine Conner, Democratic national committeewoman for Kentucky, resigned from a position in the federal emergency relief administration.

Mrs. Conner was the first national committee member to resign a government post rather than her party position since the recent informal presidential edict that party officers should give up either their party connection or their federal job.

The swiftly changing party picture projected the national chairmanship of Farley sharply to the fore. White House officials have reiterated they expected Farley to step down from the national chairmanship and today were represented as casting about for some one to take his place.

Plans in Doubt.

Capitol Hill talk that Farley might prefer to resign as postmaster general—a discussion that was given impetus in view of criticism of administration action on the air mail situation—has been flatly denied by Farley.

There was considerable doubt tonight whether Cohen would accept the treasurer's post.

As national committeeman for Georgia, the Atlanta man was active in behalf of Mr. Roosevelt during the 1932 convention. His state lined up for Mr. Roosevelt early in the pre-convention campaign.

GREECE THROWS CLOAK OF SILENCE ABOUT INSULL

Fugitive Has Only a Few Hours to Remain.

BY EUGENE SPECK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, March 13.—Two governments, Greek and American, coöperating heartily for the last two days, brought forth out of their labors today fresh documentary evidence of American citizenship which is designed to facilitate the departure of Samuel Insull, fugitive Chicago utilities promoter, from Greece within the next 48 hours.

Heretofore, Insull has been trying—some say pretending—to obtain a visa for another country on his Greek laissez passer [permit to pass]. He has consistently failed, either because nobody wants him, or because he has carefully chosen the places where he knows he can't go.

Travel Paper Issued.

For the last two days the wires have been humming between Washington and Athens. The result was an appeal by the Greek government to the American legation, which issued a slip of paper attesting Insull's American citizenship and upon which he can travel anywhere that he is allowed.

Insull's old American passport had expired, and complaints were made on his behalf that it was impossible to obtain a visa on his Greek laissez passer. Thereupon, Washington authorized the issuance of the travel paper, which is in common use in Europe but usually confined to purposes of local identification.

In issuing the document the American consulate general struck a snag. It had no photograph of Insull. In turn, the American government appealed to the Greek government for assistance, and the ministry of interior quickly supplied a print from the police files.

New Mystery Develops.

The document was sent to the Greek foreign office from the American legation, and relayed by government messenger to Insull's home. It was announced at the foreign office that Insull would be asked what country he wanted to visit, and the good offices of the Greek government would be used to help him obtain a visa to that destination.

What happened thereafter is a mystery. All sources in the foreign office, American Minister Lincoln MacVeagh, and Minister of Interior John Moundjourides are silent. Whether there is a scheme to help Insull leave without publicity is unknown.

There is only one gleaning on the problem tonight, and that is the statement of the foreign office that if Insull did obtain a visa it would not be issued until tomorrow, when he will have only a few hours in which to leave the country.

Rumors Fly in Athens.

Every conceivable rumor of the fugitive's destination is being bruited about Athens tonight. One rumor of his intentions is diabolically ingenious. It is that Insull will suddenly reverse position and appeal to the American government tomorrow for protection against the supposed violence of the Greek police in ejecting him Friday. According to this report, Mrs. Insull will visit MacVeagh tomorrow, announce that her husband is at the disposal of the American government, and plead that he intercede so that Insull will not be carried out in bed. The appeal would be based on the declaration that Insull means to sail for the United States on the Aquitania, as originally planned, but four days after the government has announced that he must leave.

On the other hand, it is considered possible that he will adopt the other attitude—go back to bed and force the government to eject him.

SUPREME COURT O. K.'S DISMISSAL OF SWIFT SUIT

The Illinois Supreme court at Springfield yesterday upheld the dismissal of the suit of Sam Howard, trustee in bankruptcy of the Corporation Securities company, for $37,308,646 against executors of the estate of the late Edward F. Swift, packer.

In a vacation opinion the high court upheld the action of the Cook county Probate court in refusing to hear the suit.

Mr. Swift was a director of the Corporation Securities company, a defunct Insull investment trust. Howard alleged that Swift was in part responsible for manipulation of stock, creating false values. Attorneys for the estate maintained that the Probate court had no jurisdiction in the matter and this view was upheld by the Supreme court.

He has confessed, officers said.

and the Peoples' Gas company," Rosenberg is reported to have told the federal officials.

Rosenberg was also reported to have stated in Washington that the profits from his junk business were not altogether due to market conditions, but to the favorable price at which he was able to buy scrap from the utilities.

Moe explained his father, Reuben Rosenberg, did junk business with the utilities as far back as 1907. In 1919 Moe merged his own business with that of his father and brother, Mike, who was elected to the sanitary district in 1920. After Moe's father died, in 1926, he went and had a talk with Samuel Insull, the fugitive ex-chief of the utilities empire, according to the reports of his explanation in Washington. Insull was said to have told him he could continue getting the junk business, just as his father had through the years, if he would "go along the same way."

Aldermen Talk More.

Further denials came forth yesterday from former or present aldermen or state representatives reputedly named in the Rosenberg statement as recipients of campaign contributions. George Seif, former alderman and now clerk of the Criminal court, who was named in the Rosenberg "aldermanic, 1929" list as getting $5,000, said:

"I did not receive $5,000 from Moe Rosenberg, nor any part of it; neither did I ever ask him for any money, or receive any. In 1929 I had no more than a speaking acquaintance with him."

Thomas F. Byrne, sanitary district trustee, who was named in Moe's 1929 aldermanic list as having received a contribution from him, said:

"I received absolutely nothing from Rosenberg."

Crowe Denies Gift.

Dorsey Crowe, alderman of the 42d ward, also named as having received $5,000, said: "I never got a dollar from Moe Rosenberg as a campaign contribution or otherwise."

State Representative Raymond T. O'Keefe, listed as having received $2,500, said:

State Senator Richey V. Graham, son-in-law of the late Mayor Cermak, said:

"I never received any money directly from Moe Rosenberg. The campaign committee turned over to me, as committeeman for Cicero, $30 for each of 59 precincts. I understood it came from the late mayor. Rosenberg may have given some of the money to the mayor and charged it to me, so to speak."

FARM-BUSINESS COUNCIL PUSHES HIGHER TARIFFS

Grain and Molasses Protection Urged.

BY PAUL POTTER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Terre Haute, Ind., March 13.—[Special.]—Officials of nearly 50 prominent industrial, farm and labor organizations in 12 middle western states met here today to form an organization to foster improved commercial and economic conditions for the Mississippi valley and great lakes states. The organization, which is to be a sort of midwest chamber of commerce, is to be known as the Midwest Council of Agriculture and Business.

No sooner had it been created than the first of a series of important issues confronting the area included was placed before the delegates for attention, the administration's failure to see that American grains were given preference over those of foreign countries, and failure to halt importing of blackstrap molasses from Cuba for use in the making of alcohol for the new liquor industry.

Grain Products Profit Source.

The market for mid-west grain products likewise is a potential commercial source of profits and utilizes the coal from nearby mines and employes considerable home labor, it was pointed out.

C. N. Power, Terre Haute baker and industrialist, who was selected to head the newly formed council, heard reports from volunteer field workers who have enlisted chamber of commerce, manufacturers' associations, farm bureaus, organized labor groups, farmers' grain associations and others into the fight for this domestic market for grains as the first of several important projects. The organization is patterned somewhat after the New England industrial council of Boston.

Some of Problems.

Some of the problems placed before the council today by Mr. Power and a group of the delegates, as important to industrial development of the midwest and the nation are:

1. A study of the changing banking conditions and the needs of this region.

2. A study of the flow of insurance funds into investments outside the area in which these funds are collected.

3. A study of the benefits or handicaps to the mid-west of the Panama canal and proposed great lakes waterway.

4. Possible new foreign markets for agricultural goods of the mid-west, likewise the development of new uses for these farm crops domestically.

5. Sounding of the attitude of the mid-west toward stabilizing foreign monetary exchange.

6. Study of the interstate barriers to commerce in the form of taxes, traffic laws and rates, with a view to promoting increased interstate commerce.

"The idea of a central, nonpartisan organization to speak for the best interests of this great region is not new," declared Eugene Funk of the Bloomington [Ill.] Chamber of Commerce, one of the speakers today. "No matter what past efforts have accomplished, the fact remains the need of a strong voice for interests in the Mississippi valley is great enough to warrant this organization now."

Fred H. Clutton, secretary of the Chicago Board of Trade, pointed out that grain exchanges are interested in finding new outlets for farm products and in bolstering prices. He urged consideration of action by midwest agencies to obtain a tariff boost on rye imports as of immediate importance to farmers. Still another issue, placed before the group by C. V. Gregory of Chicago, was a study of methods by which the midwest could make it unnecessary for the administration to embark on a continued policy of curtailing farm production after the present acreage reduction activities are completed.

FIRE DAMAGES SYNAGOGUE.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm
By Bob Becker

THERE are several indignant turkeys and Barred Rock chickens here on THE TRIBUNE'S experimental farm today. John Rawlings [who is in charge of the sheep and the poultry] had to turn some of the ewes and their lambs into the chicken yard because the sheepfold is so crowded. And just as quickly as these sheep families were turned loose in the open yard the lambs, of course, started to frisk about and jump up and down like children who have just been let out of school.

The dignified old turkey gobblers which have been strutting around the place with a greatly developed sense of ownership were pushed right out of their favorite loafing spots by the galloping lambs. This afternoon when I walked through the poultry yard with Rawlings I saw the turkeys 'way off in one corner. But one handsome old gobbler was strutting and gobbling for all he was worth trying to attract attention to himself. As if the turkeys didn't have their feelings hurt enough by the invasion of baby lambs, one of the black-legged lambs only a few days old felt so frisky that he took after one of the "turks" and sent him running with a great fluttering of wings.

Some of these newly born lambs act as if they were training to become acrobats. Not content with cavorting and prancing in a ridiculous manner, they often climb up on the backs of their reclining mothers and gravely survey the world from such unsteady positions. This afternoon I saw two lambs doing this trick. One of them was having a difficult time keeping his legs steady. After getting on her back he watched me for a few seconds and then started to paw his mother's wool as if he were trying to find a particularly soft place for a siesta. Another lamb climbed on his mother and then curled up on her soft coat of wool. The old sheep, stretched out on the ground, paid absolutely no attention to her youngster's antics.

The little pigs are now "graduating" from the nursery into the kindergarten class. All of them are just starting to eat a little shelled corn each day. This means that they'll soon be feeding just like all the grown-up pigs around the place.

The recent warm weather opened up the ice on the Fox river. You can see many more stretches of open water than were visible a couple of weeks ago.

Herman Guenther continues to keep busy on the job of hauling manure to the pastures, which are going to be reseeded this spring. Ed Johnson and Charles Sleezer were busy all morning putting up fencing. In the afternoon they got out their pitchforks and put away three loads of hay for feeding the stock. All of this hay had to be hauled from the north part of the farm down to the feed lots on the other side of the property. It takes a lot of hay for the "bald-faced" steers. They were given 3,600 pounds of it today and, in addition, 550 pounds of corn.

QUAKES PERSIST, LEAVING 5 FOOT CRACKS IN UTAH

Salt Lake City, Utah, March 13.—(AP)—Mother earth continued her rumbling along the shaky subterranean faults of northern Utah today. Fissures one to five feet wide appeared in the ground in Boxelder county and phenomenal hot and cold springs burst forth, although the tremors were slight. A man injured in a ditch yesterday died today.

Dr. Frederick J. Pack of the geology department of the University of Utah and other experts left for the Locomotive Springs district to study faults which apparently caused the disturbances.

Dr. Pack was advised that the land in Hansel valley, near Locomotive Springs, dropped several feet and that a shower of boulders from the surrounding hills bombarded the uninhabited valley.

An old spring at Cosmo, dry for 13 years, spouted a stream of water during the tremors early today, railroad employés reported. They said some of the large fissures which appeared in the ground spouted warm water and others cold.

PRINCE OF NEPAL DENIES HE WILL MARRY ACTRESS

PARIS, March 13.—(AP)—Prince Vishnu of Nepal today repeated a denial that he is going to marry Sandra Rambo, an American actress. He issued a statement saying he is going to Genoa soon to meet his wife, the princess of Nepal, and their child, and accompany them to London for the season.

"The rumor the prince is going to marry a Hollywood actress seems therefore without foundation," the statement said.

Miss Rambo, who is staying at the same hotel, refused to comment. When the actress sailed from New York Feb. 1 she said she would meet the prince in Genoa and marry him in London.

Police Ordered to Guard Milk Depots More Closely

Following the bombing of a cut rate milk depot at 2954 East 89th street early yesterday, Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker yesterday ordered all detective squads to guard closely the depots in their districts. Yesterday's blast was felt in the South Chicago police station, across the street, where policemen were flung to the floor. No trace could be found of the bombers. The bombing was the third which has occurred in cut rate milk stores and dairy companies since Jan. 1. Damage was estimated at $100.

TARZAN' WEISSMULLER GOES FOR REAL RIDE ON RHINOCEROS' BACK

Hollywood, Cal., March 13.—[Special.]—Johnny Weissmuller, who plays "Tarzan" in the movies, ran into the inclosure of Mary, 3,000 pound rhinoceros, this afternoon and after dodging her plunges four times, vaulted on the creature's back and rode her. It had been planned to do the scene by trick photography.

George Emerson, "big animal" man borrowed from the circuses as a trainer, said, "I never heard of a trainer or any other man ever riding a rhinoceros before."

Mary previously had injured two men during the picture "Tarzan and His Mate." In her charges today she chased several of the four trainers who "stood by," completely out of the stockade.

With a fixed and unswerving determination on the part of the Directors of The Western and Southern Life Insurance Company to so administer its affairs as to make its name a symbol of strength, security and safety, the financial statement herein is presented as a manifestation of its PROGRESS.

Despite three years of economic onslaught on security values, the high grade and character of our assets has enabled us to meet all demands and obligations as presented, and without raising premium rates or the sacrifice of a single security, and is conclusive proof to our policyholders of the safety and security of their insurance investments in The Western and Southern.

Our bonds consist solely of United States governments and choicest municipals, all carried at their amortized value and with but $1,887 of delinquent interest on a total bond investment of $22,556,000 as of December 31, 1933.

Our real estate is carried at a figure which represents a forced sale value, with a practice of charging off each year sufficient to bring the net rental return to a 5% basis.

With such proved assets, demonstrative of sound and conservative investment policy and with increasing evidence of recovery most apparent, The Western and Southern looks forward to the coming year with confidence and invites your consideration of it as a Dependable Repository for your Life Insurance coverage. To Assure Financial Safety Insure in The Western and Southern Life

Financial statements are scrutinized with keen interest during periods of economic depression. It is therefore gratifying to present a statement revealing a condition of financial strength not excelled by any life insurance company in the United States.

The lowest point in the financial crisis which culminated in the bank holiday marked the most difficult test to which life insurance has ever been subjected. With practically all other sources of money frozen tight, business was threatened with total paralysis, while family financing tended toward a return to primitive bartering. This situation resulted in an unprecedented demand for cash and loans on outstanding life insurance policies.

In this, the most severe financial emergency in history, The Western and Southern met every policy obligation promptly and in full. This accomplishment was not only of inestimable value to our policyholders, but most convincing proof of financial stability in any crisis.

PURE MILK GROUP PUTS OFF DIRECT SELLING SYSTEM

Members Ask for Time to Study Plan.

Delegates to the annual meeting of the Pure Milk association, held in the Auditorium theater and hotel yesterday, postponed indefinitly the consideration of a plan whereby the association would purchase the milk from its members instead of serving merely as an agency for its sale. Seven thousand farmers and their wives, many of them from outlying points in the Chicago milk shed, attended the meeting.

The plan was introduced by Don Geyer, manager of the association, as a proposed amendment to the cooperative membership agreement. It provided that the association would purchase all its milk from the members, paying them pro rata from the sales to dealers. The surplus milk would be sold or manufactured into dairy products as the association officials saw fit.

Ask Time to Study Plan.

Most of 385 delegates from the 15 districts in the Chicago milk shed said they did not fully understand the plan and asked for sufficient time to study it.

The delegates, voting as units from their districts, tabled immediate consideration of the plan by a vote of nine districts to six. It was indicated that the proposed amendment may be considered at a special meeting or at the next annual meeting.

Mr. Geyer explained that if the amendment were adopted it would necessitate the suspension of the present agency agreement with the 18,000 members and the signing of new contracts with the individual members. The plan will never be put into operation unless a large majority of the members agree to it, he said. It would permit the association to act as a direct buying and selling agency instead of a bargaining organization for its members.

Many Delegates Walk Out.

Resentment by Cook county delegates at the redistricting plan put into effect by the association at the start of the year caused a walkout of many of these delegates at the noon session yesterday. The Cook county and Du Page districts were merged into District 11, resulting in the elimination of Louis Pohlman of Palatine as Cook county director. John Case of Naperville in Du Page county is director for the entire district. Most of the 15 delegates from Cook county in the district left the meeting while the delegates were being certified. They returned later and participated in the balloting on the proposed amendment.

Mr. Geyer reported that the 18,000 members did business totaling $21,387,048.25 in 1933. The association marketed 1,120,316,242 pounds of fluid milk and 208,528,352 pounds of milk manufactured into other products. The volume was 7,000,000 pounds less than in 1932.

Two resolutions were adopted by the delegates at the close of the meeting. One of the resolutions stated that Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace should be requested to restore milk prices to the parity existing in the years 1909 to 1914 between these prices and the prices of other products bought and sold by farmers. This would mean that the ratio between the price of milk and, for instance, a tractor purchased by the farmer should be the same now as in the previous five year period. It could be effected by Secretary Wallace through the Agricultural Adjustment administration which operates here through the Chicago milk license setting the minimum price at which farmers sell milk.

Directors Meet Today.

The second resolution provided that every member of the association who used substitutes for butter in his home should be penalized by losing compensation for five pounds of his dairy milk output for every pound of butter substitute used.

The members of the association were returning to their homes last night. The directors will hold a meeting today at their offices in the Transportation building, at which officers for the coming year will be elected.

Among the speakers at the meeting yesterday was Fred Sexauer, president of the New York Dairymen's league. He described the benefits of the cooperative in New York and said the forming of similar organizations would be the only means for the farmers to maintain their strength as individuals.

MAN AND FAMILY GET U. S. HELP WHEN TOWNSHIP FAILS

South Bend, Ind., March 13.—[Special.]—Uncle Sam stepped in today to see that "the man without a township" does not go hungry.

George Ferris, a resident of Marshall county, told Charles B. Kahler, federal poor relief director here, that he has moved so many times in the last four years that he has no legal residence.

When township trustees refused to give him relief for his family he applied to the federal government. Kahler took steps to find Ferris a CWA job and also to see that his family gets immediate aid.

SAYS CITY GIRLS CAN GET HEALTH TIPS FROM FARM

The time is coming when the city woman will turn to her farm woman neighbor for pointers on how to live healthy lives, according to Mrs. A. B. McConnell of Woodstock, who addressed the women's luncheon of the Pure Milk association in the Congress hotel yesterday. The luncheon was attended chiefly by farm women who applauded vigorously when the speaker added:

"The farm may be a difficult place to earn a living, but it is the finest place on earth to live. The farmers are all that is left of pioneer life, and they are sincere and steadfast citizens."

Mrs. McConnell, pointing out the values of the Pure Milk association, urged the women to use their own dairy products liberally in their homes.

Other speakers were Robert Balderston of the National Dairy council, who advised the women to aid the association's work by acquainting their neighbors with its purpose, and Mrs. Wilbur Fribley, president of the Chicago Housewives league, who reviewed the campaign for pure milk in Chicago since 1910.

She will marry Victor Augustus Seymour Egan of London, who is described in the register as the divorced husband of Florence Zita Egan, 59 years old, and of independent means. Miss Ferguson is described as Elsie Ferguson Worlock, formerly the wife of Frederick Worlock, from whom she has obtained a divorce. Her age was given as 49.

Miss Ferguson today said she has left the stage for good. She has made a number of films, including "Outcast" and "Scarlet Pages."

[Miss Ferguson's first husband was Frederick C. Hoey, heir to the president of the Adams Express company. Husband No. 2 was Thomas B. MILK SHED CHIEF TESTIFIES DAIRY VIOLATED CODE

Lombard Dealer Accused at Hearing.

Frank Baker, administrator for the Chicago milk shed, was the chief witness yesterday against Lloyd V. Shissler, a milk dealer in Lombard, who is charged with nine specific violations of the new Chicago milk marketing license. The hearing on the charges, the first of its kind, is being held in the United States Customs building at 610 South Canal street.

Administrator Baker was the first of eighteen witnesses to appear before Elmer D. Hayes, chief attorney for the license enforcing division of the Agricultural Adjustment administration, who is presiding over the inquiry. Baker testified Shissler failed to file required reports with the AAA, has no permit to purchase milk from producers outside the Chicago market, and has engaged in violation of the license in interstate commerce by purchasing milk from Wisconsin producers.

Ample Notice Given.

The charges against Shissler are based on disregard of these three principal features of the marketing license. Three charges also have been lodged against the People's Dairy of Cicero, of which Shissler is president. Following completion of the testimony against Shissler as an individual, a hearing is to be held on the alleged violation of the Cicero dairy.

Baker's testimony was supported by five clerks in his office, who said Shissler had receivd ample notice of the marketing license and had failed to reply to requests for reports.

Following this testimony W. Carroll Hunter and Julian de Bruyun Kops, Washington AAA attorneys, resumed questioning of farmers from the vicinity of Walworth, Wis., in an effort to show that they sold their milk to Shissler. Eleven farmers, questioned at the first hearing Monday, denied they knew to whom the milk was sold, except that it was delivered at a point near Walworth to a truck which bore Schissler's name.

Exasperated by Farmers.

A dozen more farmers, who appeared during the day, were no more communicative. Attorney Hayes expressed exasperation at the testimony of the farmers, declaring he knew they did not wish to lose their Chicago market, but that they were balking the government's efforts to establish a fair price for their milk.

Attorney Hayes demanded that E. L. Bost of Harvard, Ill., a member of the sales committee of the Farmers' Milk association, tell him whether the milk was sold to Shissler. Bost readily admitted the sales. Bost said he had aided in the negotiations through which the Walworth farmers sold their milk to Shissler and detailed the negotiations betwen a farmers' group and the dairyman. These began in January, he said, and were concluded before the marketing license became effective Feb. 5.

The day's hearing concluded with the testimony of two Chicago dairymen, Joseph Heritka, 1739 West 19th street, and Anthony Wencel, 2380 Blue Island avenue, who said Shissler had declared himself against the marketing license at a meeting in the Morrison hotel Feb. 14. One of the charges against Shissler is that he openly and notoriously announced his intention of not abiding by the license.

Following his appearance at the hearing Mr. Baker made an address before the Pure Milk association at the Auditorium hotel, in which he commented on the hearing. He said the AAA feels "if a conviction is obtained in the Shissler case, Mr. Shissler will be properly handled and put out of business."

It was reported that Washington AAA officials are preparing to get court injunctions forbidding any proved violators of the marketing license to operate. Such injunctions, it was said, could be obtained within a few hours after distributors have been found to be violators.

H. I. HARRIMAN FEARS FUTURE EXPENSE OF FEDERAL AID PLANS

Nashville, Tenn., March 13.—(AP)—"The two outstanding dangers in our present situation," Henry I. Harriman, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, said today, "are the growth of burocratic control of business and the unwise expenditure of public money beyond the proper ability of the country to repay."

He told the Nashville Chamber of Commerce:

"If the present emergency program, with its huge public expenditures, is to end, as the President hopes, in the fiscal year 1934-'35, and if we have a balanced budget in the succeeding year and soon thereafter begin to reduce our national indebtedness, the problem is simple.

"If, on the other hand, those now receiving the aid of government come to regard such assistance as permanent, and if our unemployed are not restored to work in private industry, then we may look with apprehension to the future."

LAURA LA PLANTE OF FILMS SUES IN RIGA FOR DIVORCE

"Too Good Pals to Stay Married," She Says.

BY JOHN STEELE.

LONDON, March 13.—Laura La Plante, film actress, announced here today that she is seeking a divorce from her husband, William Seiter, because they are too good friends to be married. Seiter is a Hollywood movie director.

Laura said she filed the divorce suit in Riga, Latvia, on grounds of incompatibility and that the papers were served on her husband today. She referred to a cabled message in which her husband declared her to be "the most wonderful girl in the world" when the papers were served on him.

"I know that he is very sincere," she said. "It is very sweet of him to be so kind, but I never expected anything else."

Miss La Plante explained that she has been told that a divorce could be obtained easily in Riga, so she made a secret trip there.

"It was all very strange," she went on. "I saw an attorney, who produced various documents, and I signed them in the presence of a notary. Then the papers were sent to my husband."

She expects the divorce to be granted immediately after receipt of her husband's signed waiver from Hollywood.

Laura reiterated that she and her husband were "too good pals to be married. There have been no quarrels and no miserable situations, but I am sure that we can find greater happiness."

JAPAN IS SEEN AS BIG U. S. TRADE RIVAL OF FUTURE

Nippon Invades Occident with Cheap Goods.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, March 13.—Some twenty or thirty countries have raised tariff barriers against Japanese manufactured products, but this will not, except temporarily, block Japanese competition in the markets of the world. Japanese industrialism has arrived and the world must adjust itself to the situation, whether it likes it or not.

It means much stiffer competition for American manufacturers seeking to open new markets for exports or to regain old ones, which were lost during the depression years.

American manufacturers and American laborers, up to the present, have been able to observe this growing Japanese industrialism as an abstract problem because, with the exception of a few lines, such as rubber shoes and boots, electric light bulbs, matches and tuna fish, the Americans have not been affected.

Invade American Sphere.

But now that Japanese manufacturers have begun to invade South and Central America and other fields heretofore regarded as the American sphere, it is likely that there will be a flareup somewhat as is now occurring in the dominions and dependencies of the far flung British empire.

The first question is: how has Japan been able so suddenly to overwhelm the world with its low priced goods?

The answer to this question is long and involved, but briefly, there has been nothing "sudden" about Japanese industrial development or world wide commercial expansion. It has been growing for many years and Americans, through their investments, establishment of branch factories, and loans, particularly in the development of the electrical industry in Japan, have had much to do with it.

Up to the present Japanese and American industries have been complementary rather than competitive, meaning that the two countries occupied different fields. Hence, it was highly advantageous for Americans to supply Japan with machinery for its industrial development, because this stimulated American industry in two ways. It created a market for machinery, and, in some lines, such as the cotton industry, it stimulated a tremendous market for cotton grown in the southern states.

Actually, it meant little to the cotton grower in Mississippi, Louisiana, or Texas, whether he sold to British mills in Manchester, England, or Japanese mills in Osaka. The competition of Manchester and Osaka probably helped the price of cotton, for the competition has been keen, almost to the extent of a life and death struggle. In the past two years Osaka has forged ahead of Manchester, hence there is more American cotton now going west through the Panama canal toward Japan than there is going east to England.

Stimulates Cotton Sales.

The British naturally feel this most keenly, but, as stated, the American has been able to observe the situation more or less complacently, for the competition of Manchester and Osaka has stimulated the consumption of cotton.

In the long run Osaka may become a better market for American cotton than Manchester has been because the British empire produces cotton in India and Egypt. Japan produces little cotton and despite heavy expenditures in Manchukuo to stimulate cotton culture is not likely to produce any large quantities owing to climatic conditions.

The initial outstanding reason for the present outcry over the world regarding Japanese competition is the depressed value of the Japanese monetary unit, the yen, originally valued at 49 cents in United States gold, but now worth slightly less than 30 cents.

Japan went off the gold standard almost simultaneously with Great Britain. Suspicion is held in some places that it was done in collusion. But the Japanese seem to have been able to take advantage of cheap money to better effect than Great Britain has—and in Britain's own markets!

Another reason for the sudden appearance of Japanese low priced merchandise in the world markets has been the disturbed political conditions in the far east as a result of Japan's military invasion of Manchuria, which precipitated a boycott of Japanese merchandise not only in China, which is Japan's second best market, but also throughout the south seas, including the Straits Settlements, Singapore, Malay States, Dutch Indies, and, to a certain extent, even in the Philippines, where Chinese retail merchants controled the distribution. They ceased handling Japanese goods and then later on came the anti-Japanese tariff duties in British India.

As a result of its loss of far eastern markets Japan had to turn to occidental markets or colonial markets heretofore dominated by European countries. And the Japanese were lucky in finding these occidental markets ready for their invasion, for the world-wide economic depression had reduced the purchasing power of millions of people who previously had been customers of merchants and manufacturers of America, Britain, Germany, France, Czechoslovakia, and Italy.

The English factory hand, because of reduced pay, might not have been able to purchase a British made shirt retailed at four shillings, but he could afford a Japanese made one at two shillings or possibly only one. The Japanese thus found millions of customers all over the world waiting for their low priced merchandise, and they made the most of the opportunity.

Export Men See Brighter Future for World Trade

New York, March 13.—[Special.]—A marked improvement in export trade, with still brighter hopes for the future, was noted tonight by Earl W. Linscheid, president of the Export Managers' club of New York, who presided at a dinner of the club.

A letter from President Roosevelt, stressing the importance of foreign trade, was read. In it he said:

"Such meetings as yours give heartening evidence of the will of American business to coöperate in the solution of the problems of world trade. Promoting a mutually advantageous exchange of goods between the United States and other nations is a vital part of our recovery program and, as you are aware, it is a matter to which I am giving particular and immediate attention. The joint efforts of our government and of the progressive business men of America will enable us to attain our objective in restoring American foreign trade.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

Reads Letter from Rainey.

Mr. Linscheid also read a letter from Speaker Henry T. Rainey, predicting that the reciprocal tariff bill sponsored by the President will pass the house with "a nice majority."

Before introducing the speakers of the evening, Frank A. Vanderlip, financier; Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and A. Schoonmaker, export manager of the Republic Steel corporation, Mr. Linscheid briefly reviewed recent events in foreign trade.

"A year ago," he said, "we were down in the valley surrounded by tremendous, canyon-like walls composed of high tariffs, exchange restrictions, and what have you. Since then there has been quite a change in export trade, and Washington has been very active in that regard.

Col. McCormick urged the immediate beginning of our program of market expansion abroad, adding that our diplomatic service, which "has been vastly more social than economic," will have to learn how to go about it.

"The question of developing our tariff structure on the basis of reciprocal treaties doubtless has its difficulties," he said. "But what of it, it's worth while doing. The sooner we get at it, the sooner we will do it and get somewhere.

"While I have not been authorized to speak for anybody but myself, I know the minds of my fellow editors. I know that they are just as eager to develop foreign markets as I am. I am sure that the gentlemen in Washington in charge of our markets wish to extend our markets and wish to find the correct way to do so. We will solve the problem of foreign commerce with great benefit to ourselves and great benefit to those abroad, who need the comforts we have before us."

Makes Suggestions for Agreements.

As examples of two bases on which reciprocal trade agreements might be arranged, Col. McCormick said that those whose products we let in free should treat our products likewise, and suggested the taxing of our tourist traffic to those countries that restrict our imports unduly.

Mr. Vanderlip said that he could not quite agree with the optimistic viewpoint taken by Mr. Linscheid on the foreign trade situation. Foreign cartels, rapidly shifting tariffs and tendencies toward nationalism, all of which have opposed the increase of foreign trade in the past, are "still going on," but "you have turned; there is no doubt about that, and I think you have turned to something that will be considerably better, though not altogether so."

Mr. Vanderlip urged his hearers to concern themselves with larger issues than mere business promotion and to support his bill for the establishment of a governmental monetary authority.

YOU may be one of the thousands of American housewives who are buying coffee that has lost its flavor and become a definite source of nervous irritation.

RICH, full-bodied flavor and healthful stimulation are what you have a right to expect from coffee—but you'll never get them from coffee that is stale.

All stale coffee contains rancid oil. It loses most of its flavor. And sets up an irritation that nags your nerves into a state where petty grievances seem enormous.

Don't imagine you are safe just because you may be buying an expensive brand of coffee! Even high-priced coffees were among the 56 brands purchased and found stale in an investigation covering 16 big cities.

Chase & Sanborn offer you one sure safeguard against stale coffee—their dating system. Every pound is marked clear and large with an expiration date. We watch this Date and see that no can stays on your grocer's shelf after its date has expired.

Perhaps the best type of machine ever built for moistening tobacco. Recently perfected from a model built in our factory and now used in the manufacture of Chesterfield Cigarettes.

This picture shows the machines used to remove the stems from Chesterfield tobaccos.

THIS most modern way of moistening tobacco for stemming—first used in the manufacture of Chesterfields—opens up the pores and puts the tobacco in condition to remove the stems.

The tobacco is put into the wire baskets stems down and enters the long steel ovens where the steam comes up from below, softening the stems without wetting the rest of the leaf.

Everything that modern science knows about, or money can buy, that can make a milder cigarette, a cigarette that tastes better, is used in making Chesterfield.

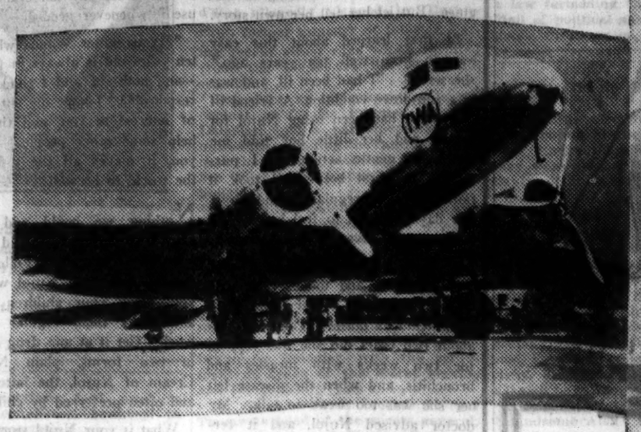
"AN EYE TO THE FUTURE — AN EAR TO THE GROUND"

—this describes General Motors' policy, a policy by which the public is given what it wants in better cars year after year, and yet is safely protected against ill-timed or dubious experiments

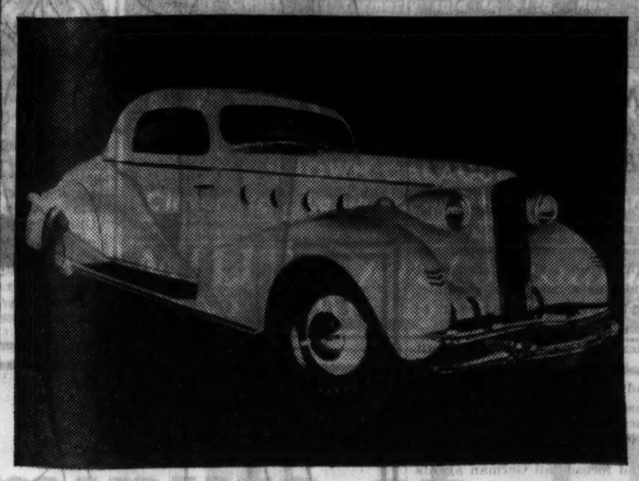
● NEW DOUGLAS TRANSPORT AIRPLANE BUILT FOR GM AFFILIATE



Illustrative of General Motors' familiarity with practical streamlining is the new 200-miles-an-hour Douglas transport airplane, which recently made a coast-to-coast passenger flight in 13 hours 4 minutes 20 seconds. This handsomely streamlined ship was built to specifications of TWA, an organization affiliated with General Motors' aviation interests.

● POPULAR TASTE APPROVES NEW GM STREAMLINE CARS

Verified in advance by more than a million letters sent to car owners asking what they wanted in better cars, the new General Motors streamline styles are today receiving an enthusiastic welcome by the whole public. The new La Salle, for example, illustrated here is being acclaimed universally for its beautiful streamlining.



STREAMLINE TRAINS POWERED BY ENGINES OF GM DESIGN

Both the new two-miles-a-minute streamline Union-Pacific train and the new Burlington Zephyr are powered by the remarkably low-operating-cost Winton engines developed by General Motors engineers.

All in the Family!

YOU hear it said now that the new cars of General Motors are as notable for their streamlined beauty as for their gliding ride and the perfection of their No-Draft Ventilation.

Some remark how accurately their sleek styling meets the public's taste, in a tone tinged by surprise.

Yet, when the facts are known, it is easy to understand why the style of these new cars met the popular taste so accurately.

On the technical side, General Motors has been identified with every recent advance in streamlining. Trains, planes and cars—they were "all in the family."

But we never forget that there is another side to motor car designing—and that is knowing what the public wants in better cars.

So, before our 1934 cars were built, we checked many engineering possibilities and designs with the great family of American car owners—by more than a million letters inviting the public to express its desires.

That is why in Streamlining, as in No-Draft Ventilation and Knee-Action Wheels, General Motors offers advancements in 1934 distinguished not only by their worth but by their popular reception.

HOW GENERAL MOTORS LEADERSHIP KEEPS IN STEP WITH YOUR DESIRES

FIRST—The vast and varied activities in research and experiment pursued by General Motors cover virtually the whole field of transportation. Its work in aero-streamlining over many years, for example, embraces airplanes, automobiles, even railway trains.

SECOND—Through the largest automotive dealer organization in the world General Motors is in close understanding of the public mind; and every year this understanding is verified and double-checked—last year through more than a million questionnaires mailed to owners of all makes of cars.★

THIRD—It is a hard and fast policy of General Motors to suffer its own mistakes, to test and prove every innovation under conditions beyond those of normal use, to protect the buyer against any experiment of doubtful utility or value.

FOURTH—The balanced excellence of General Motors cars in 1934 as in other years includes ample and numerous features such as safe, smart, roomier Fisher Bodies, perfected No-Draft Ventilation, Knee-Action Wheels, smoother, more powerful motors, better brakes, to mention just a few.

This medallion commemorates the twenty-fifth anniversary of General Motors and of its public-minded interest in the advancement of motor transportation

MUSSOLINI LAUDS DOLLFUSS FOR SEIZING VIENNA

Three Power Conference Opens in Rome Today.

ROME, March 13.—(AP)—A firm handshake from Premier Mussolini and congratulations on the way the recent Austrian civil war was put down greeted Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss of Austria tonight when he arrived for a important three premier conference on Danubian economics and politics.

Smiling broadly, Ill Duce took the little chancellor in charge, as he did Premier Julius Goemboes of Hungary last night. Mussolini escorted Dollfuss personally to the Austrian legation.

A crowd outside the railroad station cheered enthusiastically as the two leaders emerged. Goemboes could not be present to greet his colleague because of other engagements.

Conferences Open Today.

On the way to the legation the Italian premier had his first opportunity since the Austrian turmoil last month to express personally his satisfaction with Dollfuss' course of action in driving the Socialists out of Vienna with cannon. It was believed this topic monopolized their brief conversation.

The talks of the three leaders, from which decisions vitally affecting the future of central Europe are expected, will begin tomorrow.

Mussolini and Goemboes conferred at length in the former's office in the Plazzo Venezia today. Well informed circles said the Hungarian premier hoped to sell Italy between 12,000,000 and 20,000,000 bushels of wheat. On a trip last year he disposed of 5,000,000 bushels.

Has Long Talk with Pope.

Later, after a forty minute talk with Pope Pius, in which the two discussed the church situation in Hungary, Premier Goemboes repaired to the Hungarian legation for a dinner in his honor. Many notables attended the function, including Archduke Joseph Francis of Hapsburg.

The three power conferences will continue through Thursday and will be devoted primarily to the economic angles of the troubled Danubian situation. Confidence was expressed by a Fascist spokesman that some sort of agreement to relieve financial stress in Austria and Hungary will develop from the talks. In its larger aspect, this point was considered as an important prelude to effecting political peace in central Europe.

Duce Shapes Developments.

Premier Mussolini has watched—and had a hand in—developments and affairs involving the Danubian states for many months.

Discussions of the delicate Austro-German situation last year between Premier Dollfuss and Premier Mussolini were called the first step in the latter's attempts to solve the Balkan problem.

Italian newspapers at that time said Il Duce's program included three steps:

To better the commercial relations between Austria and Hungary.

To create new economic relations between these two countries and the little entente—Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Jugo-Slavia.

The entrance of both Germany and Italy into this general commercial accord.

Behind this program, observers believed, was a desire to prevent a union of Austria and Germany and the belief that an economically independent Austria will have fewer temptations to become a political dependent of Germany.

Heimwehr Calls Meeting.

VIENNA, March 13.—(AP)—Heimwehr leaders from all parts of Austria will gather here tomorrow for an extraordinary conference whose convocation was considered especially significant in view of Chancellor Dollfuss' absence in Rome.

The meeting of the home guardsmen was originally scheduled for March 17, when, it was unofficially reported, the leaders would formulate a demand that all armed forces, including the army, be placed under Emil Fey, vice chancellor, minister of security, and heimwehr chieftian.

The sudden appointment of Prince Schoeberg-Hartenstein as minister of defense during the time Dollfuss is in Rome conferring with Premier Mussolini and Premier Goemboes of Hungary, however, introduced a new element into the situation and the conference date was moved up.

Recalls War on Socialists.

Observers emphasized that Dollfuss will be busy in Rome tomorrow and recalled the chancellor's visit several weeks ago to Budapest, during which time Fey started an anti-Socialist drive that resulted in civil war.

In some quarters the appointment of Prince Schoeberg-Hartenstein as defense minister was interpreted as a move to block certain plans of Maj. Fey.

Recent speeches by Maj. Fey and Prince Ernest Rudiger von Starhemberg, heimwehr commander, were regarded by some as significant and, possibly, as predictions. Both emphasized that the heimwehr still "has much to do."

Fey asserted that "perhaps there are still many hard battles before Austria stands high, before Austria is again free and again full of honor and victorious."

There were rumors, meanwhile, that army units were massing between Vienna and the Czechoslovakian border and that Prince Schoeberg-Hartenstein was safeguarding Vienna against a possible heimwehr march on the capital.

Former Kaiser May Return to Germany, His Aids Say

DOORN, Holland, March 13.—(AP)—The return to Germany of former Kaiser Wilhelm from his exile home here was viewed as a possibility today following a Hohenzollern family council.

Financial difficulties confronting the royal family as a result of the German government's ban on the export of money from Germany except in exchange for goods were understood to be the main topic at the parley.

Under the circumstances, it was said in circles close to the ex-kaiser's household, his return to his native land after nearly 16 years of absence was not impossible.

Several Generals Present.

At the conference were Wilhelm, his wife, Princess Hermine; the former monarch's two sons, Prince Eitel Frederick and Prince August Wilhelm, and several generals, intimate advisers of the kaiser.

Hitherto the Hohenzollerns have received incomes from various German sources, but it was reported that the Hitler régime is unwilling to make an exception in the money export ban in the case of Wilhelm.

Rumors that the ex-kaiser might return were revived last year when Hermine, his second wife, returned to Berlin to open a charity bazaar.

RECALL PRAISE OF HITLER.

The former kaiser was quoted last year as saying Hitler's accession to power was a step "in the right direction," but that he would return to Germany only if asked.

Monarchist sentiment in Germany apparently is divided between the former emperor and offering of the crown to the former crown prince, Frederick Wilhelm; to his oldest son, Wilhelm, or to Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria. Some object to the ex-kaiser's restoration on grounds of his age.

Talk of restoration, however, has drawn disapproval from the Nazis of late. Dr. Wilhelm Frick, minister of the interior, last month ordered the dissolution of all monarchist societies. "New organizations have been springing up with an aim of thwarting the Nazi movement," he said. Another Hitler aid accused the former emperor of treason in a letter concerning the German political situation.

ITALY AND HUNGARY ACCUSED IN NEW ARMS SMUGGLING SCANDAL

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

VIENNA, March 13.—Jugo-slavian and Czechoslovakian newspapers today published reports of alleged arms smuggling from Italy to Hungary by way of Austria.

The Belgrade newspaper Politika said the present case was far more important than the similar affairs at St. Gotthard and Hirtenburg. It said two carloads of gas masks, twenty-six heavy field guns, two carloads of howitzers and a large amount of other war materials had passed through Austria from Italy to Hungary. Strong Fascist heimwehr groups, it said, guarded the cars at every station along the Austrian railways.

These reports were flatly denied tonight by the Austrian and Hungarian governments and by the semi-official Italian news agency, Stefani.

FRENCH PAPER CHARGES NAZI 'NEWS BOYCOTT'

PARIS, March 13.—(AP)—The newspaper Petit Parisien today reiterated charges that German Nazis were conducting a huge, secret propaganda campaign abroad, and published what it described as a copy of a pamphlet of confidential instructions sent to Nazi propaganda agents.

The text, as printed by the Petit Parisien, instructed the agents to withdraw advertising from newspapers which used anti-German news agency dispatches, declared that it had proved to be "impossible" to establish relations of any sort with the Associated Press, and forbade all German agents abroad to make any contacts with the managers of the Associated Press.

"The Associated Press," the text, as published, declares, "shows toward the new evolution of Germany and the National Socialist [Nazi] government's demands in the matter of foreign policy a lack of understanding which must be considered as deliberate hostility."

Berlin Denies Story.

BERLIN, March 13.—(AP)—Foreign office circles today called a "secret Nazi document" published in the Petit Parisien of Paris a fraud, ascribing the authorship to persons wilfully trying to discredit Germany abroad.

LORD WALERAN'S ROMANCE GOES ON THE ROCKS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 13.—Lord Waleran, one of the youngest British peers, is seeking a divorce from Lady Waleran, whom he married in June, 1932.

Lord Waleran, who is 28, is a motorist and flyer. He acted as assistant private secretary to the governor general of New Zealand from 1927 to 1930. He succeeded his grandfather, the first baron, in 1925.

Lady Waleran is 21. Before her marriage she was Miss Margaret Patricia Blackader, only daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Gordon Blackader of Montreal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

FREIBURG, Germany, March 13.—The Vatican's ban on books dealing with race and religion by German writers evoked a German retort today. Freiburg booksellers decided to ban Cardinal Michel Faulhaber's book, "Judaism, Christianity and Germanism." The prohibition was instigated by the local Hitler youth movement. The booksellers explained that the ban was imposed because the cardinal wrote of the "notorious laziness and drunkenness of the old Teutons, thus grossly defaming our race."

CRIMINAL COURT.

Raymond Campione, manslaughter, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary; Sylvester Johnson, attempted robbery, sentenced to 1 to 5 years in the penitentiary, by Judge Michael Feinberg.

Dominick Cuda, 48 years old, owner of a gasoline station in Chicago Heights, was acquitted by a jury in Judge Harry B. Miller's court yesterday of the murder of Harold Turner, 30 years old, a rival filling station owner. The killing occurred last Oct. 26 at Cuda's filling station during a quarrel over the ownership of an air compressor.

Although the prosecution showed that Turner had a writ of replevin for the compressor, the jury acquitted Cuda on a self-defense plea made by Attorneys Harold Levy and Albert Bucciere. Cuda shot Turner six times, but contended that Turner had made a move as if to draw a gun. Constable Jacob Albrecht, who was present to serve the replevin writ, witnessed the shooting.

Mrs. Comstock Pays Few Pennies for the Governor

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 13.—[Special.]—It is the custom since the sales tax, for merchants in the University of Michigan campus area, to ask for "two or three cents for the governor," when a patron forgets the tax. Recently a woman made a purchase in a store here. She forgot and was asked for "two or three cents for the governor." She quickly paid the tax. Then she asked the merchant to reserve a magazine for her. "My name" she said, "is Mrs. William Comstock." Mr. Comstock is Michigan's governor.

A TRUE STORY By A MOTHER

IT was an attack of serious illness that came to Mrs. Ruth Crownover, of 544 St. Clair Avenue, Jackson, Michigan, as a blessing in disguise. But let her tell her own story.

"I first learned about this easy way to keep well ten years ago," she writes. "I had been ill, and was in a run-down condition. A friend of mine who had been using Nujol for herself and her little boy told me about its gentle action, so I purchased my first bottle and took it faithfully and regularly, and in a few days I began to feel better, and in a short time was back at my work.

"I continued to use Nujol off and on as needed, and took it regularly both before and after my little daughter was born. When she was about two years old she was very ill for two weeks with measles and bronchitis, and when the disease left her she was too weak to talk. My doctor advised Nujol, and it certainly worked fine. We have both used it whenever we have needed it ever since.

"I think Nujol is a remarkable product, and far superior to harsh pills and cathartics, which certainly do seem to upset the stomach and irritate the bowels. Evidently Nujol doesn't cause any habit and one can use it whenever needed.

"My daughter Wanda who is now ten years old is always in fine health—and both she and I think Nujol is responsible. I hope my letter may be of interest to you, and that it will help some other people. I can tell you, it makes all the difference in the world to be well!"

Nothing we could add to Mrs. Crownover's letter would make it any more convincing. Follow her example. See what Nujol will do for you—bring your children up on it and make them regular as clockwork. Get it at any drug store, now in two forms, plain Nujol and Cream of Nujol, the latter flavored and often preferred by children.

What is your Nujol story? If you have been using Nujol for ten years or more, if you are bringing up your children on it, tell us. Address Stanco Incorporated, 2 Park Avenue, New York City.

Bad Breath Needs Medicine Doctors Say

Don't fool yourself into believing that you are secure simply because a rinse or gargle with a mouthwash leaves your mouth tingling with a clean, pleasant taste.

To get rid of bad breath and taste you must get at the root of the trouble. That's in your stomach if you're an average person. Excess acids ferment foods, form obnoxious gases that rise up into the mouth and cause embarrassment.

So naturally the easiest, surest way to get relief is to get at the root of the trouble. Doctors advise a teaspoonful of BiSoDoL in water morning and night.

This pleasant-tasting blend of six valuable digestive remedies works wonders. It swiftly neutralizes excess acids, soothes and heals the inflamed mucous membranes. And keeps your stomach so settled and sweet that you are sure of waking up in the morning with a clean, pleasant taste and certain of having a sweet, inconspicuous breath all day!

Don't forget that your breath is only as sweet as your stomach and nothing can keep the stomach any sweeter than BiSoDoL. Try it. Also when you have indigestion, gas heartburn or any other distressing acid trouble take BiSoDoL. It's the improved quicker-acting way to get rid of pain and discomfort that doctors have used for many years with remarkable success. All druggists sell it for only 25c a package.

NAZIS TO PLACE STATE IN CONTROL OF ALL INDUSTRY

Hitlerites to Put Curb on Competition.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 13.—Kurt Schmitt, Chancellor Hitler's minister of economics, today unfolded details of a new plan to subordinate German industry and trade to the Nazi state.

Schmitt revealed the program to a conference of business and industrial leaders as one which will eliminate overlapping and wasteful competition. The entire system will be of, by, and for the state, or Nazi party.

The economics chief pointed out that leadership in industry will henceforth be taken by what he described as "sound Nazis." He conceded that a "sound Nazi" might not necessarily be a sound industrial leader, and he admitted that men sound in fundamentals of both the Nazi party and economics might be hard to find. He explained, however, that the problem would be solved by education.

"Training will do much," he said.

Schmitt to Be Supreme Power.

Under the new plan Schmitt will have power to do as he likes with the present business and industrial organizations. He may eliminate, merge, or dissolve any or all of them. He may appoint or discharge their leaders.

Schmitt, in other words, has been given power to do anything to the economic system of Germany which will further the process of Nazification and allow Nazi ideals to permeate through all industry.

Schmitt explained his mission like this:

"Honest competition must stay, but it is to be controled by strong leadership, focused magnetlike upon the supreme goal of commonweal and service to the nation."

Business leaders must take full responsibility for their undertakings, Schmitt said. Courts of honor will be established to enforce fair competition. Business leaders must submit themselves once a year to a vote of confidence by those whom they direct.

12 Groups of Industries.

The industries of the nation will be divided into 12 main groups, independent of state boundaries. Over all these groups will be Philip Kessler, chairman of the reich's electrical federation, with Count Ruediger von der Goltz as second in command.

The groups will be: Mining; machinery; metal production; stone, wood and glass; chemicals, oils and paper; leather and textiles; food products; handicrafts; commerce; banking; insurance; transportation.

Among other group leaders there will be Gustav Krupp von Bohlen-Halbach and Albert Voegler. The former will head the mining division, the latter the chemicals, oils, and paper class.

NAZIS JAIL TWO FOR EXTORTING $585 FROM JEW

DARMSTADT, Germany, March 13.—(AP)—A young Nazi husband and wife were sentenced to prison by local emergency court today on charges of extorting $585 from a Jewish merchant by telling him atrocity stories.

The woman, as the chief culprit, was sentenced to 30 months in the penitentiary. Her husband was given 12.

The state's attorney emphasized that the "world must be shown with this punishment that honorable Jews are protected in Germany from such horrid traitors and parasites." The court declined to divulge the names of the principals.

AMERICAN BORN OFFICIAL DENIES FRENCH 'PLOT'

Two Police Heads Fired in Stavisky Probe.

PARIS, March 13.—(AP)—The American born Raymond Patenotre, whose wealth comes largely from the United States, denied vehemently today that he had been invited to finance a coup d'état allegedly planned by Eugene Frot, former minister of interior, during recent street riots which resulted from the $60,000,000 Stavisky bond scandal.

Patenotre, an undersecretary in the cabinet of former Premier Edouard Daladier, told a parliamentary committee investigating the fatal disorders that the charges made by former Police Chief Jean Chiappe were news to him.

At no time, Patenotre insisted, was he solicited to furnish money or arms to help the alleged coup. Chiappe had declared Patenotre had refused to give Frot funds.

Two Police Heads Fired.

M. Geay, who succeeded Georges Thome as head of the surete general, was replaced, and Xavier Guichard, head of the judiciary police, was retired. They were charged with laxity toward the late Serge Stavisky, central figure in the Bayonne pawnshop scandal.

While the 40 deputies pushed their investigation of the government's actions during the riots, police believed they were getting on the trail of the slayer of Judge Albert Prince, key witness in the Stavisky fiasco.

Find Prince Was Drugged.

A new autopsy today on Prince, whose body had been exhumed, revealed that the magistrate was killed by a train Feb. 20 after apparently being drugged. Their findings were accepted as definitly proving murder.

A list of his checks revealed that "Handsome Alex" had paid out, day after day, thousands and thousands of francs. Many of them were "bearer" checks, one of which was for a million francs.

ESTONIA PUTS DOWN REVOLT BY FASCISTS; LEADERS ARRESTED

TALLINN, Estonia, March 13.—(AP)—An attempt by former soldiers, banded together as "the liberty warriors," to seize the government has been squelched, officials announced today.

Quiet prevails, the government statement added, following suppression of the uprising last night. Various headquarters of the organization were closed and leaders were arrested.

Finland Bars Political Shirts.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, March 13.—(AP)—After the violent suppression of a Fascist uprising in neighboring Estonia the Finnish diet today adopted a law forbidding the wearing of any kind of political shirts or emblems in public meetings or processions.

PARIS THREATENS TO LAUNCH NEW RACE IN ARMS

PARIS, March 13.—France's answer to the latest British disarmament proposal will confront the United States with the dilemma of watching Europe engage in another arms race, or underwriting Europe's security.

This became apparent following a meeting of the council of ministers today which approved the broad lines of a memorandum which Foreign Minister Louis Barthou will draft this week for transmission to London. The new French thesis is a great deal more than the repetition of the old cry: "No disarmament without security." It amounts to: "Security or rearmament."

In the memorandum France will signify its refusal to sign any limitation convention which legalizes the existing German armaments above the Versailles treaty level. This knocks in the head British and Italian hopes of stabilizing European armies at existing levels. The note will make it clear that not only can France not disarm under present circumstances but also that it cannot sign any agreement which will tie its hands with regard to Germany.

"I only regret that I have but one life to give for my country."
—Nathan Hale.

THE FIRST TEST OF THE NEW DEAL.

After three weeks of the new deal in the air mail, in the course of which ten army pilots lost their lives, the service was suspended. The country was thus temporarily deprived of the only important improvement in postal delivery instituted since the railway mail service was organized.

The New Deal in its entirety is a miscellany of experiments and expedients. Of all of them, the new deal in the air mail is the only one which, by its nature, could be fully tested in a short period. Some time must elapse before the results of the AAA, the NRA, the devalution of the currency and kindred measures can be placed before the American people for appraisal. The cards have been dealt at many tables, but only at the air mail table have they been played to the last trick.

The results are there for any one to see. The usefulness of the air mail is to be narrowed. Ten army pilots have been needlessly sacrificed. The money changers who somehow managed to anticipate the news that the commercial lines would lose their contracts have banked handsome profits. The phenomenal progress of commercial flying in this country has received a severe check and hundreds of men have been thrown out of work in consequence. All of these items are on the debit side. There are as yet no credits.

The tragic failure of the new deal in the air mail does not, of course, prove that the wasteful slaughter of the little pigs, the plowing under of cotton, the repudiation of the government's solemn promise to pay its debts in gold, and all the other hasty improvisations are doomed to produce similarly unexpected and undesired results. But the air mail fiasco does throw a great light upon the expectable consequences of impulsive, inadequately considered government by administrative decree. The fiasco does underline the maxim that haste makes waste. It does emphasize the truth that self-righteousness and emotional fervor are not substitutes for thought and accordingly frequently lead to undesired consequences.

In this connection it is worth remembering that almost without exception every item in the bundle of improvisations called the New Deal was conceived in haste, in an atmosphere of emotional excitement. The measures have been put into operation by a group of men and women who regard themselves as the chosen leaders of the new Zion. Under these circumstances the outcome of the New Deal in its first completed test must be regarded as more than a little significant.

DISARMING THE CRIMINAL.

In the campaign against crime, racketeering, kidnaping, and what have you, admirable as the general purpose is, some mistaken proposals are certain to appear. There are several in the legislation intended to prevent criminals from obtaining firearms. Undoubtedly regulations can and should be adopted to make it more difficult and more hazardous for professional criminals to obtain deadly weapons and there are several bills now before congress which deserve consideration and probably enactment. One of these is Representative McLeod's bill requiring the marking of packages containing pistols, etc., when shipped in interstate commerce, and that in any state where a permit to purchase is required the permit must be shown to the carrier before delivery of the package to the consignee. Another bill introduced by Mr. McLeod makes pistols, revolvers, machine guns and ammunition when in interstate transport subject to local, state or territorial laws in regard to delivery. Whether these measures will be very efficacious we cannot predict, but they at least seem unobjectionable and may be helpful. One principle, however, should never be lost sight of in any legislation of this character, and that is the right of the citizen to bear arms. This is a guaranty of the constitution and an important one, which our zeal for repressing crime should not be permitted to ignore.

But senate bill 885, introduced by Senator Copeland, though it contains desirable provisions, has others which are not. It requires a federal license for every manufacturer of firearms and every dealer therein handling firearms shipped in interstate commerce. Like other measures inspired by confidence in the ability of federal authority to regulate efficiently all the activities of the nation, it provides for an elaborate system of checks and requirements. For example, the manufacturer must keep at least one bullet fired from each firearm of the type defined in the bill—"pistol, revolver or any other firearm capable of being concealed on the person, or a sawed-off shotgun," the bullet to be properly identified and filed. The secretary of commerce is authorized to prescribe the fee to be paid by manufacturers and dealers for the license, and its issuance would be within his discretion, without provision for appeal or review. Suspension or revocation of license would also be within the secretary's discretion.

This measure is criticized by the National Rifle association as imposing unreasonable restrictions likely to put unnecessary difficulties in the way of sportsmen, especially in the rural districts, and to make it unduly difficult for reputable citizens to obtain firearms for their own defense.

The tendency to impose on the federal government more and more responsibilities for policing the nation is going to increase lawbreaking rather than check it, and every measure proposed under this urge should be thoroughly examined as to its practical possibilities. After the nation's experience with the prohibition experiment congress ought to be on guard against proposals to enlarge the duties and powers of the central government. Experiments for the disarmament of criminals should have regard to the rights of law abiding citizens and to the practicability of provisions intended to disarm criminals. Ill considered measures will sacrifice the safety of the law abiding without seriously restraining the lawless.

CONTEMPT AND FREE PRESS IN SOUTH DAKOTA.

Some years ago an official in South Dakota committed a forgery and confessed it. He was thereupon given a very light sentence by a judge. This aroused the indignation of a newspaper, the Aberdeen American-News, which protested against the sentence and compared the punishment of the politician to several penalties imposed by the same judge upon obscure defendants guilty of offenses of somewhat similar legal nature and even less moral turpitude. For this criticism the publisher and the editor of the American-News were brought before another judge, who held them guilty of contempt of court, from which appeal was taken. Whereupon the bar association of Brown county, the jurisdiction in which the proceedings were held, petitioned the Supreme court of South Dakota to refuse the appeal on the ground that no appeal lies from a conviction for contempt. This petition has now been denied by the Supreme court, which will now proceed to review the judgment of the lower court.

This case has had the attention of the committee on freedom of the press of the American Newspaper association, which is supporting the appeal because of the principle involved, but it deserves public attention throughout the country for the same reason. Whether the newspaper concerned was in the opinion of the highest court of South Dakota within the legal bounds of fair comment remains for that tribunal to determine, but every citizen of the United States who recognizes the importance of publicity and criticism as a protection of his rights and a check upon misgovernment will watch the final disposition of this controverry with serious interest. Meanwhile it seems permissible at this stage to express gratification at the refusal of the court to deny the right of review in convictions for contempt. The process of contempt has been extended in recent years to an ominous extent, often with the result of denying the right of trial by jury to citizens charged with seriously punishable offenses. That a judge by employing this process should be able to impose a severe penalty and the defendant be unable to obtain a review of the judgment in a court of review to which even the worst criminal has access would seem, at least to the lay conscience, intolerable. In fact, we can conceive of no proceeding of a judge of first instance in which the right of review should be more certainly insured to a defendant than in a proceeding for contempt.

Meanwhile the part played in this case by the bar association of Brown county deserves, we think, special note. This organization is presumably a representative of the ethics of the legal profession in Brown county, and whether or not its attitude toward the sentence imposed upon the politician for a serious crime confessed is explainable by facts not divulged so far as we know, its effort to prevent a review of contempt judgments calls for rebuke. The Brown County Bar association is, we assume, a constituent of the American Bar association, and we suggest that its conduct in this matter have the attention of the national body. Members of the American bar have recently been heard in indignant protest against the unethical conduct of certain types of practitioners who, they have pointed out, discredit the profession of the law. But in this matter we have not merely individuals but an organization supporting a contention offensive to every consideration of public policy and justice. If this conduct is not deserving of rebuke and of any measures of discipline within the power of the national representative of the legal profession, we cannot conceive of any conduct that could be.

Editorial of the Day

[Illinois State Journal.]

Newspapers are discussing, in a serious way, Representative Clinton Searle's resolution looking to a division of Illinois into two states. The discussion is a waste of editorial work and white paper, but the public may be interested to know what considerations induce such proposals.

Doubtless, in this instance, it is due to what appears to be Chicago's need of a general government with authority to look after affairs in that territory and relief of the downstate from consideration of Cook county's growing legislative problems. Mr. Searle and other supporters of the movement feel that Cook county is monopolizing the attention of the state government to the prejudice of the state at large.

The arguments against division are too well known to require repetition. Every one is familiar, too, with the practical bars which will be encountered, chief of which is Chicago opposition to political segregation. This opposition has heretofore manifested itself in the defeat of liberal charters for Chicago. While it is true that creation of a new state is not comparable with former proposals for a self-governing city, the proportion of voters opposed to any change is not likely to be less.

There is a practical method for setting up local self-government in Chicago. When next a charter is drawn, let Chicago give it popular approval, by referendum, before submitting it to the legislature. Then let the assembly give the measure a flat approval and leave to Chicago the job of patching up new differences. Such differences heretofore have arisen to defeat seemingly satisfactory ordinances after the legislature has acted.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

IT'S FUNNY the way people work over a cross words puzzle or a jig saw picture and then make such a fuss over their income blank. To make the filling out of the income schedule a pleasure and not a dreadful ordeal pretend it's a new kind of puzzle. Say to yourself: "Ha, ha! Now I'm going to solve this thing in record time. My goodness, such fun!" That's the sporting way to do it. That's the way I always do. I worked the thing out that way one year and I got a notice from the collector's office in a couple of weeks saying that by my own figures I owed the government $3,785,983.22 and would I please remit check. Possibly I was laughing too heartily when I was adding up the amount of my income and investments. But it's a good rule. One should keep blithe and happy, merry and gay, under all circumstances. This year I shall play the income tax schedule is a golf game and try to make long drives and keep out of the bunkers and beat bogey and not slice my shots. Just make nice clean sport out of what would otherwise be a mean, heartbreaking chore. And then I'm going down to the collector's office and give myself up. Anyhow, my tax returns always give the people down there a good, hearty laugh, and that's something. And I put 'em in an awful dilemma—they don't know whether to send me to Leavenworth or the home for the feeble-minded.

NOTE FOR A WINDY DAY.

This last mischance has not undone me.
I am too much on guard for that.
But it is long since I heard music
Or wore a feather in my hat,

Or walked alone in windy weather,
Swinging an easy verse to rhyme,
Too many stars and too much moonlight
Were shattered against time.

I think that I will wander walking
And a wide sunset to remember
Before the day goes by.

And when the evening darkens purple
I will walk slowly back again
And see the yellow windows beckon
Their children and their men.

And when my own door widens for me
I will stoop down and touch the gate
Love and desire and hate.

And if a passing stranger hears me
Singing the little charm, why, that
Will be the music I remember,

NANCY SHORES.

THE ARMY SAYS their airmen were not prepared for mail flying because they had never been instructed in flying blind. What! Does the army think that any haughty foreign foe is going to leave its beacons and landing port flares burning if we invade their country during war? And will they send out pilot planes to guide our bombers to the towns and buildings to be blown up? Yes, they will! Lykell! Lykell! Lykell!

AND JAPAN, who has spent hundreds of millions of dollars in preparedness, sends out its very latest fully prepared war boat, an anti-capsize proof torpedo boat, and as soon as it gets in water deep enough the anti-capsize proof torpedo boat promptly capsizes, drowning many of the crew. And if it acts like that in peace times what wouldn't it do in war? Who can tell?

THEY'RE HUNTING now for Mr. Dillinger over in Ohio. But if they catch him he probably won't be lodged in an Indiana jail. There isn't a jail in Indiana that would take Mr. Dillinger in even if he went down on his knees in front of it and begged with tears in his eyes. Let Mr. Dillinger try to get into an Indiana jail after the way he acted at Crown Point. A nice, comfortable, homelike jail is just wasted on Mr. Dillinger; he is lacking in true refinement, and even if they let him back in jail he would probably track his muddy feet all over the carpet and stay out nights and spill soup on the tablecloth and behave just outlandishly. No, Mr. Dillinger will probably land in jail before long if he hasn't already, but don't let him deceive himself with the idea that he's going to get into an Indiana jail. No, indeed. No, indeed. Not unless he gets an ax and breaks in. Of course, in that case, there would be nothing to do about it.

HOMESICKNESS.

I cannot sleep because I miss the roar
Of seas all night beyond deep-shadowed dunes,
Low combers, in the light of pallid moons,
Ah, find some opiate of your inland lore,
To dull the memory of those warm Junes
That blend salt incense during blazing noons
Here are thin spiceless winds that mock our gales,
And grim wide silences of glittering snow
That sear the soul by day till eyesight fails;
With bare-boughed specters, row on leafless row.
If I could sleep—how swift in dreams I'd be

POOR-APPETITE CHILDREN.

CHILDREN'S specialists report that about three-fourths of all the children other than babies brought to them by fond mothers are not really sick. They are poor eaters, finicky eaters, and such, and the parents are afraid they will become sick. The mother has tried her best, has used every guile and persuasion she knows of, has rewarded and punished, has cooked tempting dishes, and has given a variety of medicines. Acknowledging failure and plainly showing her agitation and fears, she consults a physician.

The first task of the doctor is to examine the child thoroughly in search of organic diseases, anemias, tonsillitis, rheumatisms, and evidence of fatigue. In most cases he finds nothing. Then comes the task of convincing the parent that the trouble is functional and the remedy is training.

Immediately the parent flares up. She resents the imputation that she has neglected her child. The physician undertakes to convince her that she is right. She has tried. Unfortunately, she has overtried. What the child needs is a good-sized dose of neglect. He sugarcoats this statement by calling it purposeful neglect. He undertakes to convince the parent that the use of rewards is bad, but employing punishment is worse.

The attitude to take is one of indifference. The child sees no great effort to make his food appealing. Its preparation is a matter of daily routine. Serving the food is even more a matter of indifference. The food is set before the child without comment. There is no persuasion, no salesmanship. The food is not talked up. If the child does not eat the fact is not noticed.

At the end of a certain rather fixed time the tray is removed, without comment except that the bib is removed and the child is told to go on with his play. If there be any particular invitation to eat it should be in the nature of "Come, let us eat," rather than an order or command or even individual invitation.

An even better plan is to put the child in company with other children of the same age. After they have played together long enough to have become acquainted they are invited to the table. They respond in the companionship of the play in which they were engaged just prior to the meal. Within limitations the meal is merely a continuation of the play with its fellowship and enjoyment.

The poor-eating child, placed in a group of normal, playful children and then purposely neglected, will have about the regular amount of appetite and will conform to the eating habits of his associates. After a few meals he will have adopted their foods and their ways of eating. When the habit is fixed the child is cured. But he may not be fixed enough in his new ways to withstand a renewal of the policy of coaxing, tempting, and punishing.

MINOR'S INHERITANCE.

Chicago, March 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—An inheritance was left to a minor who will not be 18 until two years hence. An administrator has been appointed. 1. What constitutes the duties of said administrator? 2. Has he the privilege of taking anything out of a safety deposit box before the will has been filed (3) even though he is co-renter? 4. What disposition is generally made of funds held for a minor until she is of age? 5. Can a guardian be appointed and (6) has a guardian any authority in a case of this kind? 7. When the will is filed who could this minor have represent her? She is unable to hire a lawyer. 8. One of the heirs was left a monthly allowance of $10. Can the administrator give this sum in a lump amount or must he follow the directions of the will to the letter? J. O.

1. He should take possession of the assets, pay the debts and ultimately distribute the proceeds.

2. An administrator is appointed on the theory that there is no will naming an executor. Your present question implies that there is a will and hence that the appointment of the administrator should be set aside in favor of the executor named in the will. If no misrepresentations were made, the court would not appoint a personal representative until after the filing of a will where there is a will.

3. The mere fact that a person has access to a safety box does not give him any right to the contents.

4. Depends on the wording of the instrument under which those funds were held.

5. In general, yes.

6. Yes.

7. It is not clear that there is any necessity for her to spend money on attorney's fees.

8. In general, the wording of the will would control.

CERTIFIED CHECK.

Des Plaines, Ill., March 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I issued a check on June 5, 1931. On June 11 [1] the recipient had it certified. On the same day I received a debit slip from the bank showing that the amount of the certified check had been deducted from my account. On June 12 the bank closed, and when the check was presented for collection payment was refused. Consequently [2] I had to pay the amount of the check. 3. Lately I have been informed that the bank receiver acted in error in not paying this check and that I can collect from the bank on it. Is this so?

H. A. F.

1. At this step the holder of the check had the opportunity to accept cash and elected instead to continue to hold the paper. This released your liability and from that time forward the holder was in the same position as if he had a certificate of deposit of the bank.

2. You are mistaken. You did not have to pay.

3. In general, the mere fact that a payment was made under mistake of law is not a basis for retracing the step. It seems probable that you have no legal remedy, but if a substantial amount is involved you might go over all of the facts as to your payment in a personal interview with an attorney.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY HARWOOD HULL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAN JUAN.—Uncle Sam is extending emergency relief to 360,000 Porto Ricans—60,000 families—at the rate of $1 a week per family, or a fraction of a cent per meal.

Civil works administration projects are furnishing employment to an additional 30,000 heads of families at $1 a day.

So far more than 200,000 persons have applied to the relief administration or the CWA for aid in the form of either work or food. James R. Bourne is head of both activities.

Of the more than 200,000 applications more than 170,000 individual cases have been investigated, and of this number more than 85 per cent have been found to be in actual want. Average monthly income has been found to be less than $15.

Fully 95 per cent of those applying for relief have been found to be heads of families, the records show. Before the work ends Mr. Bourne believes that either work or temporary relief in some form will have reached fully 200,000 families, or more than 1,200,000 out of an island population of 1,600,000.

Emergency relief, started last September, has been merged into the present CWA program, now at its peak. About 25 per cent of those receiving food relief give one day's work in exchange for the $1 food order, records show. The wage for unskilled labor is fixed at 16⅔ cents per hour and the week is limited to 30 hours. Skilled labor, such as carpenters, receives 40 cents an hour.

When the federal emergency relief administration extended its operations to Porto Rico late last year an appropriation of $600,000 was provided, supplemented by $300,000 from the insular government. Before the year closed these funds were found to be so wholly inadequate that Mr. Bourne made an application for work relief for 30,000 under the CWA. Jacob Baker, assistant to Administrator Harry Hopkins, investigated and allowed the application. Under the program approved, funds at the rate of $1,260,000 a month were allowed for January, February, and March. Fully 80 per cent of this is being spent on CWA projects, the balance on some form of more direct relief.

The relief administration was organized with a nucleus of twelve trained social workers, borrowed from the public schools. They had previously been engaged chiefly in rural case work after special training at the University of Porto Rico. From that beginning a staf organization of about 3,000 has been built up, composed almost wholly of Porto Ricans. Staf employés receive an average of $45 monthly.

Selections for the staf were made on the basis of individual need rather than ability, according to Mr. Bourne. Yet the organization has functioned efficiently on a wide range of projects, Mr. Bourne asserts, adding:

"Individually, those employed have shown a capacity for hard work and have demonstrated a high degree of loyalty and self-sacrifice. Despite frequent criticism of laziness and inefficiency, Porto Ricans can and do work."

Mayors and municipal doctors, normally in charge of local relief, have reported to Mr. Bourne that since the present program got under way the January records show fewer applications to them for food and medicine. January retail drug sales doubled over that month two years ago, indicating, municipal officials say, that there is more money with which to buy medicines.

The widespread distribution of wages and relief has been quickly reflected in many lines of business, providing increased demand for American products. One representative of a Chicago manufacturing firm, marketing a wide range of food products, during the first ten days of February booked a larger volume of orders than during the whole of the preceding November and December.

MORE ABOUT SPELLING.

Chicago, March 10.—In a spirit of entire friendliness I urge you to reconsider and abandon those petty irritations which you erroneously define as "simplified" spellings. They are far from that. They complicate greatly the otherwise pleasant task of reading THE TRIBUNE. They annoy, like static in radio, a steel riveter breaking in on you from across the street.

It seems to me that you start on the wrong premise that people spell out words as they read. You know they do not. The fact is, the eye takes in a word as a unit. Certain combinations or sequences of characters have become fixed symbols, instantly, automatically recognized. You assume to be changing the spelling of words. You are really altering symbols so familiar to readers as to be recognizable at sight. The eye becomes confused and the process of reading is slowed down by the intrusion of new and strange combinations.

I am not concerned with the question of roots, derivations, and so forth, which some have argued. The mere manner of spelling is in itself unimportant. Were we inventing brand new symbols for brand new things I would not care what words were adopted or how they were spelled. It would be immaterial whether what we now know as a bird had been labeled a fish, or whether the latter noun had been applied to a flying, feathered thing—and even spelled "phish." But it would now cause utmost perplexity were some publication to start referring to a bird as a "fish," or to a fish as a "bird." It might be explained as a mere revision in spelling. But a revision in spelling can amount to complete destruction of a word's identity.

The eye recognizes instantly that "hammock" is a combination of letters which means a certain type of swing. It does not stop to spell it. There is no reason why that word should not continue forever as the symbol for that swing. On the other hand, the eye does not know what a "hammoc" is. To this day I struggle with your word "aile," for it doesn't even spell what it professes to mean.

You talk about spelling. I do not. I talk of the bigger thing, language, which is not THE TRIBUNE'S own but is the property of millions of people who have been trained in the significance of its written symbols.

I sincerely hope your gifted writer who has been defending your new language as a mere progressive step in spelling words does not follow his own theory and become Benet. I would never recognize him by that. Because, while he would claim he was merely simplifying the spelling of his name, he would, in fact, be changing his name, for the combination of characters which the eye accepts as the symbol for him is "Bennett." General Attorney, the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway Company.

AN INTOXICATION INDEX.

Chicago, March 10.—My experience as a night counterman in a restaurant differs from that of a certain street car conductor who wrote to your column. Before prohibition days I had about three times as many drunks as I now have. During the prohibition days I used to get the crazy mean drunks who were always looking for a fight. It is very seldom that I get a drunk who doesn't know what he is doing now. In that case I generally charge them twice for their meal. Just one of the penalties of getting drunk. You drunks had better stay away from my restaurant.

HASH SLINGER

THE CASE FOR THE BONUS.

Chicago, March 11.—The President on March 4 stated, "The first task of today is to increase purchasing power of the public—to create consuming power."

If the congress will pass and the President sign the bill for immediate payment of adjusted service certificates, that task will have been accomplished.

There are 3,545,384 certificates as of Jan. 1, 1934, of the value of $3,643,981,515. A total of 3,019,582 veterans have borrowed $1,340,659,199.38, leaving due approximately $2,200,000,000, which latter amount will liquidate a legitimate debt due the 3½ million American veterans.

Noninterest bearing United States notes—new currency identical with the currency issued to refinance the RFC—will be issued.

The government will thereby save $112,000,000.00 a year for 12 years, and administration expenses of nearly a million dollars a year.

It will limitedly grant to the veteran the same monetary rights now enjoyed by all federal reserve and national banks.

It will require no bond issue, no increase in taxes, and no interest payment by the government.

The treasury holds $3,140,000,000 in gold, unincumbered, sufficient to issue $8,000,000,000 in new currency without reducing the gold reserve to less than 40 per cent.

Gen. Charles G. Dawes stated bank deposits turned over 27.4 times in 1926. Economists state every dollar turns over 42 times a year, a total national turnover of 32 billion dollars.

Forty-five million was paid by the CWA in Illinois over the winter and 450 millions was paid in the United States. That it has practically saved millions from starvation permits of no argument.

The 81 millions to be paid in "bonus" cash to Cook county veterans will accomplish twice the good of the CWA money and as much good as the RFC did in Cook county.

It unquestionably is the best means and the best vehicle ever proposed to put purchasing power into the hands of the masses of the people in every nook and corner of the nation.

PANACEA.

Chicago, March 10.—I have waited patiently but in vain for President Roosevelt or Gen. Johnson to suggest to these feeble-minded captains of industry the way to comply with the code's requirements in regard to employing more men.

Take the packers who are loudest in their protestations at Washington. The average pay roll of the dozen or so officials of any of the large packing companies easily comes to almost a million dollars a year. If these twelve men were cut to $10,000 each they would have more than they need and without increasing their overhead and also eliminating the necessity of increased prices these companies could employ almost a thousand men at $1,000 a year. And believe you me there are plenty who would gladly work for that sum.

Another easy way is to take any employé being paid more than $50 a week, split his job 30-20 with some other lad. If he complains that he cannot get along on $30 a week ask him how the other fellow is supposed to get along on nothing. Moreover, since his time is cut in half he has no legitimate complaint.

PORTO RICO GIVES RECEPTION FOR MRS. ROOSEVELT

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, March 13.—(AP)—Without resting from her strenuous two day motor trip over tortuous mountain roads, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt this evening shook hands with 2,000 persons at a reception given her by Gov. Blanton Winship.

The official and social leaders of the island joined with many others to greet the first lady, whose vivacity at the gay function in the governor's mansion belied her energetic tour of Porto Rican industries and homes.

Those who shook her hand were not aware that she had returned shortly before from the 300 mile trip and had had only a few minutes in which to dress for the affair.

Reclassifies Island.

Mrs. Roosevelt today had rediscovered and reclassified this island according to its place in recovery plans. She found time during the evening to have an hour's conference with Senator Munoz Marine on the reduction of sugar acreage.

"In Porto Rico at this moment she is the conscience of the American people, after all these years of indifference that things were going from bad to worse," the senator said later concerning Mrs. Roosevelt. "She is here to symbolize the administration's interest, which I expect will mean immediate steps toward reconstruction."

The reception at La Fortaleza this evening was more formal than a White House reception. The President's wife entered on the arm of a young lieutenant who escorted her down an inlaid mahogany staircase.

Reception Limited.

The reception was called public but there was the strict understanding that only those traditionally on the governor's social list should attend.

During the many activities of the last few days Mrs. Roosevelt managed to purchase gifts for her four grandchildren—a small embroidered frock, a smock dress and other presents.

As Mrs. Roosevelt thought today of home—she planned to begin the return flight at dawn Thursday, and she sent birthday greetings to her granddaughter, Sarah Delano Roosevelt, and her son, John—she said she felt little remained unfulfiled of her determination to see Porto Rico at first hand.

Measles Epidemic Sweeps Washington Younger Set

Washington, D. C., March 13.—(AP)—The national capital is in the midst of its worst epidemic of measles since 1921. Health service officials reported 555 cases of measles last week, or more than were reported during the whole of 1933.

PLAN HOUSES FOR 1,250,000 IN WAR ON BRITISH SLUMS

285,000 New Dwellings Are Proposed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 13.—The British government's war on slums began to take definite shape today.

A government communique revealed a widespread response by local authorities in England and Wales to the government's five year "national crusade" to demolish condemned areas and substitute new dwellings.

Programs already submitted by local authorities provide for the demolition of 266,851 houses and their replacement by 285,000 new dwellings to be occupied by 1,250,000 persons.

Plans Now Accepted.

Plans have been accepted provisionally for new homes for 1,187,173 persons covering areas with a population of over 36,000,000 or 90 per cent of the total population of England and Wales.

Of 1,716 local housing authorities concerned, only 52 have not yet formally submitted programs. It is expected that when all the programs are approved the total new houses to be built under the scheme for the next four years will be about 300,000.

Will Raze 33,000 London Homes.

London has submitted the biggest single clearance program with a total of 33,000 dwellings to be demolished and 265,000 persons to be rehoused. Next comes Leeds with 30,000 houses and 111,000 persons. Manchester, Liverpool, Sheffield, Birmingham and other thickly populated industrial areas have all submitted vast clearance schemes.

The cost of the campaign is estimated at $575,000,000 and will provide continuous employment for 110,000 persons.

N. Y. CHIEF URGES STERILIZATION OF TWO-TIME FELONS

New York, March 13.—[Special.]—The sterilization of every person convicted of two or more felonies was advocated by Police Commissioner John F. O'Ryan today as a means of eradicating crime.

Commissioner O'Ryan offered this suggestion, he said, in amplification of his remarks last night to the Ohio society. In that address the commissioner suggested ostracism as a means of combating the habitual criminal.

"I made that suggestion more or less as an appeal to the public, as a sort of trial balloon," Commissioner O'Ryan said today, in commenting on the address. "It's a matter for the public and for the legislature to decide. If they want to keep the habitual criminal, that is their business. I am too busy watching my own ball here at headquarters to pay any further attention to it.

"But, as a further suggestion," he added, "I believe that every person convicted of two felonies should be sterilized."

CAR COMPANIES GET UNIVERSAL FARE ULTIMATUM

Council Group Demands Action by May 3.

The city council local transportation committee, in effect, served notice on the traction companies yesterday that they must establish a universal transfer between the surface and elevated lines by May 3.

The committee voted to extend the April 3 deadline for the companies' acceptance of the pending 1930 unification ordinance to that date with the warning that the franchise would be permitted to lapse unless the transit interests gave "evidence of good faith" toward the merger.

Ends Public Hearings.

It was the last of a series of public hearings to be called by Chairman James B. Bowler to determine if the transportation utilities should be given until July 31 to accept the ordinance. The properties are in federal receivership. Recently chairmen of a number of first mortgage bond protective committees agreed upon a plan of reorganization through the efforts of Attorney Walter L. Fisher, traction expert, who was appointed for that purpose by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

The committee acted yesterday with one dissenting voice after Mayor Kelly, who attended the hearing, took a decided attitude for one last 30 day extension. Ald. Walter J. Orlikowski [35th] announced he would oppose any extension. The council will act on the committee's recommendation at its meeting this afternoon.

Demands Action.

"If those fellows don't come in and show some action by May 3, if the universal transfer is not put in by that time, then I'm for knocking the whole thing out," said Mayor Kelly.

"Let's find out if the traction companies mean business, or whether they don't," said Ald. B. A. Cronson [4th], in moving to recommend the thirty day extension to May 3.

"Though the ordinance is never accepted, I think we can make the surface and "L" lines give us the universal transfer," said Chairman Bowler. "The mayor figures that somebody has been blocking and delaying the whole thing. The companies could give us a universal transfer in fifteen days if they wanted to."

Warns of Extensions.

Attorney Fisher warned against the stringing out of the thirty day extensions. He said it would be unwise to submit to the individual bondholders a reorganization plan without assurance of enough time to carry out details of the merger before the ordinance need be accepted.

He informed the committee that he expected to submit the merger plan and agreement to all the bond protective committees next Monday, and that next week he would appear before Judge Wilkerson and present the completed plan. The plan would be sent to the individual bond depositors thereafter.

Urges Universal Transfer.

"Let the companies give us the universal transfer and I'll stand ready to vote for all the extension of time on the ordinance which Mr. Fisher thinks will be necessary," said Ald. Cronson in reply to Mr. Fisher.

"If you can guarantee to the court any assurance that the companies will be given the necessary amount of time required, I'll get an order for the universal transfer right away," said Attorney Fisher. "Just get me enough aldermen who will subscribe to that."

SPECIAL BOARD BEGINS PARING SCHOOL BUDGET

A special committee of the board of education yesterday began the task of paring the 1934 school budget of $71,242,610. At the outset James B. McCahey, president of the board, explained that it was all important to stabilize the educational or operating fund of the school system, from which the salaries of nearly all the 17,000 teachers and other employés are paid.

To this end the committee decided to transfer two educational fund items amounting to $130,000 to the free text book fund. These were $80,000 for text book administrative cost and $50,000 for the salaries of school librarians. "These appropriations should properly be charged up against the text book fund," said McCahey.

The budget committee will hold another session tomorrow on the text book, building and playground funds and a public hearing on the budget will be held March 21. The trustees on the special committee are Mr. McCahey, Ernst Buehler, Paul Drymalski, Charles W. Fry, Joseph J. Salat and Harry W. Solomon.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday, including those for 1932, were $615,296, making a total of $112,714,388 collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began on April 28, 1933. The day's collection of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for four years follow:

Uncollected	14,955,166	40,239,923
	1930.	1931.
March 13	$ 30,467	$ 74,909
Uncollected	63,738,617	60,096,271

The day's collection of 1932 real estate taxes totaled $474,136. The day's collection of 1932 personal property taxes totaled $79,001. The day's collection of 1931 personal property taxes totaled $6,396.

George O. Fairweather, assistant business manager of the University of Chicago, denied yesterday before County Judge Jarecki that he had made definite recommendations to Assessor J. L. Jacobs on methods of assessing real estate and personal property. Fairweather is the author of a report on a plan for systematic assessing submitted to Cook county taxing agencies.

He was called as a court's witness in the hearing on the petition of the Chicago Real Estate board for a 15 per cent reduction in the 1931 assessments on small properties in Cook county. Robert N. Holt, counsel for the board, asked Fairweather if he had not suggested that cash should be assessed at 10 per cent of its value, stocks and bonds at 20 per cent of their values, and household furniture at its full depreciated value.

"No, I merely submitted a report on the practice of taxing bodies in other states," Fairweather replied.

MR. BRICKNER'S AUTO STICKER IS IN NEWS AGAIN

Clarence Brickner, 6325 Harper avenue, won an unenviable distinction several weeks ago. He was arrested by Detective Jack Greer of the Woodlawn station and was the first motorist seized for failure to have a 1934 city vehicle license.

Promptly Mr. Brickner made good, purchased a sticker for his car and placed in on the windshield. Yesterday, however, he called up Detective Greer and requested him to call on him. The detective responded.

"You saw to it that I got the sticker," Mr. Brickner said. "Now here's a new job for you. Somebody has stolen it off my car."

COLLEGE YOUTHS WILL GET CASH FROM CWA FUND

Federal Civil Works administration funds are to be used to help college students stay in school, it was announced yesterday from the Chicago office of the administration. The funds are to be placed in the hands of the colleges subject to the supervision of the CWA authorities, and will be paid to students as wages for campus projects upon which they will be employed. The type of work done by the students must be similar, the CWA officials announced, to other CWA work.

Keeps Campaign Pledge; Cuts Own Salary $1,000

Watseka, Ill., March 13.—(AP)—Last year Elmer A. Taylor, a Republican, promised to reduce his salary as state's attorney from $4,500 to $3,000 a year if elected, and he was. Today he deposited $1,000 in the county treasury.

Can't Pay Fees

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 13.—Edward Fitzgerald, duke of Leinster, is flat broke. He is so broke that he couldn't pay the balance of his solicitors' costs, $120, for which he was sued in the Westminster county court today. It was stated that the duke had no means. Leinster, who is an actor, recently married a supposedly wealthy American woman.

NO EXTENSIONS ON INCOME TAX, OFFICIAL WARNS

Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue, gave warning yesterday that no extensions will be granted this year for filing of income tax returns. He acted after learning that only 56,000 returns have been filed in Chicago this year, as compared with 60,000 for the corresponding day in 1933. Last year a 15 day extension was allowed without penalty because of the bank holiday. The deadline for filing this year is midnight tomorrow. There is a penalty of 25 per cent of the tax for failure to file on time.

The returns were coming in slowly yesterday, according to Miss Elizabeth Eckert, chief clerk in the collector's office at the United States courthouse. Large accounts are usually paid on the last day. There were 350,000 schedules mailed out, based on the returns filed last year. A larger percentage of women are making returns than ever before, officials observed.

Express elevator service from the first floor to the fifth floor of the courthouse, where the internal revenue offices are situated, was ordered yesterday by Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen, custodian of the building.

DEFENDS BOYS' JOBS SELLING DAILY PAPERS

As a result of the depression the country has fewer but better newspapers, asserted Barney Thompson, editor of the Rockford Register-Republic-Star, in a luncheon address yesterday to a convention of the Central States Circulation Managers, held in the Congress hotel.

"Editors," Mr. Thompson said, "have found they can no longer be capricious, narrow, or factional."

In his talk he defended the distribution of newspapers as an occupation for boys, declaring the work trained them in character and "helps make them better citizens." Means to aid in training the carriers will be discussed at the managers' meeting today.

Four teams of boys from De Kalb, Rockford, and Danville, Ill., and Milwaukee, Wis., will compete today in a demonstration of how to sell papers. The team adjudged best will go to New York in June to the International Circulation Managers' association contest.

Claims Tavern Hostess Is Unfit to Care for Child

Whether a tavern hostess is a suitable custodian of her own child will be the problem to be solved by Superior Judge Rudolph Desort Friday. Samuel P. Haines, an employé of an electrical appliance company, declared his divorced wife, Anna, 25 years old, 7549 Crandon avenue, is unfit because of such employment.

REVISED BUDGET READY FOR VOTE IN COUNCIL TODAY

Total $43,984,000; New Police Jobs Out.

In a five hour session yesterday attended by Mayor Kelly the finance committee of the city council made last minute adjustments to the budget that it has recommended to the council for passage today. The slight increases made in some appropriations are expected to balance with slashes in others, leaving the total at approximately $43,984,685, which is $3,898,510 less than the 1933 budget.

Ald. James B. Bowler [25th] in a discussion of the city's share of the state gasoline tax, made a tart reference to Gov. Horner's opposition to the diversion of any state sales or liquor taxes to aid the schools.

Would Hold Up State Cash.

He advocated withholding from the state any money collected for it in Chicago until the city is given representation in the legislature that it is entitled to under the constitution, and until a proper proportion of state taxes collected in Chicago are spent within the city limits.

The discussion centered about the appropriation of $5,000,000 from the motor fuel fund for expenditure on Chicago streets. This amount was estimated as the city's share for 1934, and three plans for expending it were referred to the council traffic committee. The use of $661,791 to pay public benefits was authorized.

New Police Jobs Out.

The committee refused to appropriate an additional sum to provide for 24 new lieutenants of police, and to make berths for 54 more sergeants. It set up $40,000 extra for the motion picture censorship board, $5,000 for the city liquor appeal commission, $5,000 for a housing commission, and made room in bulk sums for some civil service employés that otherwise would have been discharged. A force to combat amebic dysentery during the entire year was provided for also.

Besides considering the budget, the aldermen gave approval to an ordinance for construction of a bascule bridge in North Ashland avenue over the north branch of the Chicago river to cost $1,700,000. Advocates of fixed bridges have urged the construction of a fixed span at a cost estimated at between $900,000 and $1,400,000. It was said, however, that no money would be expended during this year.

Filtration Plant Funds.

In another ordinance the committee authorized Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt to petition the Public Works administration for $25,988,000, instead of $22,400,000, for the construction of a filtration plant on the south side. The lower figure covered the cost of a five year construction program. As one condition before granting the loan, PWA officials requested that the plant be built in three years, which would increase the cost by $1,588,000.

The committee also recommended the creation of a "special assessment replacement fund" from unclaimed rebate and inactive special assessment monies. This fund would be used to redeem special assessment warants, which matured before Dec. 31, 1932, in the order of their presentation. The fund would be reimbursed from the collection of delinquent special assessments. It was estimated that the fund would amount to $800,000 upon its establishment.

JAPAN LAUNCHES 8,500 TON NEW TYPE CRUISER

KURE, Japan, March 14 [Wednesday].—(AP)—First of a new type of warship, Japan's new cruiser Mogami was launched with great ceremony here today. National distress over the capsizing of the torpedo boat Tomozuru caused no change in the launching program.

Admiral Prince Hiroyasu Fushimi, chief of the naval general staf, acting as proxy for the emperor, was the most distinguished member of the throng that crowded the navy's dockyard here to see the new cruiser take the waves.

The Mogami, laid down in October, 1931, is an 8,500 ton "light" cruiser, first of a class of six either building or projected for early construction. When completed 18 months or two years hence she will be the most powerful and formidable ship of her class afloat. Four cruisers which the American navy is building were laid down only last August and will not be completed until the Mogami and one of her sisters have been in operation at least a year.

FOUND WOUNDED AFTER SHOOTING.

Walter Zaczynski, 27 years old, 1633 Fullerton avenue, was found shot and seriously wounded yesterday in an alley near 2060 North Racine avenue, where two burglars were fired on by police earlier in the day.

CHICAGO SETS AUTO SALES RECORD FOR 1933

WOMEN ARE A GROWING FACTOR in the new car market. The newspaper which most of them read is the Tribune, which, on the basis of results, carried more department store lineage in 1933 than any other Chicago newspaper.

Advertisers who concentrated in Chicago Tribune made exceptional showing

CHICAGO'S activity in buying new cars last year set a record for the entire passenger car industry! Motorists bought here at a pace unequaled in any of America's four other largest cities.

During the first eleven months of 1933 Chicago sales were up 51%. In Cook county the increase was 37%. The territory as a whole—Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin—gained 36%.

59% Greater Coverage!

Advertisers who made exceptionally fine showings concentrated their advertising in the Tribune. It was the determining force which put this market out in front.

The Tribune reaches 620,000 families in Chicago and suburbs alone—59% more than any other daily newspaper reaches—and practically as many as are reached by any two other papers combined.

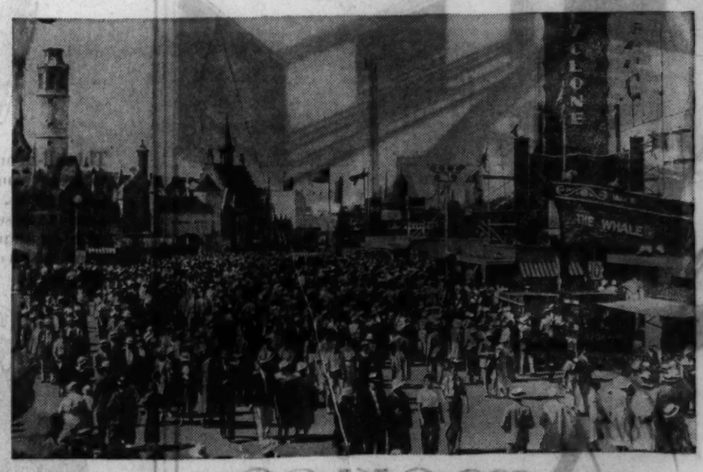
And on Sunday it reaches an additional 243,000 families of the same responsive, car-buying type in cities and towns adjacent to metropolitan Chicago.

Lowest Milline Rate!

No other publication gives the coverage and penetration of buying power in this market which the Tribune delivers at a milline rate lower than that of any other Chicago daily newspaper.

Ask a Tribune salesman to help you work out a program of advertising to take full advantage of the increased opportunities for volume sales this year in this market.

56% MORE PASSENGER CAR advertising appeared in the Tribune than in any other Chicago newspaper in 1933 because the Tribune produces better results.



THE GREAT INFLUX of visitors to Chicago's World Fair will enable the auto manufacturer to do a national as well as a local job in 1934 through one advertising medium—the Tribune.

TRIBUNE TOWN is the home of 3,080,311 families who register 2,188,558 passenger cars. The preferred metropolitan newspaper of 21% of all the families in this compact market is the Tribune.

BEVERAGE RING'S BIRTH REVEALED AT RACKET TRIAL

Witness Tells of Orders Calling Strike.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

The birth and operation of an alleged conspiracy in the Chicago carbonated beverage business were described yesterday in the racket conspiracy trial by a former employé of A. J. Canfield, president of the Carbonated Beverage Institute of Chicago, the alleged vehicle of racketeering in the industry.

The witness was Leonard R. Bruno, 9400 Charles street, at present a tavern owner. Bruno testified that he became sales manager of the A. J. Canfield company, owned by the defendant of that name, after he disposed of his own beverage business to Canfield in 1932.

Bruno's Story.

In the spring of that year, Bruno testified, the Canfield company suffered a severe loss of business due to price cutting competitors. Bruno said that after Canfield lost one large account, Jerry Donovan, secretary of the Carbonated Beverage Drivers' union, another defendant, was called to Canfield's office and that Canfield complained of his losses.

Donovan, Bruno testified, said he would see what he could do about the matter. Later in the month, Bruno said, he and Canfield went to a conference with other bottlers held in the west side restaurant of Davie Miller, fight referee. There, he said, Canfield announced that an attempt had been made to get Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th] to head a trade association, but that he had refused, and that Attorney Morris I. Kaplan had agreed to undertake the task for a proper fee.

Kaplan Selected.

Attorney Kaplan is one of the principal defendants. In addition to being attorney for the Carbonated Beverage Institute, he was counsel for the Cleaners and Dyers' institute and the Chicago Laundry Owners' association and secretary of the Chicago Linen Supply association. He and fourteen other defendants — trade association heads, labor leaders, and their attorneys—are charged in the present case with racketeering practices in those industries.

"Kaplan has good connections. He can deal with the 'hood.' who can drive the little beverage dealers out of business and put the fear of God into the beverage manufacturers."

At the same time, Bruno said, Canfield told him that Murray Humphreys, lieutenant of Al Capone, a fugitive defendant named in the indictment on trial, would "act behind the scenes" in the beverage industry organization.

Name Field Secretary.

At the first meeting of the Carbonated Beverage institute, Bruno continued, Attorney Kaplan introduced Dave Ostran as field secretary of the organization. Ostran was also indicted and is a fugitive.

In August, 1932, Bruno testified, the Big Ben Beverage company took the business of the S. S. Kresge stores, amounting to 1,500 cases a month, away from the Canfield company by cutting prices. Bruno discussed this with Canfield, he said, and Canfield told him that he had reported the matter to the association (institute) and that Donovan would "pull a strike" at the Big Ben plant the next morning.

Bruno testified that he drove to a point on Roosevelt road near the Big Ben plant the next morning in the company of Frank Canfield, son of the defendant. He saw a group of men drive up in several cars, he said, and recognized among them Jim Patterson, whom he described as a business agent of local 723, Donovan union.

Got Business Back.

Then, Bruno said, he went to Canfield's office. Canfield, he said, told him to call up the Kresge company and solicit the return of their business, and to tell them that the Big Ben company was out of business and couldn't serve them. The Canfield company got the bulk of the Kresge business back, Bruno said.

He then described a conversation with Canfield and Ostran about Sept. 1, 1932. Bruno said that he mentioned a newspaper story which he had read, concerning the bombing of a grocery in what the newspaper styled a "beverage war." Ostran, whom he asked about it, told him, he said:

"I know all about it. You haven't seen any thing. You'll see a lot more before I'm through."

Bruno was called by Assistant Prosecutor Thomas Dodd Healy after the prosecution had been forced to withdraw two witnesses in succession. The witnesses started to describe conversations with Ostram and Donovan, but Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan of the Criminal court who is hearing the case, had sustained defense objections on the ground that no connection had been shown between Donovan or Ostran and other defendants on trial.

WOMAN KILLS FLEEING BOY

Mrs. Anna Kmiec (left) and Stanley Poulysarnski, whom she shot to death as he was fleeing from her store. She charged that he and other boys became disorderly when they failed to win on slot machine.

Slot Machine Row

Because their pennies thrust into a little slot machine failed to pay them any rewards a dozen youths quarreled last night with Mrs. Anna Kmiec in the confectionery she and her husband conduct at 2648 North Western avenue. Mrs. Kmiec showed her resentment by seizing a pistol and shooting one of the group, Stanley Poulszyrnski, 15 years old, 2836 North Rockwell street. He died soon afterward.

Arrested and taken to the Shakespeare avenue police station, the woman merchant asserted that the youths had unsuccessfully tried to tamper with the machine and so get the 25 cent prizes offered for certain combinations of figures. Failing, she added, they became disorderly, stealing candy and annoying other customers.

When she went to the rear of the store and got the pistol the youths fled to the street. The Poulszyrnski boy was struck in the back. He was taken to the office of Dr. William H. Leffler, 2352 Diversey avenue, where he was pronounced dead.

JAICKS CITED FOR CONTEMPT IN PAVING DEFY

Assistant State's Attorneys Donald Thompson and Robert Donigan yesterday were given leave by Chief Justice Philip Finnegan of the Criminal court to file informations charging contempt of court against Andrew Jaicks Jr. and Wilson A. Jaicks, brothers, who operate a road paving business at 400 West Madison street. The prosecutors sought the citations for the failure of the brothers to answer questions before the February and March grand juries concerning their obtaining a paving contract.

Judge Finnegan, who is hearing the racket conspiracy trial, assigned the case to Judge Michael Feinberg for hearing March 20. Attorney Francis L. Boutell, representing the brothers, was given until March 19 to file an answer to the informations.

The Jaicks brothers were questioned before the grand juries concerning the manner in which they obtained a subcontract from the county for the paving of 111th street in 1932. They refused to answer, asserting they did not wish to incriminate themselves. The home of Wilfred Bates, the contractor who got the original contract for the job, was bombed shortly after it was awarded to him. The brothers also refused to answer questions concerning their acquaintanceship with several defendants in the TNT racket case, in which indictments were returned several months ago.

Allegan, Mich., March 13.—[Special.]—Joseph F. Mosier was nominated for mayor for the eleventh consecutive time by the Republicans of this city. He will be opposed on the Democratic ticket by Sidney J. Wise, local merchant.

REPORT PATRIS AND 6 INDICTED FOR BOMBINGS

Five true bills charging bombing, attempted bombing, and conspiracy were reported to have been voted against six men and a woman by the grand jury yesterday. The jury's action is a part of State's Attorney Courtney's campaign against this form of terrorism. Bonds were set at $15,000 on each charge.

Those report named in the true bills are George Patris, secretary of the Restaurateurs of Illinois, an organization of restaurant owners; Frank Currin, a former saloonkeeper; Harry Fitzel, a pharmacist; John Evorich, a hardware dealer; William [Bunny] Walters; John Poulos, a restaurant proprietor; and Mrs. Sophie Svirsky, 42 years old, owner of a saloon at 665 West 18th street.

The bombing of a beauty shop at 2527 Devon avenue on April 13, is charged against Patris, Walters, Currin, Fitzel and Poulos. A second reported true bill names Mrs. Svirsky, Currin, and Fitzel on a charge of bombing a saloon at 671 West 18th street on March 3. These three and Evorich are reported named in the bombing of a tailor shop next door to the saloon.

The attempted bombing of the Legion cafe, 11109 South Michigan avenue March 6, which caused the round-up of the ring, is reported charged against Currin, Fitzel, Patris, Evorich and Poulos. All of the seven are finally named on the conspiracy count, it was reported.

SASEBO, Japan, March 14.—[Wednesday.]—(AP)—Thirteen men thus far have lived to tell fragmentarily the tragic tale of the Japanese torpedo boat Tomozuru, which overturned Monday in heavy seas with 113 officers and men aboard.

At 1:30 a. m. today an entry way was cut through the vessel's steel exterior and at dawn rescuers had carried ten men from the tomb-like hull. The majority of them were unconscious, requiring artificial restoratives.

22 Bodies Recovered.

Twenty-two corpses in addition to the ten men rescued alive were removed during the long night hours, while from the interior of the vessel continued to come a heart-rending rapping from survivors begging for aid before it should be too late.

Accompanying the weird sounds was hammering from outside the vessel to keep up hope among those trapped below.

It was a macabre scene at the drydock—a cold, rainy night lighted by searchlights and flares. Scores of Japanese bluejackets swarmed along the Tomozuru's upturned belly, feverishly at work slicing through metal while 300 relatives of the trapped men, including weeping women with babies tied to their backs, waited in the shadows as close to the scene as authorities would permit.

At 2:30 a. m. doctors and nurses were lowered into the hull to superintend the removal of survivors and corpses.

Survivor Tells Story.

Newspaper men were not permitted interviews, but a naval officer quoted a story told by one of the three men rescued yesterday as follows:

"'When we felt the vessel turn over a small group of men in our compartment grasped hands and prepared to die together. We shouted banzais for the emperor and for the imperial navy.

"'About noon, 30 hours after the accident, breathing beame extremely difficult. Suddenly a gust of fresh air came through. The three of us were sufficiently revived to be able to open a hatch, through which we saw a diver beckoning to us.

"'We emerged and floated to the surface. It is a miracle that we are alive now.'"

Thus far no officers competent to testify as to the causes of the disaster have been rescued. Those brought out alive have been enlisted men, stokers and staf officers who knew only the ghastly shock followed by the hours of suffering in the interior of the overturned vessel.

The skipper of the Tomozuru was Lieutenant Commander Okuichi Iwase. Other officers reported he was on the bridge when the ship capsized and said they believed he must certainly have been swept to death.

Several destroyers and seaplanes sent out to scour the scene of the disaster Monday morning reported that their investigation of bays and islets near by had failed to reveal survivors.

A naval board of inquiry, including the distinguished Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura as chairman, was appointed to study the disaster, which was regarded as possibly a national issue. The experts' findings may influence a possible change in the Japanese naval construction program.

Blames Naval Treaties.

TOKIO, March 14.—[Wednesday.]—(AP) — Admiral Nobumasa Suetsugu, commander of the Japanese combined fleet, today blamed the Tomozuru tragedy upon naval treaties to which Japan is a signatory.

Interviewed aboard the flagship Kongo Maru in the harbor at Wakayama, he said:

"Japan has been compelled to build ships of the Tomozuru type on account of treaty restrictions. We must demand abandonment of the ratio system of naval limitation and insist upon armaments of equality."

3 AUTO BANDITS ROB SALESMAN OF $1,500 GEMS

Louis Epstein, 5498 Hyde Park boulevard, a jewelry salesman was robbed yesterday of three handbags, containing jewelry valued at $1,500, by three robbers in an automobile who overtook his car on Joliet road, south of Westmont. One of the bandits fired a shot at Epstein's automobile, forcing him to stop. The license plates on the bandits' car were stolen from W. B. Bond, 7727 Bennett avenue, on Feb. 2. Epstein said the jewelry was not insured.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

The Automobile Industry, as represented at a directors' meeting of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce held in Detroit Monday, March 12, 1934, set forth its labor position as follows:

1. Under the law and the code, the industry believes it owes a duty to its employees not only not to coerce them in self-organization for purposes of bargaining, but so far as it legitimately can, to protect them against coercion from any source, into selecting representatives not of their free choice.

2. No employee shall be discriminated against because of his choice of representatives.

3. The accredited representatives of any group of employees shall be free to bargain collectively in regard to matters of common interest.

4. At the present time the automobile industry is paying on an average, hourly wage rates equal to or better than the 1929 rates. The ratio of weekly earnings now approximates 90 per cent of the 1929 earnings, while the current cost of living is approximately 83 per cent of 1929.

5. Nevertheless, in response to the appeal of the President, the industry recommends to its members that in plants covered by the Automobile Manufacturing code, the average weekly hours of productive workers be reduced from 40 to 36 and that compensating wage increases over rates prevailing in February, 1934, be made effective on or before March 31, 1934.

FORD KEEPS ONE SECTION OF FAIR EXHIBIT SECRET

But It Will Include His First Workshop.

BY EARL MULLIN.

Details of the Ford Motor company exhibit at the Fair, one of the largest single company display units, were learned yesterday as workmen were welding the first units in the huge monitor roof. Full details of the building itself, of the new structural steel construction, and of the gardens surrounding the main pavilion have been known, but more or less secrecy has surrounded the exhibits.

The entire building, situated on the former site of Camp John Whistler, is 985 feet long and in the main portion is ten stories high. Eleven acres of ground are taken up by the exhibit and the parks. In general the building consists of a south and a north wing with a large main building circular in design.

One Section Is Mystery.

The exhibition to be placed in the south wing is still shrouded in mystery even to the Ford representatives. That portion of the building will house Henry Ford's own exhibit and will be planned by him. One of the exhibits will be Ford's first workshop.

The central rotunda will house the Ford drama of transportation. Included in this exhibit will be a unit from every age and form of land transportation. Water and air transport will not be included. The display as planned at the present time will range from the Egyptian chariot, with kindred devices of the time from other areas, to the modern streamlined automobile.

Probably the first automobile built, the Benz of 1863, will be in the exhibit as will Ford's first motor driven vehicle, constructed in 1893. The next car in the chain will be the first model built by the Ford Motor company, and the successive models. One significant development, regarded by many motorists as an invention of 1934, will be shown here. That is the knee action wheel which will be shown on a car built in 1906.

Sources to Be Shown.

The main building, which is the north wing of the general structure 585 feet long by 180 feet wide, will house the industrial exhibit. Here fifteen different exhibits, each depicting one of the major sources of supply in the manufacture of automobiles will show the dependence of manufacturing on the earth. Ore, cotton, oil, rubber, steel, and other items in an automobile will be shown in the original state. In the beginning of the process dioramas will show the source, and working machinery will show the final steps in preparation.

The entire exhibit building is designed around the Ford world, a giant globe revolving in the center of the rotunda. All parts of the Ford world sources of supply, manufacturing centers, and sales places will be designated by lights on the globe. The exhibit is designed to show the close relationship of the world, brought about by business and science.

VERDICT TODAY ON CONTEMPT BY KENTUCKY EDITOR

Frankfort, Ky., March 13.—(AP)—The house committee investigating the charge of contempt filed against Vance Armentrout, Louisville Courier-Journal editor, by a lobby investigating committee, will not file its report with the Kentucky house of representatives until tomorrow. The announcement was made today by Fred Gnau, chairman.

The special committee gave Armentrout a hearing last night, and had indicated its decision would be given tonight or tomorrow. The committee met today but did not have time to prepare its report.

If Armentrout is held guilty of contempt of the lobby committee, as the result of his holding confidential the name of a letter writer contributing to the newspaper, the house will vote upon whether or not to punish him. The maximum penalty would be six months' imprisonment or $1,000 fine or both.

FAIR PASSES NETTLE OFFICIALS; PLAN TWO EACH FOR COUNCIL

The problem of free passes to the Fair has already arisen to give officials a headache, with a tentative program for pass distribution now under consideration.

Members of the city council and state legislators, two groups making more demands than any others for free tickets during the 1933 Fair, will each be given two passes, according to the tentative program.

No blocks of tickets will be distributed. Working newspaper men, camera men, and other similar cases will be given passes. No other free tickets will be given. Passes as given must be paid for by the Fair as a corporation, as its charter does not permit free admissions.

TENEMENT FIRE TOLL NOW 17 IN NEW YORK

New York, March 13.—[Special.]—The fifth fatal tenement fire occurred today in Harlem, making a total of seventeen deaths from similar fires this year. The victims this morning were a Negro woman and girl, who jumped from windows on the top floor in the face of advice to wait for the firemen, who could have saved them with ladders.

Before jumping the two women threw a 10 year old Negro boy to the ground and he is dying in Knickerbocker hospital.

Tenement House Commissioner Langdon Post said that while there were no outstanding law violations against the house in which the victims lived, two would have been filed against it soon. One would have required the owner to replace the vertical fire escape ladders with slanting ones. The other would have dealt with a family living in the basement, which became illegal after April 1, 1933.

The women were afraid to climb down the vertical ladders. The building sheltered twenty families, and about twenty persons suffered injuries in the fire.

RUNS INTO CAR; KILLED.

Berrin, Ill., March 13.—[Special.]—Melisa South, 13, was killed this afternoon when she ran into the side of an automobile.

"JUST MYSELF... AND MY LITTLE GIRLS

AN INTERVIEW WITH MRS. MIRTH C. MOORE, 9933 IRVING AVENUE, CHICAGO

The Moore family. Mrs. Moore and her little girls, Nancy and Deborah. "Since we installed gas heat . . . the children have fewer colds than ever before," says Mrs. Moore.

YES, we can imagine what gas heat has meant to Mrs. Moore and her two little girls living in their cozy bungalow on Irving Avenue. All furnace worries banished forever. No more soot, dust, and dirty ashes!

"And oh what drudgery it used to be to fire that furnace day and night," says Mrs. Moore. "No indeed, now that we know the luxury of gas we'd never go back to the old-fashioned kinds of heat. It's warm as toast in the morning since we installed gas heat.

"The children have fewer colds than ever before. The house stays clean so much longer, and it seems like we never have to wash the curtains any more. That's because there's no soot or dirt coming up from the furnace."

THOUSANDS ARE CHANGING TO GAS HEAT

This is just typical of the experiences of thousands of home dwellers in the Chicago area who have changed to gas heat. For when you install gas heat you say goodbye to all furnace worries. No more do you have to shovel coal, sift, shake or haul dirty ashes, chop kindling, start fires, anxiously watch and wait for heat to come up. A flick of the finger on the thermostat on the wall, and you have just the temperature that you want every hour, day and night.

And gas heat is so clean. Walls and drapes stay clean much longer and basement dirt is not tracked upstairs because you never have to go down to the basement to even look at the furnace.

GAS HEAT RATES ARE LOWER

Cost Rates for heating homes with gas are now so low that every home, even the most modest, can now afford to heat with gas. Rates for gas heat are one-half of what they were during the 1930-31 heating season.

To prove that every home can afford gas heat, we make this special offer. We'll install a gas burner in your present furnace or boiler entirely at our expense. You invest nothing for equipment.

OUR SPECIAL TRIAL PLAN

Then you try gas heat for one month, two months or a year. While you are trying gas heat you pay only $3 a month rental for the equipment in the average home. If you don't like gas heat, we will remove it at our expense and the rental charge stops immediately. We replace your former heating equipment in good workmanlike order.

But if you decide that you want to keep gas heat—as we think you will—the rental you have paid applies on the nominal price of the equipment. Don't delay. It is folly not to investigate this liberal offer. Remember gas heat can be installed without allowing your house to cool off. Call your local gas office at once for full information.

"Oh, we're tremendously happy with gas heat," is Mrs. Moore's own expression of what gas heat has meant to her little family. Little Nancy Moore can operate the thermostat just as easily as her mother. And the house is always cozy and warm.

What Others Say About New Low Cost Gas Heat:

"It certainly is a pleasure to find my home heated comfortably with gas at 4:30 in the morning when I leave for work. The cleanliness and even temperature of gas heat together with economical cost make it an ideal fuel for my use."
Frank S. Dickinson
Blue Island, Ill.

"The convenience and comfort of gas heat is not exaggerated in the least. It eliminates the drudgery of furnace tending. I certainly dread the thought of ever giving up gas heat."
Mrs. Gordon Hyde
Chicago

"I enjoy gas heat better than any other form of househeating we have ever had before. After I've been away teaching for several hours and return to my own home to teach some more, I know my rooms and floors will be warm and livable."
Mrs. A. R. Dewey,
665 Garfield Ave., Aurora, Ill.

Charles H. Lapp
Evanston, Ill.

"We have heated our home with gas since the first of the cold season. The gas heat is fine, clean and even. I can say that the drapes and furnishings will be much cleaner with our gas furnace. With the thermostat that automatically regulates the heat, all the old fuss and bother of coal is gone. Gas heat is wonderful in every way."
Mrs. Carl J. Erikson
Wilmette, Ill.

"We consider gas heat a great household necessity and a big improvement over our old heating method with coal as far as health, cleanliness and convenience, with no work and no dirt."
Dr. W. M. Struzynski
704 N. Chicago St., Joliet, Illinois

"No, indeed, now that we know the luxury of gas," says Mrs. Moore, "we'd never go back to the old-fashioned kinds of heat, and we never want to give it up."

NO "SHUTTING UP SHOP" IN THE GAS BUSINESS

Gas service is not limited by office hours. We never "shut up shop" and go home. Thanksgiving Day and Christmas are just two dates on the calendar as far as gas service is concerned—except that both show unusually heavy demands for gas.

Every customer knows that if gas company service is needed, at any hour of the day or night, it can be had in a hurry. "Wabash 6000" never fails to answer, and by the time you hang up the phone experienced men are on the job to assure service to you, whether it be at noon or midnight.

"Wabash 6000" doesn't get many emergency calls, because the company tries to remove any causes for emergency. But its hours are from midnight to midnight, January 1 to December 31.

Gas service is a 24-hour-a-day job, and we keep at it 24 hours a day.

Startling Trial Offer

To prove that every home can afford to heat with gas, we'll install it at our expense...and remove it at our expense, if you don't like it.

YOU INVEST NOTHING!

Without ONE CENT of investment by you, we install the most modern burner in your furnace or boiler. If you are satisfied, it stays. If not—and you are the sole judge—out it comes and your former heating system is re-installed—AT OUR EXPENSE. We make this offer because of our confidence in the perfection of gas heat.

No Mother Would Knowingly Take This Chance

Only Lack of Knowledge Would Make Her Do It . . . Take the Chance of Giving Her Child Drugs of Which She Knows Nothing

A CHILD'S health is too precious for experiment; a child's life beyond the price of pennies.

That's something, of course, that every mother's instinct tells her. The protective instinct that makes her value her child's life far beyond her own.

Doctors Say PHILLIPS' For Your Child

Now, when it comes to the very important — and frequently used — "milk of magnesia," doctors for over fifty years have said "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia . . . the safe remedy for your child."

This is because genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia marks what is known to the medical profession as one of the finest laboratory products the world of science knows.

See That Your Child Gets It

See that your child gets this: the finest that men know; genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Get it for your own peace-of-mind. Get it in protection of your child.

If you are offered a "bargain" substitute for the real Phillips' article, ask your doctor before you buy it. He will tell you that giving your child unknown drugs is one of the most dangerous, most risky things you can do. You can get genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia at any drug store, in liquid or tablet form—for a small sum.

SAFETY FOR YOU AND YOURS IN THIS BOTTLE

You can assist others by refusing to accept anything but the genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Do this in the interest of yourself and your children—and in the interest of the public in general.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM:

POLICE CAPTAIN CHRISTENSEN DIES SUDDENLY

Collapses in Drug Store After Stroke.

Police Captain Alfred C. Christensen, who has been assigned to Commissioner Allman's office for the last year, collapsed after a stroke of apoplexy in a drug store last night and died while he was being taken to the Norwegian American hospital. He was 59 years old and had been on the police force since 1906.

ALFRED C. CHRISTENSEN.

Capt. Christensen entered a drug store at 2759 Augusta boulevard last night and told the clerk, Harry Schwartz, 2149 Humboldt boulevard, that he felt faint. Schwartz seated him in a chair and in spite of the captain's protests summoned Dr. I. M. Felsher, one of the owners of the drug store, who has an office above it. Dr. Felsher summoned the West North avenue police, who were hurrying Capt. Christensen to the hospital when he died.

Capt. Christensen lived at 3031 Hollywood avenue. He is survived by his widow and two sons. He became a captain in 1925. His last active command was at the Sheffield avenue station.

TINY LIGHT RAY WILL SPEED UP 'EYE' OF CAMERA

A device for the speedy focusing of a camera was demonstrated yesterday by its inventor, Clarence B. Mitchell, son of the late John J. Mitchell, banker, at his Chicago studio at 100 East Walton place. Mitchell arrived in the morning on the Santa Fe Chief from Pasadena, where he also has a photographic art studio.

Newspaper camera men who attended the demonstration were of the opinion that the electric focusing device would result in further progress in newspaper photography, which has undergone considerable changes and improvement in recent years.

Mitchell's invention projects a tiny ray of light by means of an electric bulb. The projected light enables a cameraman to focus almost instantly, without the use of hood, in either indoor or outdoor work.

CELEBRATE 30TH ANNIVERSARY OF 'CHRIST OF ANDES'

BUENOS AIRES, March 13.—(AP)—The thirtieth anniversary of the dedication of the world famous statue of the Christ of the Andes—a symbol of eternal Chilean-Argentine peace on the mountain hemmed boundary two miles above sea level—was observed today.

The occasion was marked here by prayers for continental and world peace offered by the dwindling band of survivors of the Argentine women who contributed the bronze statue, including Señnora Angela de Costa, who suggested the site.

The statue was cast to commemorate the Holy year, but had not been placed when the Chilean-Argentine boundary settlement of 1903 thwarted what seemed to be an imminent war. Señora de Costa's proposal dramatized the peaceful solution and had an important bearing on ratification.

FUGITIVE FOR TEN YEARS CONVICTED OF 1924 SWINDLE

Captured in Fargo, N. D., after a ten year search, Joseph L. Ruby, alias Harry D. Jackson, a former Chicago real estate operator, was found guilty of operating a confidence game yesterday by a jury before Judge George Fred Rush in the Criminal court. A sentence of from one to ten years will be imposed if his motion for a new trial is overruled on March 27.

Edward Kulhomer, 4545 North Hamilton avenue, testified he had paid Ruby, $2,900 for three lots in 1924 and never received deeds to the property. Carl Anderson, 2218 Thome avenue, who had been represented by Ruby as the owner of the lots, then took the stand to testify he owned only one of them and had not authorized its sale.

Assistant State's Attorney Robert Wright assailed the defense contention that Ruby was protected by the statute of limitations, saying the three year limit could not be applied since the fugitive was living in another state. Ruby, who had been working as an electrical appliance salesman in Fargo for nine years, obtained $50,000 in various swindles, Prosecutor Wright declared.

BY JUDITH CASS.

GILCHRIST B. STOCKTON, former American minister to Austria; Prof. Bernadotte Schmidt, Ralph Hines, and James H. Winston will celebrate Saturday if Oxford wins the annual Oxford-Cambridge boat race that will be run over a four and a half mile course in the Thames river that afternoon.

They are all Oxford men and they have had to take defeat the last several years. In 1929 the two universities were tied in the number of victories since the first race was run in 1829.

On the eve of the race, Friday night, Oxford and Cambridge men in Chicago are to hold a boat race dinner at 7 o'clock in a private room of the Harvey restaurant at 310 South Michigan avenue.

The color scheme of the invitations . . . light blue for Cambridge and dark blue for Oxford . . . will be carried over into the dinner decorations. And everything else will be truly British just as the "Hon. Sec" after the name of William C. Parke, one of the committee on arrangements. [It means secretary without salary if you want a translation.]

Mrs. Charles Dewey Gets French Medal.

With a review of her distinguished French ancestry, her sympathy for and her interest in France, by Andre L. de Laboulaye, the French ambassador to the United States, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey was decorated last night with the five point white enamel cross of the French Legion of Honor and presented with a diploma that designates her rank as a chevalier of the legion.

The ceremony was performed in the French embassy in Washington at a dinner given by Mr. Laboulaye for Mr. and Mrs. Dewey. It was coincidence that the Deweys were in Washington for Mrs. Dewey to receive the reward.

Early last week Mrs. Dewey planned to accompany Mr. Dewey to Washington on a business trip. Then the letter came from M. de Laboulaye stating his desire to confer the decoration personally. Mrs. Dewey informed the ambassador she would be in Washington this week. In turn M. de Laboulaye planned last night's dinner.

Nothing of the award was known here, however, before the Deweys' departure, for Mrs. Dewey kept it a secret. The first news of it reached Chicago late yesterday in a wire to the French consulate which was soon relayed to the Alliance Française. And there in the offices in the Fine Arts building there was much rejoicing since Mrs. Dewey has served two years as president of the conseil du administration of the alliance.

M. de Laboulaye cited this work last night. He also recalled that Mrs. Dewey was before her marriage Marie Suzette De Marigny Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Hall of New York City, and great granddaughter of Marquis de Mandevill Marigny of New Orleans, who entertained Louis Philippe on his visit to this country.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

A very wise physician said to me once:

"You can't have everything in this life. If you take one thing you have to dispense with another. There has to be a choice. Before you commit yourself irrevocably to that choice BE SURE it's what you want. . . ."

The hero of this movie [adapted from John Howard Lawton's Theater Guild play, "Success"] has made his decision. Success—at any price—is his goal.

He wins the success. And pays the price. . . .

If you trouble to analyze the various characters of this story I think you will agree that they are true to life. They do what you think they'll do one minute, and what you think they won't the next, which is human nature, even if it isn't the most satisfactory movie technique.

Douglas Fairbanks Jr.—looking sort of puny in a mustache—is excellent as an uncultured, bitter, dynamic, abnormally restless young fellow whose discontent provides the steam for his driving energy.

Colleen Moore is sweet and believable—though rather drab and not particularly magnetic—as the good woman in his life. She'd loved him when he was poor and nothing can wean her affections from him, not even a belated offer of marriage from her boss—whose girl and business Joe has appropriated. . . .

Frank Morgan fills Merritt's shoes capably. Genevieve Tobin is shellac-y and soft-spoken as "the bit of perfume and whipped cream" Joe desires and finally possesses. Edward Everett Horton furnishes some grateful comedy. . . .

Much of the action occurs in the offices of a large advertising company and in Agnes' various apartments. . . .

I can see where you're going to pull this picture to pieces. Well, Joe's rise IS rather spectacular. But youthful financial wizards who have sprung from oblivion and made their mark in the world are not unknown.

Dialog could be better—but it's far from bad. And I thought that the director did a pretty good job.

Jam Lends Tang to Cake, Sauce and Even Punch

Concoctions Are Veritable Delicacies.

"Baking the Perfect Cake," a 56 page booklet containing directions and recipes for 48 cakes, frostings, and fillings, along with causes and remedies for cake failures, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 20 cents. By mail, 23 cents, stamps or coin. Address requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

Maybe the youngest members, those who with that look of innocence in their eyes have raided jam cupboards through the years, will be difficult to convince that there is anything in this land of delights better than jams and jellies lavished upon hastily hewn slabs of mother's fresh bread.

But we know better—or think we do. For, beautiful as is jam on bread, still more beautiful to heaps of us is the contents of a jam or jelly glass turned out to dress up the interiors of old fashioned jam cake, currant jelly punch, crimson jam sauce, or jelly roll-up pastry tart.

Which maybe will answer a lot of ladies' wishes for the cake for which a lot of husbands have been asking all their married lives. So try it and see if 'tis not even better than the spicy delicacy he swears his mother used to make:

OLD FASHIONED JAM CAKE.

1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon cinnamon
1½ cups flour
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon allspice
½ cup buttermilk
½ cup jam
½ cup nutmeats
½ cup chopped citron

Cream the butter and sugar until light, then stir in the well beaten eggs. Sift the flour, measure, and sift again with the soda and spices. Add this mixture alternately with the buttermilk to the egg mixture. Fold in the jam, nuts, and citron, and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for forty minutes or until done.

But perhaps you think it's going to take just too much ambition to make a cake today. Then why not a batch of the most different sort of cookies to which you ever treated the sweet teeth in the family? Shake hands, my friends, with:

CHEESE AND JELLY COOKIES.

1 package cream cheese
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons cream or evaporated milk
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup cake flour
Currant jelly

Beat up the butter and cheese and then whisk in the sugar and liquid until the whole mixture puffs with fluffiness. Shake the flour once through a sifter, then measure and sift with the salt into the butter mixture. When completely blended roll out the dough on a lightly floured board and cut it in three inch squares. Best roll it quite thin to make speedy baking possible. Fill the center of each square with a teaspoon and one-half of jelly—no more. Fold over the corner of each to form triangles and pinch the edges firmly together. Bake these puffy tarts in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) on a lightly greased baking sheet. It will take about 13 minutes to bake them through and turn them goldenly brown. You should have two dozen tarts from this recipe. But look 'em up or you won't have them long!

And as a winder-up how about a drink which goes down slickly whether it's hot or cold—the drink, I mean, not the weather. So if you've on hand some quarts of currant juice put up in a weak moment last summer—too weak a moment really to put it into jelly on the spot, a bottle of commercial pectin, the recipe on the bottle, and the juice you've been hoarding will quite suddenly turn out the currant jelly for which this funny little punch calls.

CURRANT MINT PUNCH.

Slide one glass of currant jelly into a saucepan and over it pour two quarts of boiling water and one cup of granulated sugar. Have that done? Then plant the pan in a cool spot somewhere and forget about it until it's dropped down to room temperature. By this time have ready the juice of six lemons and two oranges. Strain and add to the currant sirup. Slice two more oranges very thinly and duck them into the mixture. Add a quart more water and either serve pronto, well iced, or pour into cans and house in the back of the refrigerator until needed. Just before handing about tuck a sprig of mint in each glass of punch.

The Braille Theater Guild, a group of twelve blind players, will present a program of three plays on March 22 at the Chicago Woman's club. The group won second prize last fall at A Century of Progress in the Chicago Drama league tournament.

The plays to be given are "The Dear Departed," "The Undercurrent," and "The Last Refuge." They are being directed by Dorothy Proesch. The theater was organized three years ago.

Double Recital on Harpsichord Thrills Critic

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Music for two pianos got a great sendoff last night, and music for two harpsichords an even greater one, when Philip Manuel and Gavin Williamson gave a recital on the two pairs of instruments at the Goodman theater. The event was under the auspices of the Musicians' Club of Women.

Music for the harpsichord is seldom heard except when specialists like these artists make an appearance, and naturally music for the two instruments is even less frequent. It has a great deal of charm. The plucked string effect, by which this ancestor of the piano gains its sound, is subject to so many changes of tone quality that it is surprisingly expressive. It is always aristocratic. It is music of the white wig and the dress sword. It may be slow moving or it may be lively, but it never loses its poised dignity.

Mr. Manuel and Mr. Williamson played ancient music on the harpsichords and modern music on the pianos and were received with great enthusiasm for each. They are alert and skilled performers and their choice of music is excellent.

Gregor Piatigorsky ended his engagement with the Chicago Symphony orchestra yesterday afternoon by presenting a concerto new to these concerts. It was the one written in 1919 by Sir Edward Elgar during a summer in the Sussex country.

This is Elgar at just about his best, a work which for tunefulness and general musical interest compares favorably with the "Enigma" variations, and so much more attractive than the symphony presented by the orchestra a few weeks ago that it is hard to imagine them written by the same man.

It has enough display in it to display Mr. Piatigorsky at the height of his powerful brilliancy, enough melody to make its learned qualities less obvious and therefore more enjoyable, enough fervor to make it seem shorter than it is. Altogether it could be made rather popular, at least when Mr. Piatigorsky is playing it.

The orchestral part of the program had three numbers on it. Beethoven's Eighth Symphony, ideally played, was the first. Then came another performance of Leo Sowerby's Passacaglia, Interlude, and Fugue, a highly colored, uncommonly ingenious treatment of a somewhat somber theme, and at the end the second series of what are named orchestral fragments from Ravel's "Daphnis and Chloe," as attractive ballet music as the generation has heard.

Marshall W. Batchelder, tenor, and Blenda Sterner, pianist, appeared in joint recital at Kimball hall last evening. Mr. Batchelder, who has a better voice than he always permits to become evident, is at his best in songs of a gracefully lyric nature.

Miss Sterner was heard in works showing agile technic, to which she added a pleasant tone and a general air of competent intelligence.

Sloping Lines Mark Styles of Spring Season

New Sleeves Are Flattering and Feminine.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Important new clothes, those with the shreds of basting thread still clinging to the seams, and otherwise marked with sure signs of success for a spring season, are here. You can tell them easily after one shopping trip.

The wild, stiff and sometimes erratic shoulders are gone . . . everything slopes smoothly and hugs the streamline, gravely floating gracefully around the figure.

Sleeves are miracles of ingenious seamings, drapings, shirrings, puffings, and planning to make them flattering and feminine. There are long, loose, frightfully smart coats on both street and dress parade suits, costumes and ensembles. They are made with casual, wide loose sleeves, and with fulness in the back. Strictly tailored suits have both fitted short jackets and the longer affairs that look like peasant smocks or Chinese coats.

New fashions are heard as well as seen . . . for taffeta swishes into every outfit with a 1934 design . . . taffeta coats, taffeta blouses, and taffeta trim—you can't get away from it. Color runs riot, from the incredible bright shades in tweeds and wools to the newest prints that smoulder with fiery reds and tropical or jungle color combines.

Blue apparently has conquered the town, every shade of blue that ever came out of a dye pot is good this spring. They are even dyeing fox fur in lovely shades of navy blue.

Velvet or velveteen coats top printed silk frocks, with the lining of the coat the same gay print as the dress . . . taffeta coats top sheer wool dresses, and quilted taffeta is something to think about seriously, for it makes some very attractive and smart street coats for warmer weather.

Twin sweaters are still going strong . . . now you wear them in clever new color contrasts . . . white with cherry over a blue or black skirt . . . sea foam green with navy blue . . . violet with chartreuse, yellow with mint green, and old blue with bonbon pink are just a few of the smart possibilities.

Bell Traffic Club.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

We interrupted our daily hopping from shop to shop for a long time yesterday, draping ourselves in what we hoped was an elegant manner over one counter in a store while we listened avidly to the owner of one of our favorite lines of cosmetics give a client what we figured was some of the soundest beauty advice said client could pick up anywhere.

The beauty adviser is a brisk, attractive young woman who certainly knows her business. She believes in self-treatment, and she's designed some grand simple ones that do grand things for a woman. Yesterday, for instance, one patron wanted to know what in the name of heaven she could do to combat a broken chin contour and a crepy throat and neck. We stood by while she got a lesson. She was instructed how to cleanse thoroughly with a liquefying cream, if her skin is normal, or with a creamy rich emulsion this cosmetologist has evolved for the very dry skin. The cleanser removed, a concentrated astringent is patted in with a pad of cotton all over the throat and along the chin contour.

Then came the lubricating with a fascinating cream redolent of white grapes, and the real treatment, a simple operation of muscle lifting and contour building that might be described as "passive exercise." The patron was taught how to pat this in with the finger tips and hand, using a snappy, loose wrist movement, right around the neck to the spine; then patting proceeds up the side of the cheeks under the contour. At first the pats should be brisk but light. As the tissues harden with the exercise they may be a little stronger.

A daily treatment along these lines will do wonders; as the contour and the throat condition improve, two or three times a week for a creaming and an "exercising" will be sufficient. The designer of this treatment explained that she preferred that each client use her own hands and fingers, since she not only gives herself a very swish little treatment for throatline and chin contour but does wonders in the way of hand suppling.

Buzz down, by all means, some time this week or next, to listen in on some of this advice; it isn't often such beauty wisdom is tossed freely to the waiting world.

A Vicious Circle

SYNOPSIS.

Tommy Rostetter, Paris correspondent of the London Times, is persuaded by his friend, Helen Roderick, editor of L'Etoile, to take her place at a dinner party. Otherwise there'd be thirteen guests. The party is given by Dorinda, known as Dodo Quarles, in the Paris apartment that was her mother's. Dodo's mother was Helen's closest friend. Dodo herself is untrammeled by scruples or breeding. Her stepfather, Basil Jethro, celebrated Oxford scholar, is her guardian and trustee. He has long since given up trying to curb her. Helen had promised Basil she would keep Dodo under her wing for a bit. Basil appears at the apartment on the eve of the party.

A MORTIFYING SCENE.

In the passage Tommy paused, arrested by an abusive tirade coming from the staircase and uttered in a rough contralto voice which he knew instinctively belonged to Dorinda Quarles. Whom was she addressing? Not, surely, the apostle of pure reason, honored throughout two continents, but as he caught the reply, low, restrained, and charged with fastidious shrinking, his incredulity vanished.

"Dorinda! Please! I merely wished to know if the five hundred I've just placed to your account will be sufficient for your immediate needs. As I'm returning to Oxford tomorrow, I shall not be seeing you again."

"Sufficient!" The word was snatched up and flung back with violent contempt. "Since when have you bothered two straws about my needs? Why this amazing solicitude all of a sudden? Eh, what's it all about?"

There followed a protest, still evenly courteous, which for some obscure reason seemed to lash the hearer to greater fury.

"O, stow it, blast you! What do I care? Only six weeks more, and after that I shan't have to come crawling to you to settle my bills. God! What a release that'll be!"

"And for me as well, Dorinda."

The unseen listener was struck by the quiet poignance of this retort, which, however, failed to impress its recipient. Instead, evidently intent on her own train of thought, she burst into a malicious laugh.

"Oho! I've got it!" she cried triumphantly. "You're upset over that question I put to you—the one you've never answered. Well, how about it? Why did she send for Macadam? O, I know she never saw him, but why did she send? Explain that if you can."

She seemed bent on tormenting a victim too proud to retaliate—an instance of stupid brutality which made Tommy's blood boil. Small wonder it was met by a tone of chilled exhaustion.

"All this is rather baffling. You must give me some better idea of what you mean, but need we discuss it now? It is hardly the place or the time for—"

With a turbulent flounce the wench was gone. As soon as the dignified step had continued its way, Tommy emerged and with some diffidence followed in its wake, so bent on prospecting to left and right that he failed to notice the suitcase set on the bottom tread till he had knocked it over. Supposing the latter to be Jethro's property—doubtless it contained the books mentioned by Helen—he picked it up to restore it to its former position, but just then the owner came from behind the stairs, hat in hand, and relieved him of it, leveling meanwhile a reserved but keen glance in his direction.

He picked it up to restore it to its former position; but just then the owner came from behind the stairs.

"Thank you, that is mine. I was about to take it with me."

Easy to read the meaning of that questioning scrutiny. Basil Jethro was sensitively anxious to know if this visitor, suddenly materialized from nowhere, had overheard the mortifying scene just passed. It being impossible to offer verbal reassurance, Tommy smiled detachedly and studied the other with brief, sympathetic curiosity.

What he saw was a man of perhaps fifty, taller than himself, but with the slight stoop and muscular slackness which attend the sedentary life, features of distinction if not actual beauty, above which dark hair threaded with gray receded from a high forehead. The parchment skin, creased all over in delicate lines, must normally be extremely pallid, though at the moment the cheekbones were stained a dull red, outward sign of an annoyance repressed but still rankling. The lips, fuller than might have been expected, puckered toward the center, suggesting that their owner when a child had probably sucked his thumb. The steady, hooded eyes claimed chief attention. Neither brown nor green, but some indefinable color between the two, they resembled nothing so much as smooth stones veiled by water, and as the photograph had indicated, they were Mongol in form, with all the Mongol's impassivity. A little cold, they had the look of the pure idealist, and the well bred voice exactly matched them in character.

"Good evening," it now murmured as the tall figure moved toward the door. Tommy had a fleeting impression of fine, nervous fingers, knotted at the joints, grasping the handle of the suitcase, of a measured but elastic step, and of an impeccably fitting morning coat retreating from view.

The door had hardly closed before he became aware of a hard, bold gaze fixed on him from the salon, and realized that the brazen hussy he was prepared to detest had been watching him all the time. But where before had he seen this big, overgrown girl with the hot, brown eyes glistening like an animal's, the splashes of red like spilled Burgundy in her swarthy cheeks, and the strong, sun darkened arms emerging from apricot chiffon? What was there about the strident exuberance of her good looks, full blooded and blowsy like fruit too hastily matured under a tropic sun, which struck a chord in his memory?

"Where did you come from?" she demanded brusquely, then without pausing for his reply gave a loud laugh and extended her hand with frank, disarming cordiality. "No, don't tell me! You're Helen's friend. How jolly odd we've never met till now."

He was staring back at her with fascinated intentness.

"We have met, though," he contradicted urbanely. "In this very room, too, about fifteen years ago. Don't you remember? You were in your nightgown, very busy cramming a complete baba au rhum into your month. I restored you to your nurse and you bit my hand."

She uttered another careless guffaw.

"No—is that so? Sounds like me, anyhow. Greedy and vicious. Well, I still am. Have a cocktail?"

Yes, thought Tommy, watching her big, expansive gestures, she's just that now, a greedy, wanton child, but in another fifteen years, what will she be?

Some of the guests were known to Tommy. For the most part they represented the idle flotsam of expatriates which Paris holds in a negligent grasp, asking little about them so long as they pay their bills. Five at a side, two at each end of the table, their faces were softly lit by orange shaded candelabra, the radiance of which centered in a warm pool round a dish of purple figs and pale green grapes, and left the walls of the room, hung with the late owner's Mortlock tapestries, merged in velvet dusk. The American girl and Tommy occupied one pair of the end seats, and facing them, with the length of the board between, were their boisterous hostess and the guest of honor, Bannister Mowbray.

On the latter personage Tommy bestowed close attention, wondering to what extent he justified his forbidding reputation. Gross, pallid, clumsy, he loomed up a full size larger than any of his companions—a dark man in the middle forties, with a heavy jowl, sparse hair streaked across a pear shaped forehead, and a flattened nose terminating in a fleshy bulb. His small, muddy eyes showed secretive boredom, his chary speech an arrogant superiority little calculated, on the face of it, to attract, and yet by all accounts he possessed singular magnetism. Tommy shrewdly assumed that he had marked down Dorinda as a promising catch—not, be it understood, in a matrimonial sense—and that this superb aloofness of his was but the gaudy may-fly baiting his hook.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., March 13.—[Special.]—Ethelreda Leopold, 19 years old, platinum blonde model from Chicago who was signed there as a film prospect by Warner studio, arrived here yesterday and today showed the studio lot some fast personal salesmanship which brought a movie part on her first day on the lot.

Miss Leopold, a model who is something of an artist, was being shown around the studio. She met Kay Francis. Thereupon Miss Leopold slightly surprised her guide by telling Miss Francis she had long admired her and would Miss Francis mind if Miss Leopold sketched her.

Miss Francis acquiesced and in less than half an hour Miss Ethelreda handed the exotic brunette a completed likeness which Kay thought was good enough to call to the attention of her director, William Keighley. Mr. Keighley, upon being introduced to Miss Leopold, told the latter to report for work on the current Francis picture, saying he would see to it there was a "bit" for her to do. The name of the picture is "Dr. Monica."

Miss Leopold has been chosen second girl in Dance Director Bus Berkeley's new regiment of fifty beauties for musicals at Warners. Number 1 girl is Beatrice Powers, blonde ex-New York show girl of "Rosalie" and "Show Girl" who married the actor Jim Kirkwood. Miss Powers is from East Orange.

Fox has changed the title of the Gaynor-Farrell-Jimmy Dunn-Ginger Rogers throbber from "Manhattan Love Song" to "Change of Hearts."

Joseph M. Schenck says: "What did I tell you? I still predict Doug Fairbanks and Mary Pickford will be reconciled."

King Vidor is now launching his career as an independent movie producer-director with the story "Our Daily Bread" that he has for several years been hankering to make. . . . Tom Keene, one time known in silent films as George Duryea, is signed to be Vidor's leading man. Keene pulled out of talkies as a western hero about a year ago. Vidor's business manager on his new enterprise is Isadore Bernstein, formerly general manager for Universal studio.

Frances Dee's last movie assignment before her temporary retirement to keep a date with the stork is the part of Sally, innocent country girl who provides the contrast for Bette Davis, red headed and designing in Leslie Howard's "Of Human Bondage" at Radio studio. Joel McCrea, Frances' husband, is so enthused about the couple's new ranch home and the outdoor life that he's stocking it with horses. McCrea made an offer to Reb [Lafayette] Russell, famous Northwestern university full back who is now here as a meatured cowboy player to buy Russell's prized stallion. Reb refused to sell.

"I raised him myself back home in Oklahoma and drove him all the way out here in my own trailer," he said. "And I couldn't get as good a horse anywhere else if I did sell him, although I wil ladmit that some of these movie fellows offer a lot of money for a horse."

Russell brought two Oklahoma horses here with him, one a white 8 year old with strawberry roan ears. This horse is a trick animal and now is going through post-graduate school to Tracy Lane, tutor of horses, while Reb is waiting for his call to start work.

The movie story "Harold Teen" was so well received that Warners is recalling Hal Leroy, featured in it, from stage appearances to work in more films. Leroy also was in "Wonder Bar" recently. He'll do his next movie work in May.

Eloping Couple Can't Return to Home Firesides

BY DORIS BLAKE.

She is 17, the boy two years older, and they're planning to elope, since their parents do not approve of the match.

Well, these are not what you would call good eloping days, Rosie. If there is one thing you're going to need it is indulgent, loving parents to see a young pair like you through marriage. You can't manage it without help unless you are a truly remarkable couple. If you were that you wouldn't be planning to sneak off and get the knot tied secretly.

Eloping never has been endorsed as an authentic way of securing happiness. On the contrary, it usually fails because of the foolhardiness of the two who think of marriage as a lark. It's a frightfully serious undertaking, Rosie, in the best of times. But in these days you must bring into it all the good, sound grownup sense which you can muster.

Besides, you're going to need help from those relatives you now choose to ignore, and plenty of it. You understand, of course, that you will have no right to come camping back on them once you hav put them outside your plans with an elopement. That means that you are off and away and on your own, that it is your business and your boy husband's from now on. You stand and fall on your own merits.

You two youngsters probably haven't thought that the food, which you've been partaking of heartily in your respective parents' homes, costs money; that you can't eat unless you have the money with which to buy supplies; that you even have to have money to enjoy warm shelter; that two cannot live as cheaply as one no matter how you budget what you have. And, finally, it takes a stated weekly income to manage at all.

A young man who came in for his fair share of attention was the Towles' two year old son, Charles McNear Towle.

Mrs. McNear returned recently from California. While there she had luncheon with Mrs. Arthur Reynolds in the Reynolds' house in San Mateo. The site overlooks San Francisco bay and the grounds and house are always filled with flowers.

William P. Henneberry is not celebrating his 87th birthday today with any great fanfare or party. Just his family is gathering for a dinner party tonight in the Henneberry apartment on Sheridan road. His daughter, Mrs. Henneberry Robertson, and his sons, George F. and William Henneberry Jr., will be at the dinner. Mr. Henneberry's father settled in Chicago in 1843. Mr. and Mrs. Henneberry will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary soon.

Lecture Series at Woman's Athletic Club

The board of directors of the Woman's Athletic club is presenting the first of a series of lectures on "Trends of Today," at 11 o'clock this morning in the club ballroom. Clifton Utley, whose work with the Council on Foreign Relations has received enthusiastic comment, will be the speaker.

Mrs. Archibald E. Freer will be one of the several members of the American Opera society entertaining at luncheon this noon at the Arts club following the program that is to be presented for the society at 11:15 o'clock. Emery Darcy, baritone, Virginia Hall Johnson, dancer, and Willard Rhodes, pianist, will be the artists interpreting the ballet numbers from the operas, "Magdalene," by T. Carl Whitmer, and "The Chilkoot Maiden," written by Mrs. Freer.

Mrs. Burry Home from Arizona.

Mrs. William Burry Jr. and her two sons, William II. and Michael, are at home in Lake Forest after a six weeks' sojourn on a ranch in Arizona. Mrs. Burry reports that the one weekend she spent in Phoenix was just like being in Chicago, so many of our citizens were there.

Mrs. William K. Gurley and her daughter, Miss Helen Gurley, are leaving tomorrow for New York to sail through the Panama canal to California.

The Joseph C. Beldens and their son, Joseph Jr., who are in Palm Beach, are returning home Sunday.

The Junior Edwin M. Ashcrafts and their daughter, Miss Virginia Ashcraft, and Miss Honoré White, the Howard W. Fentons' daughter, have arrived at home from a cruise through the Panama canal and a visit in California.

The Aldis J. Brownes, who have been visiting Mrs. Browne's parents, the Secor Cunninghams, in Florida, will arrive home tomorrow.

Miss Mary Wilson Cookey, daughter of the Alexander W. Cookeys of Evanston, has returned from a six weeks' trip through the east. She attended the Dartmouth carnival, the Yale prom and visited friends in New York, Washington, Baltimore and Annapolis.

Mrs. Henry Faurot Jr. is at home convalescing from an operation she underwent a few weeks ago at St. Luke's hospital. As she had just returned from a vacation in Florida before she entered the hospital, she believes that she will do her "recovering" right here.

Home Weaver to Show Cloth at Luncheon

Will Tell How She Solved a Farm Problem.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Mrs. William F. Conlon will turn the calendar back more than a century today when she tells the story of "Spinning the Yarn for the American Coverlet" for the members of the Colonial Coverlet guild meeting for luncheon at Marshall Field's.

Mrs. Conlon will exhibit for the first time a piece of dark brown handmade textile, twelve and a half yards long weighing thirteen pounds, said to be the only textile of its size made entirely by hand in a Chicago home since the turn of the century.

Its history is part of the story of the last several years of depression. Mrs. Conlon, finding no market for the wool produced on her Indiana farm, decided to turn it to her account and that of her family two years ago by learning to spin and weave.

The textile she will exhibit today will prove her success. It was last May that she took the fleece of three caracauls, the type of sheep that provide the pelts for Persian lamb coats, and started the work of converting it into yarn. First she washed the wool, carefully preserving the oil which in the old days was used as a base for cosmetics. Then she carded it, combed it between two wooden brushes studded with curved metal bristles, the most tedious part of the process.

After this she patted it between brushes into the long, slender roll known as the "sliver" and from this worked it into yarn on the spinning wheel. She left the wool its natural color but managing it according to certain methods of handcarding so as to attain the necessary uniformity of appearance in the finished piece.

"All of this I accomplished within my home at 1922 West Adams street, right in the heart of this great city where everything is mechanical and modern," explained Mrs. Conlon yesterday. "For the weaving, however, I took my yarn to Hull house where I was advised by Miss Adelene Titsworth who is an expert weaver."

There Mrs. Conlon used the Philippine loom, made of beautiful Philippine mahogany that was presented to Hull house by the Philippine government after it was exhibited at the St. Louis exposition in 1904.

On last Nov. 2 Mrs. Conlon put 14 yards of warp 35 inches wide [this of the handmade yarn] on the loom. Then she started weaving. This continued almost daily, many times with Miss Titsworth's assistance, until last Saturday when the twelve and a half yard piece was removed. In appearance the finished product bears a striking resemblance to the dark brown textile made by the people of the Highland of Tibet centuries ago and now on exhibit in the Field museum.

Mrs. Conlon intends to use her material for coats for herself and her mother. As she will prove today in her lecture, the artistic and historic aspects of spinning and weaving have appealed to her quite as much as the practical.

For illustration of the spinning process today she will use a wheel that belonged to the family of Mrs. Philo A. Otis and which has for many years been stored away in Mrs. Otis' Prairie avenue attic.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

Mr. Sims is universally acclaimed the greatest living contract and auction player. He was captain of the renowned "Four Horsemen" team of four, now disbanded, and has won twenty-four national championships since 1934. These articles are based on the Sims system, which includes the one-over-one principle which the Sims group of players was the first to employ and develop.

OPENER'S PROCEDURE AFTER RESPONSE OF TWO NO TRUMP

We do not term the two-no-trump response a forcing bid technically because, under certain conditions, it may be passed. These conditions are when the opening bid was a purely defensive thirdhand bid—that is, a psychic or near psychic.

Why the Force Is Conditional.

My system provides for very weak third hand opening bids. The weaker the hand, the greater the urge to open the bidding as a defensive move. When the opponents are vulnerable and I am not, I will bid on even less than a primary trick if I have a long suit, so that fourth hand's first bid will be an overcall and not an opening bid.

Should the bidding be opened under these circumstances, it is obvious that even if the responding partner can respond with two no trumps, there is no chance of fulfilling a game contract; so the only policy is to pass.

When you open the bidding with a normal regular bid, not shaded below the requirements already given for opening bids for the different types of hands, you must take the two-no-trump response as a forcing bid.

Naturally your rebid will vary according to the pattern of the hand you hold. If you just have a minimum opening bid you will not wish to play for a higher, contract than a game bid, but if you have plenty of excess values, knowing that your partner has the equivalent of at least two primary tricks, you have slam potentialities in sight. Give your partner all the information that is possible in rebidding your hand. Remember it is just as necessary to bid coöperatively as it is to play the cards skilfully in order to become a winning player.

North	East	South	West
1 Sp. [1]	Pass	2 N. T. [2]	Pass
3 Sp. [3]	Pass	4 Ht. [4]	Pass
4 Sp. [5]	Pass	5 Sp. [6]	Pass
6 Sp. [7]	Pass	Pass	Pass

1. An aggressive hand containing more than one rebid.
2. A little too weak to invite a slam until the nature of North's holdings is ascertained.
3. Denotes a minimum of five cards in this suit. Again this is a safety bid avoiding the slam invitation.
4. This is a mild slam try and shows a maximum of four hearts.
5. The second rebid of a suit assures a minimum of six in the suit.
6. Unless North holds the club ace, the slam cannot be made with a club opening. This belated raise in spades definitely locates the ace of the suit.
7. The slam bid appears to be logical.

Trick	East	South	West	North
1.	♥J	♥Q	♥A*	♥2
2.	♥8	♥10*	♥4	♥3
3.	♣3	♣4	♣5	♣A*
4.	♣3	♣A*	♣5	♣4
5.	♣2	♣8	♣6	♠7*
6.	♣J	♣2	♣6	♣K*
7.	♣7	♦6	♠8	♣Q*
8.	♦2	♥K*	♥5	♥7
9.	♣9	♣10	♣Q	♠9*
10.	♦3	♣J	♦7	♠10*
11.	♦5	♦A*	♦8	♦4

and the last two tricks are taken in North's hand with the diamond king and jack. It was obvious that if East had the club king or queen, a squeeze play would be successful. Thus a difficult finesse was avoided.

Evening Gowns from Paris Are Severely Tailored

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—It always happens when spring breaks in Paris that women weary of wearing trailing, exotic evening clothes. They break into simpler ensembles to get about town in the first fine evenings. This spring the fancy of fashionable women is the severely tailored ensemble made of shiny black materials. These materials are new and look more like a ciré straw than they do like dress goods. They are lacy in weave and quite exciting.

Schiaparelli was the first to launch the tailored ensemble made of this kind of material, which she calls "anthracite." The illustrated ensemble is made of it. It consists of a dress of the utmost simplicity shown in the background and a tailored jacket fastened in front by two big jewel embossed buttons. This suit is daytime length, but some of the suits I see around Paris are ankle length. None is longer.

Women wear such suits and they make a marvellous background for the new extra heavy jewelry that is the rage. Schiaparelli includes a bright chenille scarf with her suit. It is draped close about the neck. She wears an emerald green chenille scarf and heavy gold bracelets set with rubies and emeralds.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., March 13.—[Special.]—The former secretary of the navy and Mrs. Charles Francis Adams have sold the Washington home they occupied during the last administration to Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Hamilton McCormick-Goodhart. It is at 2221 R street, a house especially well adapted to entertaining, with a ballroom on the first floor.

City Child May See Spring in Park, Country

Picnic Expeditions to Both Should Be Frequent.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Do you think because you live in the city that it's silly for me to advise you to take your children where they can see the coming of spring? It isn't at all. I've done it, so I know what I'm talking about.

First, if there's nothing else, one has parks. In the little city parks there are at least birds and bushes and trees and sometimes squirrels. And in the big parks, which usually have lakes and rivulets and little wooded areas and flowers and many wild birds and all sorts of trees and shrubs, spring puts on a brave show.

But parks needn't be all. Subways or buses or trolleys or elevateds will take you to real country or hills or seashore in short order. These lie just outside cities and towns and are not hard to reach.

Don't make your first spring expedition to the country too long—especially if you have young children. They don't know they're tired usually until they're too tired; so start home early, before young legs begin to drag.

Even if it's a short trip a few good sandwiches and a couple of little flasks of milk help energy to hold out and add a picnic filip to the expedition.

Other practical suggestion are: First, don't be misled by the balminess of the air and go too lightly clad. Spring air is deceptive and often holds an underlying chill, especially when you get away from pavements to thawing ground. An extra sweater is often welcome. Look out for feet, too. Rubbers or sometimes galoshes are in order. Spring earth is sometimes actually gooey, at the edges of streams particularly.

Guide books are on order—small ones you can tuck in a pocket if possible. Bird or real field glasses, if you have them, should be slung on a strap over the shoulder for comfort. To travel light and still be equipped to carry home some of the spring treasure trove, take a number of rather large tough paper bags and some sheets of waxed paper for especially damp trophies.

Snail's Trail.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Natural history has its share of names in quilt lore; today, for example, we find the mollusk represented by "Snail's Trail." The completed block measures 14 inches square and, when it is pieced in blue and white, it is difficult to find a more attractive block. The completed spread is one of the outstanding successes in the quilt world.

Give Fine Skin Extra Special Care in Youth

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

About that fine skin which suffers when you try any new kind of lotion, and which even soap will seem to pull up into puckers:

You must begin early to tend to it, to protect it against the early lines and general ageing process peculiar to it, unless cared for. Begin at 20, even though you may not have a sign of a line. This is the type of skin that develops into the comparatively few wrinkled middle-aged faces you see today. The oily skinned woman may have other troubles but she is spared the lines away beyound the dry, fine-skinned one's years.

It's a lovely quality of skin when one is young, fine grained, usually, and not a distended pore mark on the face. But it requires finer treatment that that on which the normal skin or oily one survives. It's like a bit of fine porcelain or a delicate piece of lace. It can't be treated to strong soaps or coarse creams. It should never have astringents applied. They are for an entirely different type of skin. Now that you can go into almost any good salon and have your skin diagnosed for its true condition you need not be in doubt about its texture. That is, you can find out if it is too delicate for the heavier creams, soaps, and cosmetic products. Even with rouges and powders this fine skin has to be treated to something suited to its more delicate needs. But always and every day, lubrication and nourishment to the dry tissue must be added.

I get a good many complaints from correspondents about creams not agreeing with their fine skins. The cream is too heavy or it pulls the skin after using. I suggest that if you can possibly afford it, get an examination and the advice of a salon expert on the texture of the cream best for you. I would suggest one that dissolves quickly and is of a thinnish consistency.

You're sure it's absolutely pure

If a Child Won't Play with Others?

Parents who understand children know where to place the blame when a youngster mopes, keeps to himself, or is "ugly" toward others. Sluggishness ruins any disposition, and that's what is usually wrong. But it's just as wrong to dose that child with sickening cathartics. Until 15—or older—a child's bowels need but little aid—a very mild form of help. Stronger things often upset the stomach or weaken the bowel muscles. For the happy solution of this problem see what to do, in the next column:

There are happy, healthy boys and girls who have never known the bitter taste and violent action of castor oil—or similar cathartics. The only "medicine" they ever get—or ever need—to help the bowels is plain California Syrup of Figs. The senna in this fruity syrup has the natural laxative action that assists Nature as it should. Next day, the child feels and acts himself, and has a normal appetite. But use the real California Syrup of Figs, with the word "California" on the label and on the bottle.

CUBAN DISORDERS CONTINUE; 14 ARE SLAIN, MANY SHOT

9 Killed When Mob Tries to Free Prisoners.

BY GUSTAVO RENO.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, March 13.—Fourteen persons were killed and many injured in further disorders in Cuba's tenth day of widespread strikes.

Five policemen and four labor agitators were killed, and many were wounded when a mob tried to release prisoners being brought from Esmeralda tonight to the city of Santa Clara. Earlier in the day 16 army officers were arrested at Santa Clara charged with a conspiracy to overthrow the government.

3 Aids of Batista Jailed.

Three former aids of Col. Fulgencio Batista, chief of the staf of the army, were among the group who were arrested.

Five bombs were exploded in Santa Clara today with heavy damage to business property, and police are tonight enforcing martial law.

Five were reported killed and 22 injured at Santiago in clashes between strikers and strike breakers. Troops are also patrolling the streets of Santiago tonight.

The local labor confederation, supported by the Graphic Arts syndicate, street car men, chauffeurs, employés of bakers, tobacco workers, and Bacardi factory workers, declared a strike today. Buses with military guards are taking soldiers and government officials about the city. Several labor leaders were arrested and locked in Moncado barracks.

Bomb City Hall in Suburb.

Damage estimated at $250,000 was caused in the city hall of Guanabocoa, a Havana suburb, when two bombs exploded in a conference room.

Discovery of the theft of four cases of dynamite from a railway warehouse atAntilla, Oriente province, is credited with heading off a plot to destroy important railway junctions in the sugar belt lines. Antilla is under martial law tonight.

GEORGE H. EARLE.

Washington, D. C., March 13.—(AP)—George H. Earle was said authoritatively today to have resigned as United States minister to Austria in order to run for governor of Pennsylvania. Earle was in this country on leave discussing his candidacy for governor when the civil war broke out in Austria. He immediately returned to Vienna and has remained there until he felt the situation had returned to normal. He will sail for New York March 27.

Taverns Ask Writ to Halt Sales Tax Collections

Springfield, Ill., March 13.—(AP)—Seven Chicago tavern owners filed in the Supreme court today a suit for an injunction to restrain the director of finance from collecting the sales tax from taverns and restaurants. They maintain they sell a service rather than tangible property. The Cook county Circuit court dismissed the case for want of equity.

70 Persons Sterilized by Order of Hamburg Court

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAMBURG, March 13.—More than 70 cases of sterilization of persons suffering from hereditary diseases have been ordered by the Hamburg Hereditary Health court recently, it was announced today. The operations have been carried out. In the majority of cases the afflicted persons themselves applied for sterilization.

MOB OF SPANISH FASCISTS RAID MACIA'S TOMB

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Spain, March 13.—[Telephoned to London to avoid censor.]—While extremists paralyzed industry in six Catalan towns with a general strike today, a gang of their Fascist enemies staged a dramatic demonstration at the tomb of Francisco Macia, late father of Catalan independence and leader of the leftist Catalonian party.

Dozens of wreaths lying on Col. Macia's new grave in Montjuich park, near Barcelona, were piled up and set afire. The separatist flag flying over the tomb was torn down and added to the fire.

Socialists also did some burning in other parts of Spain, destroying copies of the Catholic paper, El Debate. This paper, which was one of three appearing today despite the strike of newspaper workers, was distributed in trucks provided by the government, which not long ago considered El Debate the mouthpiece of its worst enemy. Just as paradoxically, Epocha, violent monarchist paper, got police protection for its issue, which featured a demand for the outlawing of socialism. The Socialista refused police aid and was sold only in socialist centers.

Misfortune Hits This Family 3 Times in Day

Logansport, Ind., March 13.—[Special.]—Misfortune hit the Matt Beaver family three times today. Dana, 23, was operated upon for appendicitis. Otto, 20, suffered three broken ribs when kicked by a horse, and the home burned while the family was rushing Dana to the hospital.

Omaha, Neb., March 13.—(AP)—Thirty-six years ago, when she was 65, Mrs. Helena Faust of Omaha made her own burial cap and gown. Today she observed her 101st birthday.

HANGS HERSELF; SON KEEPS BODY FOR THREE DAYS

Auburn, Ind., March 13.—[Special.]—Dead since Friday night, when she had hanged herself, the body of Mrs. Cora Norton, a widow, was found on the floor of her home in Waterloo last night, the county coroner reported.

With her body in the house was her mentally defective son, wearing only a belt and a short kilt. The son, Harry Hamilton, 35 years old, had found his mother's body in the enclosed porch where she had committed suicide, cut it down and started to carry it upstairs to a bed room, the coroner deduced. Finding the body too heavy, he laid it on the floor and did not notify friends or neighbors until last night when he called the family physician.

The son is said to have lived nude for the last seven years, never leaving the house in that time. Graduated from a university, he worked as a teller in a Ft. Wayne bank until 1920, when his mind gave way.

SEND UP BALLOON WITHOUT A CREW IN RUSSIAN TEST

LENINGRAD, U. S. S. R., March 13.—(AP)—Russian scientists inaugurated an experiment in stratosphere flights yesterday by sending aloft an "automatic" balloon which burst by prearrangement at a height of 18,600 meters [about 10 miles] and released scientific instruments attached to it.

Hourly wireless reports showed the bag, without a human crew, reached its maximum altitude two hours after being released. At 18,600 meters the temperature was 55 degrees below zero centigrade. Thereupon the balloon burst, according to schedule, and automatically released a parachute which carried the instruments to earth. Reports tonight said these landed safely.

The balloon consisted of one envelope containing a small quantity of hydrogen and carrying an automatic wireless recording device and other instruments.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, March 13.—Discovery of a miniature Monte Carlo on what was intended to be a round-the-world Argentine floating fair was understood today to have resulted in cancelation of plans for the cruise. It was announced officially that financial difficulties had caused postponement of the voyage, which was originally scheduled to start March 11.

Sponsors of the transoceanic exhibition, which before today had the support of the government, had made arrangements to enter 56 ports in 32 countries on a 50,000 mile voyage to last until Dec. 31. The liner was to carry exhibitions of all Argentine products and about 250 tourists. Elaborate displays of meat, cereals, and wine had been prepared, and Argentine agriculture and industry were expected to benefit greatly.

Referees—Bell and Hewitson.

MONTREAL, Que., March 13.—[C. P.]—The Montreal Maroons tonight handed the Chicago Blackhawks a 6 to 2 defeat to move into a second place tie with the Montreal Canadiens in the Canadian section of the National Hocky league. Twenty-two penalties were meted out by the referee, four of them majors. A total of 54 minutes was spent in the penalty box.

The Maroons showed plenty of scoring punch and a swift passing attack to take advantage of an edge in man power and score six goals, while the Hawks could break through a tight Maroon defense for only two tallies. Baldy Northcott and Hooley Smith were the individual stars of the game, each with three goals and two assists. Lionel Conacher was the principal bad man, drawing two major penalties and two minors.

Maroons Score Thrice.

The game was scoreless until just after the start of the second period. A fist fight had broken out at the end of the first and two Hawks were still in the penalty box, with the Maroons only a man short, when Hooley Smith took up Jimmy Ward's rebound and put the Maroons ahead. This was the signal for a concentrated Maroon attack that saw two more goals slipped by Chuck Gardiner before it ended. Northcott scored both of them, with Smith figuring in each and Ward and Bill Mackenzie in the other.

Less than two minutes after the third Maroon goal, Doc Romnes, Chicago center, put the Hawks into the running again when he narrowed the Maroon lead by one after taking Mush March's perfect pass from the corner on a beautiful play. Two fist fights broke out before the period ended, but only minor penalties were handed out. Less than two minutes from the end, with Conacher in the penalty box, Northcott counted his third goal of the evening, this time on a play with Herb Cain, former Hamilton amateur.

Maroons Don't Relax.

Going into the third period with a three goal lead, the Maroons never stopped pressing the attack and less than two minutes after the start of the period Smith scored his second goal, racing in to take Northcott's pass. Half way through the period Art Coulter took Johnny Gottselig's relay to slip the rubber into the corner of the net but this was nullified two minutes later when Hooley Smith scored his fifth point of the evening, once again on a pass from Northcott. Three majors were called in this period, Conacher, Cain, and Couture all drawing five minutes for fighting.

Players of both teams came out of the game sporting cuts and bruises. Jimmy Ward had a stitch taken in his forehead after being hit in a fight with Conacher in the first and Frew also showed a cut face. Mush March suffered a head injury in a fall in the last period.

SOX COME FROM BEHIND TO BEAT ANGELS, 6 TO 5

Chamberlin's Triple Gets Him In Stronger.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 13.—The White Sox, through brilliant persistence, this afternoon nosed out the Los Angeles Angels, champions of the Pacific Coast league, in the second game of the series between the two teams. The Sox, who trailed 5 to 1 as the first third of the contest was completed, were victors, 6 to 5.

Chicago partisans were obliged to look upon some pitching which wasn't so warm in the first three innings. The Angels nicked Otho Nitcholas for five hits and three runs in the first two innings, including a homer by Gene Lillard. Otho's successor, Dale Mills, in the one inning he survived, gave up a homer by Frankie Demaree, a double by Jim Oglesby and a single by Carl Dittmar, the same accounting for two runs to round out the Angels' total for the day.

Simmons Stars Afield.

After Nitcholas and Mills had gone away, Phil Gallivan and John Pomorski did right well, aided by some nifty fielding. Al Simmons put on a couple of acts that made the fans understand why many call him the greatest all around ball player extant.

The Sox wouldn't have won, however, but for the sterling work of vanishing Joe Chamberlin, who fast is piling up enthusiastic support as Manager Fonseca's pride and joy.

In the eighth, when the Sox were behind, 5 to 3, Joe followed Luke Appling's double with an enormous triple. Later he scored the tying run on Hayes' single. Pomorski singled to start the ninth and subsequently scored the run that returned him the winner.

Angels Like Nitcholas.

Those five hits off Nitcholas in the first two innings brought about the curtailment of the young man's assignment. Otho got out of the first inning despite two hits, because the boys put on a double play for him. With one out in the second inning, Lillard, home run champion of the coast league, knocked his second homer of the series, an adequate smack that cleared the left field wall by several feet. Dittmar followed with a line single to left and Campbell walked on four pitches.

Pasek and Bonura tried to put on a fancy play to catch Campbell snoozing off first, but Johnny threw the ball into right field. Dittmar scoring and Campbell reaching second. Meola fanned, but Statz doubled, scoring Campbell. Crawford flied to Simmons for the third out.

Hack's Arm Is Useless; Cubs May Lose Him

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 13. — Stanley Hack, the youthful third baseman who a couple of years ago cost the Cubs the neat sum of $30,000, is becoming a matter of real concern for Manager Charley Grimm. The lad who never has been able to prove himself worth half the sum given the Sacramento Coast league club for his services, today was ordered to quit throwing baseballs. The reason for this step is that his right arm is practically dead.

This condition is the result of the wrist fracture he suffered last September when plunked by Bud Parmalee, the wild man of the Giants' staf. The wrist, because of faulty treatment immediately after the mishap, had to be kept in a cast the better portion of the winter and Hack now has discovered that he can't toss a ball across the infield.

Maybe It's Only Temporary.

The condition may be only temporary and then again might not correct itself for several months, thus robbing the Cubs of some of the reserve strength that Grimm figured would be of vast help should an emergency arise.

Because of the necessary vacation for Hack, the Chicago boss has made another alteration in plans for the spring exhibition battles scheduled to open in Los Angeles Thursday. Woody English, who is being counted on for regular employment at third, will start there in the inaugural contest, but will be succeeded in the middle of the game by Auge Galan, the Frisco purchase. Galan was in line to give Billy Herman an argument over the second base job, but Grimm is switching the newcomer to third because the many press agents of the latter insist the far corner is his natural position.

Herman Won't Start.

Babe Herman, prospective right field regular, also will be missing from Thursday's starting lineup. Grimm has decided to let Ki Cuyler occupy that post. The Babe, however, will be given a whack at the job for at least a few innings. This doesn't mean that Herman is going to be condemned without trial because of his weak hitting last year. The Babe will have his chance, but with Riggs Stephenson and Tuck Stainback competing against him the competition will be tough. For the time being Stainback will be used at center, but eventually the place will go to Cuyler.

The pitching Thursday will be handled by Lon Warneke for five innings, with Roy Joiner, the southpaw from Oakland, Cal., succeeding him. The rest of the lineup will be close to what can be expected on opening day April 17. English will start at third and lead off. Second Baseman Billy Herman will swing second, Right Fielder Cuyler will bat third, Left Fielder Tiger Klein fourth, Center Fielder Stainback fifth, First Baseman Grimm sixth, Shortstop Jurges seventh, and Catcher Hartnett eighth.

Hold Thorough Workout.

The workout today was just another of those all around affairs, aimed to polish up the eyes of the batters and strengthen the arms of the pitchers. None of the latter has attempted to bear down. They are reserving the last stages of arm conditioning for the two week stay at Los Angeles. Pitcher Lynn Nelson, who was confined to a hospital for the first five days of training, had to remain out of uniform today, as a matter of precaution. The abcess in his left ear broke during the night, but doctors now predict a speedy recovery.

ROSS AND MORO BOX TONIGHT IN NONTITLE BOUT

Oakland, Cal., March 13.—(AP)—Barney Ross of Chicago, lightweight and junior welterweight champion, will meet Kid Moro of the Philippines in a ten round bout here tomorrow night. No title will be at stake.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Bike race fans of the old school who turn out to whoop, holler and eat peanuts, received plenty of inspiration last night from three of the teams which are spinning round and round in the Chicago Stadium. For an hour and a half the combination of Peden-Schaller, Letourner-Thomas, and McNamara-Lands did some plain and fancy riding which set them up in the lead, one lap ahead of the Debaets-Ottevaere and Gadou-Zach teams at the end of the 51st hour of the six day race.

Peden and Schaller drew up on even terms with Debaets and Ottevaere at 6 o'clock in the afternoon after the last named combination had been on top since midnight Monday. Letourner and Thomas were two laps further back and McNamara and Lands three laps, with several other teams sprinkled in between.

They Get Ideas.

As the evening advanced, Letourner and Thomas went out to catch the leaders. They gained one lap and then another, bringing them on even terms with Peden and Schaller. Along about 10 o'clock Letourner and Thomas decided that they would try to pull out into a lap lead.

That was the signal for the wildest jamming of the evening, for Peden and Schaller decided their adversaries had gone far enough. As Letourner crouched low over his handle bars and whizzed away redheaded Torchy Peden took after him like a flash, riding recklessly on the turns and saving every inch on the flats. The two sped wheel to wheel until their partners, Thomas and Schaller, took up the skirmish.

Then McNamara and Lands began riding in their flashiest fashion, taking the turns sometimes wide and sometimes close. Weaving in and out among the other riders these two speed kings drew up on even terms with the leaders.

They Have Some Fun.

At about eleven o'clock in the evening a diversion occurred in the infield. Several young men who had soaked up more than their share of bike race atmosphere began hailing acquaintances in the gallery in obstreperous fashion. After soaking up a bit more atmosphere, they captured a bicycle which some one had left against the rail, and made several precarious excursions around the infield, each trip ending in disaster as the rider fell off. Presently the owner of the wheel rescued his property and heaped recriminations upon the borrowers.

By this time the young bloods were literally steeped in the atmosphere of bike racing and began tossing hats onto the track beneath the wheels of the riders. An attendant of very slight stature demurred, but when one of the disturbers, who was at least a light heavyweight, ignored him pointedly, he showed little inclination to press his protest. Instead, he had recourse to the law and presently a burly policeman bore down on the riotous young men.

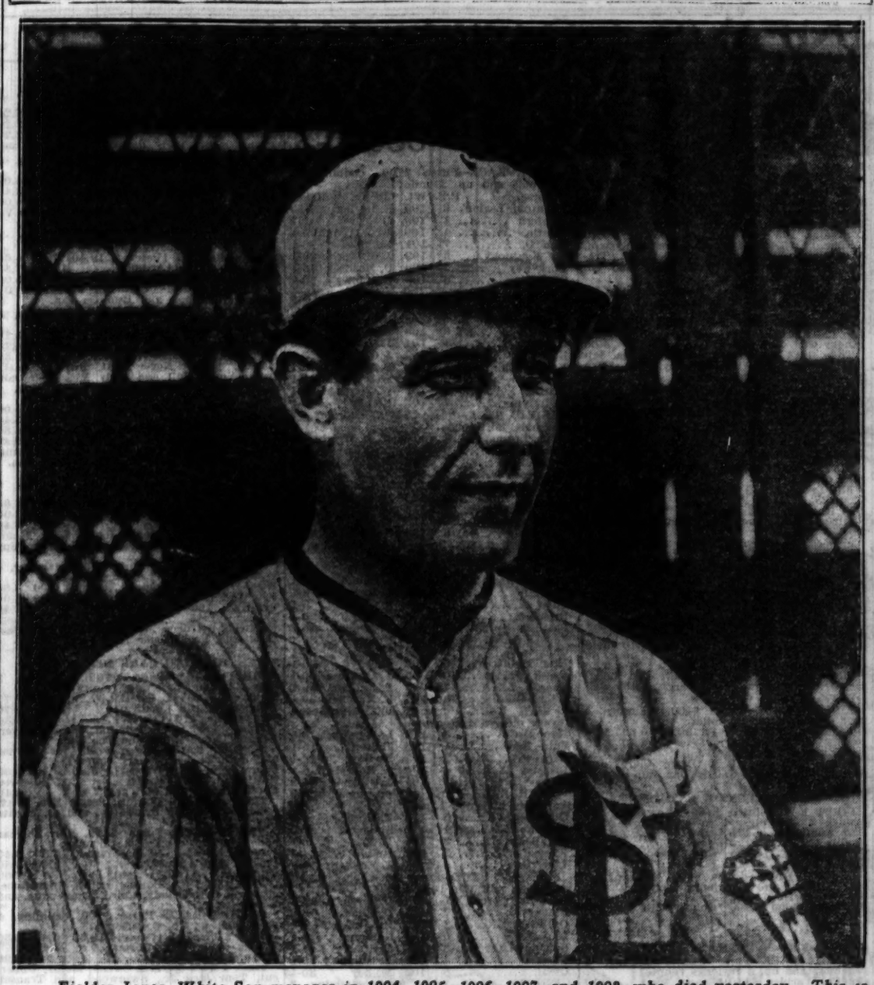
JONES AS ST. LOUIS LEADER



Fielder Jones, White Sox manager in 1904, 1905, 1906, 1907, and 1908, who died yesterday. This is how he appeared as leader of the St. Louis Federal league team, which lured the Fielder from the lumber business, to which he went following his retirement from White Sox duties.

Old Kickapoo Wins, Tests Ethics of Bookmakers

The ethics, if any, of Chicago bookmakers were put to a test yesterday when Old Kickapoo won the fifth race at Agua Caliente without a single first place ticket having been sold on him.

With no straight pari-mutuel prices quoted on the horse, bookmakers were without the customary basis for gauging their own payments to bettors. In most cases, although the bettor had made a winning wager and presumably was entitled to some reward for his acumen in picking Old Kickapoo, the bookmakers merely refunded the amount bet without attempting to determine the exact odds due the bettor.

Some Pay House Odds.

In a few rare instances bookies paid off at their own "house odds," some at 20 to 1 and others at 30 to 1, regardless of whether the bettor had specified that he wanted house odds or track odds.

The bookmakers themselves, by a process of specious reasoning, argued that the case, although one of the most peculiar in racing history, was analogous to that in which a horse is figured as "out" when only a small number go to the post in a race. In such cases, however, no tickets are sold on horses to run second or third, whereas in Old Kickapoo's case tickets were offered for sale on all ten horses to win and a sizable straight pool was accumulated at the track.

Place Straight Money in Pool.

In the mutuels all of the straight money was placed in the place pool and divided among holders of tickets on Old Kickapoo and Flyfast, which had finished second, thereby making the winner's place price $230.40. Chicagoans who bet Old Kickapoo straight through the Chicago bookmakers contended, with what appeared to be sound logic, that they were entitled to the place price on the horse.

There was no evidence that any of the Chicago bookmakers viewed the matter in the same light.

AGUA CALIENTE, March 13.—(AP)—Old Kickapoo, 10 year old gelding from the stable of C. Lemons, won the fifth race at the Agua Caliente track today and not a mutuel ticket was sold on the horse's chances to win.

In this emergency the winning pool was added to the place payoff, and the spoils were divided among holders of place tickets on old Kickapoo and those wagered on Flyfast, which ran second. The result was a place price of $11.40 on Old Kickapoo and of $7 a piece on Flyfast, when the latter would have paid only $7.20 to win.

And, to make the race even more odd, not a winning ticket was sold on Patricia Grey, which raced for J. Brannon and finished sixth.

Few Place Tickets Sold.

Veteran mutuel department employés declared it was the first time in their memory that no winning tickets had been sold on a horse which came down in front, and said they doubted if ever in the history of the North American turf had two horses in the same race been entirely overlooked by bettors.

Old Kickapoo, a good sprinter in his day, followed the early pace of Sleeve's Pride and then Flyfast to the stretch, where he took command, to win by half a length. Chugo took the show. The winner ran the 5½ furlongs in 1:07. Show tickets on Old Kickapoo were redeemed for $7.20.

Sold at Auction Sunday.

The veteran sprinter, once owned by the Canyon stable of John Coburn and Jack Dempsey, was a big favorite in his day when called to go any distance up to six furlongs. But this afternoon not even his owner thought he could beat a band of sprinters entered in the $500 claiming race.

CANZONERI WINS OVER ARIZMENDI BEFORE 12,000

Los Angeles, Cal., March 13.—(AP)—Tony Canzoneri, former lightweight champion, turned back Baby Arizmendi's bid for a place in the top rankings tonight by whipping the Mexican decisively in a ten round battle. Canzoneri weighed 131 pounds to 128 for Arizmendi.

Outboxing the Mexican in the early rounds and then outslugging him as the bout drew to a close, Canzoneri showed a capacity house of 12,000, who paid $18,000 to see the match, that Arizmendi was in no class with the former champion.

PILOTED HITLESS WONDER SOX TO ROUT OF CUBS

Passes Away at 62 from Heart Ailment.

Portland, Ore., March 13.—(AP)—Fielder A. Jones, former big league baseball player and manager of the "hitless wonder" Chicago White Sox, died today from heart inflammation. He was 62 years old.

It was under the dynamic leadership of Jones, who played in the outfield most of his career, that the White Sox first rose to greatness and demonstrated conclusively that brains and speed could master brawn in baseball as well as in other fields of sport.

That 1906 world series was one of the big upsets of baseball. The Cubs had set a National league record by winning 116 games and losing only 36, a record that stands today, whereas the White Sox won the American league championship in a close finish. Few gave the White Sox a chance in the world series, but Fielder and his mates turned the trick, 4 games to 2.

Brains Overcome Brawn.

His White Sox could not hit much more than their weight, so Fielder Jones introduced speed, psychology, and daring into the game. As the club went on to win the American league pennant in 1906 and then crushed the haughty Cubs in the world series upset, the White Sox fans got their first big thrill.

A brilliant pitching staf consisting of Doc White, Big Ed Walsh, Nick Altrock, Frank E. Smith, Yip Owen, and Roy Patterson offset scarcity of Sox hits. During the 1906 season the White Sox didn't have a .300 hitter, but Jones shifted and juggled his pitchers, sent his men out for stolen bases, and amazed the opposition with his daring.

Replaced Jimmy Callahan.

Jones, who was born in Shinglehouse, Pa., Aug. 13, 1871, started his career in Oregon in 1893. In the season of 1895 he was purchased by Brooklyn, where he made good and starred as a fielder and batsman from 1896 to 1900, inclusive.

Jones piloted the White Sox for five seasons, replacing Jimmy Callahan in June 1904 and running the team through the 1908 campaign. Under his five years of leadership, the White Sox won one pennant and a world's championship, finished second once, and landed third three times.

Quits for Lumber Business.

He quit baseball after the 1908 season to enter the lumber business and Charles A. Comiskey, late owner of the Sox, could not get him back. He remained out of baseball until the Federal league was under way and then became manager of the St. Louis Browns, a job he soon gave up to go back into the lumber business. This time he stayed out for good. His last years were spent in retirement at his home here.

Next to Ty Cobb, Jones probably was the most ferocious umpire baiter. He wore a path from center field to the diamond as he ran in to argue umpires' decisions. He was banished often for kicking. One day, he was ejected for that reason and Comiskey argued in vain before the late Ban Johnson to have the Fielder reinstated. The next day, Johnson sent "Commy" a mess of fish.

"What does Johnson want me to do —play the fish in center field?" asked Comiskey.

COLLEGE GROUP TESTIFIES TODAY ON SPORT TAX

Washington, D. C., March 13.—(AP)—Spokesmen for the National Collegiate Athletic association shaped arguments tonight they will offer the senate finance committee tomorrow for removal of a 10 per cent admission tax on college athletic events.

Three college athletic directors will testify. They are Frank McCormick, University of Minnesota, speaking for the Big Ten; C. P. Miles, Virginia Polytechnic institute, representing the Southern conference, and D. H. Harrison, University of Pittsburgh, of the Eastern Collegiate association.

They are prepared to argue that the tax, while a mere pittance to the government, is driving customers from college sports and forcing athletic associations into "the red."

The senate committee is scheduled to wind up its hearings tomorrow on the $258,000,000 tax bill, which carries the 10 per cent levy.

REPORT CARIDEO FACES LOSS OF MISSOURI JOB

Kansas City, Mo., March 13.—(AP)—The Kansas City Star in a special dispatch from St. Louis mentions a possibility Frank Carideo may not be retained as head football coach at the University of Missouri. The dispatch said: "According to stories told in influential Missouri alumni circles" the decision is in the hands of Chester L. Brewer, athletic director.

STEIN TO MEET ZAHARIAS ON STADIUM CARD

Sammy Stein will make his Chicago Stadium debut on the heavyweight wrestling card featuring Londos and Garibaldi next Wednesday night. He has asked to be matched against George Zaharias.

"I want the best of the bad men so if I should be defeated it will be by a man of reputation and originality," Sammy announced.

The Stadium abided with Stein's wishes and signed Zaharias, who had been matched with Pat O'Shocker. Pat will be placed elsewhere on the card.

The mid-western debut of Jagot Singh, be-mustached Hindu from off India, against Frank Speers, former Georgia Tech football star, is another feature on next week's card. This match and the Stein-Zaharias bout are the only supporting contests arranged to date.

Michigan Smelt Expected to Run Next Saturday

BY BOB BECKER.

Illinois fishermen who want to see a Michigan smelt run should be making their plans for such a sight this week, according to word received from George E. Secord, East Jordan, Mich. The Jordan river smelt run "is expected to break any day now," writes Mr. Secord. Sportsmen in the northern part of Michigan, especially in and near the town of East Jordan, are getting ready for their big annual "smelt jamboree" next Saturday night.

The Lake Michigan smelt, a small fish transplanted to inland waters from the Atlantic ocean some years ago, stages an annual spring run which gives Michigan outdoor fans a lot of fun. It comes up Michigan rivers to spawn in countless schools. The fish usually stage their big parades after dark. Everybody then lines the banks and dips out smelt with all kinds of gadgets.

East Jordan has seized upon this smelt migration as an excuse for an early spring party. Sportsmen from all over the middle west, as far east as New York state and as far south as Ohio come to East Jordan for this smelt dipping party. Mr. Secord further advises us that a "smelt king" will be crowned again this year. This, of course, is a takeoff on the "queen" epidemic which has swept the country in recent years.

The party, one of the few ever held in honor of a fish, will start right after dinner Saturday night. Prior to the dinner the king will be crowned and a parade staged by the king and his court. The dinner is a stag affair for sportsmen and their friends. After dinner everybody will go down to the stream, there to dip for the small, silvery fish which begin to ascend the waters after dark. Any sportsman who wants to take part in the smelt dipping is invited to come to East Jordan for dinner and to meet the king and his court.

The smelt has become so abundant in Lake Michigan that it is a conservation measure to dip as many as possible every spring. This little fish, which is delicious eating, has increased its numbers in wholesale fashion. In fact, there are too many for the good of other fishes in Lake Michigan and adjacent waters.

THREE FOREIGN DRIVERS TAKE OUTBOARD RACES

Palm Beach, Fla., March 13.—(AP)—Invading drivers made it a sweep for the day in the international motorboat races this afternoon as Miguel Barella of Spain won the second class X outboard qualifying test.

Marquis de la Gandara of France had captured the first of today's class X international events and Antonio Becchi of Italy had run far ahead in the first heat of the Victor Bendix trophy race for 12 litre craft.

Barella and de la Gandara qualified with their victories for the international championship outboard event to be run Sunday. Horace Tennes of Chicago and Jean Dupuy of France already had earned the right to try for the honor, Tennes taking three of the first four trials.

De la Gandara finished second and Phillip Ellsworth of Big Moose, N. Y., third, the latter narrowly beating Francis Lukavecz of Hungary.

BERLIN, March 13.—Max Schmeling, former world's heavyweight boxing champion who will leave tomorrow for Barcelona, Spain, where he will meet Paulino Uzcudun April 8, issued a challenge today to Walter Neusel, German heavyweight, who now is in the United States. The challenge is for a match in June to settle the German heavyweight championship.

Both claim the title now. Schmeling relinquished the championship several years ago when he first invaded the United States. Neusel last Friday night defeated King Levinsky at New York. If Neusel accepts the bout probably will be held in the big Hamburg outdoor ring.

Three Chicago Teams Win in A. A. U. Meet

Kansas City, Mo., March 13.—[Special.]—Three Chicago teams will answer the call for third round competition here tomorrow in the National A. A. U. basketball tournament. After the Schuessler A. C. and Chicago Optometrists had fought their way to decisive victories, the Chicago Fast Freights today made it a grand slam for the round by defeating the Sugar Creeks of St. Louis, 32 to 21.

The Freights will play Dominion Electric of Minneapolis tomorrow in the third round, and if the team displays the same brand of basketball it should experience little difficulty in qualifying for the quarter finals Thursday night.

Schuesslers Are Impressive.

Vandermueller, Chicago forward, played less than five minutes of the second half, but scored seven baskets and two free throws for a day's total of 16 points. Young appeared only during the last five minutes and made two field goals.

The Schuesslers will meet the Renos of Hutchinson, Kas., tomorrow.

Optometrists Win Easily.

The Chicago Optometrists defeated Rockhurst college of Kansas City, 33 to 22. The young Chicago squad that made such an impressive showing in defeating one of the Missouri valley's leading college teams will play Gridley Chieftains of Wichita tomorrow.

After a shaky start the Optometrists pulled away on goals by Ameling and Anderson and held a 14 to 11 advantage at the half.

BLUE RIBBONS BEAT DETROIT IN LACROSSE, 17 TO 15

The Chicago Blue Ribbon professional lacrosse team defeated the Detroit Tigers, 17 to 15, at the Arcadia Gardens last night. The Detroit team led for the first three periods, but in the fourth with the insertion of Piper Bain in the Chicago lineup, the Blue Ribbons caught and then passed the visitors. The Tigers were leading, 14 to 11, at the end of the third period, but Bain figured in four of the scores that followed.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

TOTALIZATORS.

MIAMI, Fla., March 13.—Joseph E. Widener, dominant figure in the Hialeah and Belmont Park race tracks, recently revealed that the ultimate aim of New York racing interests was pari-mutuel wagering, although the present remedial legislation sought does not go that far. It does open up bookmaking from the present unsatisfactory "nod" system.

The occasion was a dinner given by turf writers in honor of Mr. Widener. Therefore he felt he was among friends and spoke frankly. He recited the difficulties under which metropolitan tracks had operated, for the last several years at a loss, and said that their sponsors did not feel able longer to shoulder that loss for the sake of the sport, hence racing would be discontinued or stakes and purses so reduced as to lower the class unless some relief was forthcoming.

But the statement that particularly interested The Wake was in reference to betting. Mr. Widener is a strong believer in the pari-mutuel system when operated through totalizators, both as protection to the public and as tending to discourage plungers and large betting operations. To secure state sanction for such wagering in New York, however, a constitutional amendment would be necessary, involving a referendum vote. That is the goal sought, with bookmaking in the interim.

Of course, the principal reason pari-mutuel betting discourages large bettors at the track is because their own money shortens the price against their choice if they place it through the machines. If they place it with commissioners away from the track, it is almost certain, if a large amount, to be wired back to the track, whole amount or part of it, and thus affect the odds just the same.

At Hialeah, Mr. Widener explained, individual wagers were not heavy as plungers know big money, losses were not above what the bettors could afford and every one was happy in enjoying good sport. "None should bet more than he can afford to lose, regarding the great sport as amusement," said the creator of Hialeah Park. That sentiment has often been expressed to readers of this column by its conductor.

Long Home Run.

Harvey: Back in the days of the great Cub machine, piloted by Frank Chance from 1905 on, the players as individuals usually took a barnstorming jaunt for extra money after the regular season closed. One fall they played the Whiting, Ind., Grays, champions of the Northern Indiana league.

Frank [Wildfire] Schulte came up and hit a home run over the fence. Next came Heine Zimmerman. Heine Zim's sock not only went over the fence but hit the tile roof of the Franklin school in Robertdale, a suburb, bounded off to a Whiting-bound street car's back fender. As the car was rounding the curve at 119th street the ball rolled off onto Indianapolis boulevard. Here the road slopes downward and the sphere gathered momentum and ended up at the Forsythe avenue bridge at Indiana Harbor canal, East Chicago. The ball traveled through four wards and almost six miles. Fact! Some home run!

Giants Beat Macks, 1-0, for 4th Victory

Fort Myers, Fla., March 13.—[Special.]—The New York Giants showed midseason form this afternoon as they defeated the Philadelphia Athletics, 1 to 0, in the final game of their spring series. It was the Giants' fourth victory.

Singles by Hughie Critz, Mel Ott, and George Davis gave the world champions their winning run in the sixth inning. The Athletics, however, outhit the Giants, getting seven off Hal Schumacher, Clyde Castleman, and Watson Clark. The Giants got six hits off Merritt Cain, Leroy Mahaffey, and John Marcum.

1,000 FANS WATCH RUTH.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 13.—(AP)—Babe Ruth may be on his last legs as a baseball player, but he still pulls the fans in at the gate. The Yankees were scheduled for only routine work of hitting and fielding today but more than 1,000 fans were at Huggins field, most of them to get the Babe's autograph or to take his picture. At one time practice had to be stopped while Manager Joe McCarthy cleared the field of spectators. Pitcher Johnny Allen took the day off because of a cold while Floyd Newkirk reported with a sore arm.

DODGER ROOKIES WIN, 3-2.

Orlando, Fla., March 13.—(AP)—Showing little regard for the star members of the Brooklyn pitching staf, the Dodgers' rookies today handed the varsity a 3 to 2 beating in an intra-club affair. The junior varsity hit Van Mungo, star of the Dodgers' mound staf, for four hits and two runs in two innings, collected three more hits and another run off Owen Carroll in the next two innings, and then were held at bay by Walter Beck during the remainder of the six inning game. Big Leslie Munns, up from St. Paul, and Southpaw Phil Page held the regulars scoreless and to one hit in he first four innings, but they pounded Charlie Perkins, late of Jersey City, for three hits, on which two runs were scored.

BOROTRA LOSES TO BOWDEN IN TENNIS UPSET

New York, March 13.—[Special.]—Three of the four French players who entered the United States indoor tennis championship tournament were eliminated in the third round of play at the Seventh Regiment armory today. The only survivor of the invading quartet was Andre Merlin, French indoor champion, who defeated Berkley Bell, Texas, 2-6, 6-2, 6-2.

The most surprising defeat of the afternoon occurred when Jean Borotra, who was seeking his fifth American indoor title, fell before Frank J. Bowden, New York. The scores were 2-6, 10-8, 6-3. The two other Frenchmen to lose were Christian Boussus and Paul Feret.

Boussus was defeated by George Lott, Chicago, 5-7, 6-3, 6-4, while Feret was handed a 6-4, 6-4 setback by Dr. Eugene McCauliff.

Sidney B. Wood, seeded No. 3 in the tournament, marched into the quarter finals with a 9-7, 6-1 victory over Simon Miler, New York. Other quarter finalists are Gregory S. Mangin, defending champion; Lester Stoefen, Los Angeles, and Frank Shields.

Shields, United States No. 1 ranking player, defeated William Thompson, 6-1, 3-6, 6-0; Mangin disposed of Melvin H. Partridge, 6-3, 6-2, and Stoefen eliminated Dr. Lawrence Kuzrok, New York, 6-3, 6-3.

New York, March 13.—Bond prices moved higher on the stock exchange today, undaunted by wide margin with which the soldiers' bonus bill was passed in the house. Long term United States government bonds were bid up 2-32ds to 9-32ds points with many of the issues attaining new highs for the year. Turnover of $17,464,000 for the listed market as a whole, was the heaviest since Feb. 18.

Railroad bonds led the advance in the domestic corporation issues, many of the carrier obligations spurting 1 to 4 points, with resultant new highs for the year in a number of instances.

Utilities Move Higher.

Utility bonds were by no means neglected as gains of a point or more were registered by International Telephone and Telegraph issues, American and Foreign Power 5s, and Buffalo General Electric 4½s. Gains of 2 or more points in bonds of the Paramount Publix group featured dealings in the industrials.

Foreign loans showed considerably more irregularity than domestics. German bonds continued lower, United Kingdom issues were bid up fractionally to 1¼ points and Belgian, French, Scandinavian, and Dutch East Indies issues held generally firm. Bonds of the Argentine group were generally lower, while the obligations of Chile and Colombia pointed higher.

See Strength in Veto.

Early hesitancy was attributed to nervousness occasioned by the large margin in favor of the bill shown by the vote, indicating that bonus advocates mathematically wield enough power, if they stick to their guns, to override a presidential veto, in the seemingly remote event that the measure passes the senate.

It was recognized, however, that if the bill should get through both houses and be vetoed and then fail of repassage, the government security market will be rendered all the stronger as a result of the administration's success in the battle.

HOLC BONDS.

Quaker Oats.

Investors' Guide: Please inform me as to the financial standing of Quaker Oats and oblige.—Miss H. E.

Answer: This organization, the outgrowth of a company established in 1891, is primarily a manufacturer of packaged cereal products. Its leading brands, all of which are heavily advertised, are Quaker Oats, Puffed Rice and Aunt Jemima pancake flour. It also produces macaroni and spaghetti, and a by-product, animal feed.

Grain prices play an important part in determining profits. The company as a rule does not hedge its grain purchases, following the policy of making commitments for an extended period during those times when prices of grain are at low levels. Sales volume is generally stable, as is the selling price of its product.

During 1931 and 1932 selling prices had to be revised downward in order to meet the changing retail price level. Such action was not necessary in 1933. This, together with rising grain prices, enabled the company to report net income of $4,444,000 for the year, exclusive of $691,000 credit from adjustments in market value of securities and of foreign exchange. This was 4.11 times preferred dividends and equal to $4.81 per common share.

In 1932 net income, before a like credit of $915,000, was $4,297,000, which was 3.98 times preferred dividends and equal to $4.59 per common share. Net income for 1931 was $6,857,000, or $8.23 per common share, against $6,004,000 for 1930, and net of $8,735,000 for 1929.

Current position has been maintained at a high level. The company finished 1933 with current assets of $32,996,000 and current liabilities of $4,557,000.

Reserves totaling $5,911,000 were set up for inventory shrinkage, advertising, insurance, and other contingencies. Surplus was $17,666,000.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists of 180,000 shares of $100 par 6 per cent preferred and 702,000 shares of no par common.

The common pays regular dividends of $1 a quarter. An extra of $1 a share is payable on April 16, 1934. Extras in 1933 totaled $1 a share and $3 a share in 1932 and in 1931.

Both the preferred and common are high grade.

Aggregate Market Value.

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly give me the total value of all issues listed on the New York Stock exchange as of Jan. 31, 1934, or of a later date?—D. P.

Answer: As of Feb. 1, 1934, the 1,206 stock issues listed on the New York Stock exchange had a total market value of 37,364 million dollars. This compared with a market value of 33,095 million dollars for 1,209 issues on Jan. 1, 1934.

ROOSEVELT AIDS FORCE REVISION OF STOCKS BILL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 13.—Rebelling against the brain trust's radical proposals for regulation of the country's stock exchanges, the treasury and the federal reserve board today stepped in to force a complete overhauling of the drastic stock market control bill.

Especially fearful that the bill, as originally drafted by the brain trust, would precipitate a credit deflation and place security markets in a straitjacket, treasury and reserve board chiefs called a conference late this afternoon of all parties in the administration and congress interested in the proposed legislation. The conferees, breaking up after a four hour session, declared that they will meet again tomorrow and may spend the rest of the week whipping together a new stock exchanbe bill acceptable to all parties.

May Rewrite Measure.

All features of the bill are once more under discussion, they said, and the measure may be entirely reworked. Attention is expected, however, to be concentrated particularly on the controversial sections, such as those decreeing requirements for margin trading, for segregation of brokerage, underwriting and other functions, and for control of the exchanges by the federal trade commission as now constituted.

Today's conferences appeared to be the first in a series which will bring a showdown between the radical group, which is asking for a definitive law stipulating outlawed practices and the more conservative group, which desires broad supervisory powers over the exchanges with few specific requirements written into the law. The conservatives appeared to have the upper hand today. All members of the conference, however, were sworn to secrecy. Proponents of stringent control appeared far from disheartened at the close of the meeting.

Pecora Attends Conference.

Among those attending the conference today were Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the senate banking committee and one of the drafters of the original bill; Thomas Corcoran and Ben Cohen, two of the young brain trust lawyers who worked on the first bill; Walter Wyatt, general counsel of the reserve board; Herman Oliphant, general counsel of the treasury; Tom K. Smith, financial assistant to the secretary of the treasury, and E. A. Goldenweiser, research chief of the reserve board.

"This bill is going to have teeth and strong jaws to work the teeth," Mr. Pecora said after emerging from the conference room.

The conference today climaxed a week-end of mysterious rehashing of the exchange control measure. The federal reserve staf is reported to have produced a much less stringent substitute for the original bill, much to the irritation of Mr. Pecora.

Prof. Moley Advises Roosevelt.

Reports also indicate that Prof. Raymond Moley, former assistant secretary of state and chief of the brain trust, has taken a hand in the dispute and advised the White House on the question.

No one involved in today's meeting would predict what form the final bill will take. While Mr. Pecora was renewing his assurances that the bill would be a strong one, a high administrative officer was declaring that the final bill must list all exchange practices, if any, which are deemed criminal, set up broad supervisory powers, and leave all matters like margin requirements, segregation of brokerage from other businesses, and similar specific problems to administrative regulations.

Major changes in prospect would modify the minimum margin requirements in such a way as to provide more elasticity, and work no hardship upon the banks that have huge loans on securities, make some exemptions in the section prohibiting brokers and specialists from trading for their own accounts, and render less drastic the provisions requiring corporate reports at frequent intervals.

Cummings Is Peacemaker in Deposit Fight

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 13.—The mediation of Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, appeared today to have settled a dispute over control of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, of which Mr. Cummings was formerly head.

After Mr. Cummings had spent much of the afternoon at the White House, it was learned he had helped work out a solution for the appointment of a new director upon whom the balance of power within the corporation depends.

Chicagoan Is Blocked.

Leo T. Crowley, who succeeded Mr. Cummings as head of the corporation, and Controler of the Currency J. F. T. O'Connor, an ex-officio director of the corporation, have been waging a bitter tug-of-war over the appointment, each attempting to secure the crucial position for a man of his own liking.

The compromise reputedly worked out today by Mr. Cummings will block the nomination of H. N. Stronck, formerly of Chicago, whom Chairman Crowley was backing for the directorship. It will also prevent the nomination of any of three or four persons being urged by O'Connor.

President to Fill Post.

Mr. Cummings' suggestion to the White House apparently was that President Roosevelt himself name the new director without regard for the previous recommendations and that the President choose an outstanding banker. As far as could be learned, no person's name was mentioned specifically.

Mr. Cummings was head of the corporation from the time of its formation until his election to the chairmanship of the Continental Illinois early in January.

PRINTING FIRM CUTS 1933 LOSS BY TWO-THIRDS

American Colortype company in 1933 reduced by almost two-thirds the net loss sustained in 1932, according to the annual report. Last year's loss after depreciation, interest and reserve for taxes was $342,842, compared with $999,074 in 1932.

"Sales during the early part of 1933 steadily declined, but showed continued improvement practically without interruption during the latter months of the year," said George W. Reynolds, chairman, who signed the report. "Since the beginning of 1934 a still further improvement in sales encourages the belief that better times are ahead."

JEWEL TEA TO BOOST STORE WAGES 12.5%; ABOVE CODE LEVEL

The Jewel Tea company announced yesterday that in line with recommendations of its joint management council it is increasing wages for the staffs of its suburban and country stores, effective March 25. Under the new scale employés who have been with the company for periods ranging from 6 to 18 months will receive increases in pay of $1 to $5 weekly in excess of the applicable code rates.

The new boost will mean an average increase of 12½ per cent to the employés of 23 of Jewel's 87 stores. The total monthly wage increases worked out by the joint management council to date amount to $5,534 a month, or approximately 27½ per cent. These increases affect 397 workers in the Chicago district.

PRICES OF FOOD MOUNT SHARPLY FOR TWO WEEKS

Washington, D. C., March 13.—(AP)—A farm administration study showed today that consumers' food costs and prices received by farmers advanced more during the first two weeks of February than in any other two-week interval since July.

On Jan. 31 farmers' prices averaged 71 per cent of the pre-war average and by Feb. 15 had reached 76. Prices paid by consumers for food advanced from 105.8 per cent of the pre-war level on Jan. 30 to 108.3 per cent Feb. 13. Meats and dairy products led in the advance in consumers prices due to smaller supplies on the market, also to some extent to government relief purchases.

"Part of the increase in the margin between farm and retail prices represents the payment of processing taxes on wheat and hogs," Dr. F. C. Howe said. "This money will go back to the farmers in the form of benefit payments. Farm values, therefore, have really been increased more than is shown by these figures and the usual marketing and processing costs have been increased less."

Quits NRA Post Over Plan to Shorten Working Hours

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 13.—Wilbur W Brooks, president of the Montclair [N.J.], chamber of commerce and vice president of the Montclair National bank, announced today he had resigned as chairman of the Montclair NRA committee because he was not in sympathy with the latest proposal of the Roosevelt administration for a further curtailment of working hours.

Favor Credit Banks Because of Job Outlook

Washington, D. C., March 13.—(AP)—Potential employment of possibly a million workers in heavy industries has inclined the administration to a "favorable" attitude on federal reserve board plans for a special system of industrial banks.

This word was brought from the White House today by Secretary Morgenthau and Gov. Eugene Black, of the reserve board, who advanced the project for a new banking chain to supply capital funds to small industries.

"I am convinced there is a need for this kind of financing," Morgenthau said after meeting with the President. "Mr. Roosevelt is ready to ask congress for the necessary legislation when the plan is completed."

See Work for One Million.

Black estimated that a survey by the twelve reserve banks indicated some 500,000 to 1,000,000 men would gain employment if long term credit was made available to hundreds of industries needing capital money.

"The plan will do two things," he said. "It will set up a source of capital credit never before available and it will take commercial banks out of a loan field in which they never properly belonged."

Morgenthau and Black visited the White House to complete their program and submit it for a final decision. Reserve board experts still are busy tabulating the bank survey on long term industrial credit needs and the employment which would result from an adequate supply.

Black said the reserve board had not finished the draft of legislation which would be needed.

No Agreement on Capital.

Determination of the capital required for such a banking system will depend largely on the final showing of the Reserve bank survey. The figure of $300,000,000 has been mentioned but Black said there was no final agreement. It was thought likely the government would subscribe the capital, possibly through the reconstruction corporation.

Industrial banks would discount long-term paper of the five-year type which is not ordinarily acceptable at reserve banks. Under Black's plan they also would be authorized to make direct loans in special cases if money were not otherwise available. Where such loans were direct, it was believed private banks would be offered participation.

Fair Marks Upturn in Traffic.

A Century of Progress exposition, followed by improvement in general business conditions, enabled the Chicago Railways company to report net income of $484,803 for the year ended Jan. 31, 1934, against a loss of $325,950 for the preceding year, the annual statement issued yesterday reveals.

The company owns the street car lines operating in the north, west and central sections of Chicago. Under the agreement dated Feb. 1, 1914, operations were pooled with those of the other street railway companies to form the Chicago Surface Lines. Chicago Railway company's share of the residuary receipts of Chicago Surface Lines is 60 per cent.

Fair Marks Upturn.

Chicago Surface Lines' receipts during the four months prior to the opening of A Century of Progress were well under those for the corresponding 1932 period, but during the period of the exposition traffic was more than 10 per cent over the corresponding period of the year before. There was a slight letdown after the Fair closed, but volume still held above 1932.

Gross profit of Chicago Surface Lines for the year ended Jan. 31, 1934, was $45,601,782, a 2.66 per cent increase from gross of $44,421,102 from the preceding year.

Chicago Railway company's 60 per cent share in the residue receipts of $8,071,565 was $4,842,938, against $4,016,501 in the preceding year. After deductions for interest on all funded debt, corporate expenses, receiver's fees, etc., final net income for the year was $484,803. In the year ended Jan. 31, 1933, net loss after such charges was $421,122.

Reduce Principal 25 Per Cent.

Chicago Railways company has been in receivership since December, 1926. By court order, nothing can be paid on junior bonds until principal and interest on the first mortgage bonds are paid. During the receivership interest has been paid on the first mortgage bonds and the principal amount has been reduced 25 per cent.

CANADIANS SEEK CENTRAL WHEAT CONTROL BOARD

WINNIPEG, March 13.—(AP)—Creation of a central marketing board to regulate and control the sale, delivery and marketing of wheat will be called for in a bill to be moved in the Manitoba legislature tomorrow.

The purpose of the legislation will be to supplement the international wheat quota pact. It will be similar to legislation to be introduced at Ottawa, and in the provincial assemblies of Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Premier John Bracken said he will submit a resolution which will specify a bill to provide for a number of contingencies and will ask the legislature to endow the government with certain emergency powers to control sale, deliver and marketing of wheat during the crop year from Aug. 1, 1934, to July 1, 1935.

Move to Set Up New U.S. Banks Points to Loan Policy Failure

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Washington's move to set up intermediate credit banks to lend capital funds to small business concerns that cannot get bank loans is interpreted in financial circles as an indication that the administration's attempt to get the commercial banks to lend more generously has met an impasse.

The figures seem to bear this out. Despite the fact that their deposits have increased nearly a billion dollars since the end of January banks in the 90 principal cities have not only failed to lend additional funds to business but have actually decreased their commercial loans 67 millions.

Instead of making more commercial loans as their deposits have swollen the banks have invested part of the new funds in government bonds and let the rest pile up as excess reserves carried with the federal reserve system. Banks in the 90 principal clearing house cities alone have bought nearly a half billion more government securities since Jan. 31.

The pressure applied against the banks by the administration has been terrific, but up to the present it has not been successful, although isolated cases of banks' making long term capital loans and disguising them as short term loans have been reported.

Most bankers are inclined to doubt that this type of lending will become general. Banks are already carrying a lot of German and other paper, arising from "short term" loans which had to be renewed, to remind them of the difficulties arising from such transactions.

* *

In Washington yesterday Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the Reconstruction Finance corporation was quoted as saying: "I have encouraged banks to lend to industry where safe loans could be made and have insisted that many such loans could be made if the banks would take the necessary trouble to whip them into shape."

Bankers say that it isn't a case of their not "whipping into shape" desirable loans. They point out that they have large "new business" departments scouring their territory for good loans. The trouble, they say, lies in the definition of what is a good loan.

The administration's squeeze play to get the banks to lend more freely got under way months ago, but during the last few weeks the attempt has been intensified. And yet, during this time, commercial loans have dropped even while deposits have soared hundreds of millions of dollars.

There seems to be no answer to the problem as yet. It is a case of the irresistible force meeting the immovable object. Administration leaders threaten to make direct loans to industry and to take the banking business away from the commercial banks. Such threats strike chill into the hearts of the banker but it doesn't cause him to call up John Smith, whose company is in the red, and tell Smith that because of the promise of better times contained in announcements from Washington he, the banker, is going to deal out the depositors' money more liberally.

While Washington talks in generalities about the necessity of freer credit if the business upturn is to be maintained, the banker still deals in terms of individual cases and John Smith's credit is as good as John Smith's figures and is not especially affected by what Washington promises for business as a whole.

Nevertheless Washington authorities continue to apply the pressure to the banks in the hope of wearing down their resistance. As part of this program the treasury has piled up in banks in 90 principal cities more than 1 billion, 500 millions of government deposits, compared with less than 50 millions a year ago. In addition, the Reconstruction Finance corporation has already agreed to pour more than a billion of new money into banks in exchange for preferred stock.

* *

In line with its easy money policy the treasury recently has been issuing certificates against its stores of formerly "free" gold in order to keep from drawing down on its bank deposits and thereby reducing the excess reserves of the banks from which the funds were withdrawn. It has been manipulating the market for its own securities in order to keep up their market prices. Taxation of corporate surpluses also has been suggested with the idea of forcing big corporations to put their idle funds to work.

Meanwhile the banker views the administration's attempt to force liberal loans as an effort to accomplish a social purpose at the expense of the banks and is suspicious.

GRAIN MEN ASK BAR ON FOREIGN RYE DELIVERIES

Grain men who are petitioning the Chicago Board of Trade to prohibit delivery of imported rye on sales for future delivery in Chicago were notified yesterday that the case will be taken up next Tuesday. They will then present their arguments in favor of the movement.

Recently several million bushels of rye were imported from Poland and other European countries and brought to Chicago after paying 15 cents a bushel duty. The department of agriculture has the situation in hand, but has made no decision on requests from grain men that deliveries of imported rye should be prohibited.

SEIBERLING ASKS U. S. PUT END TO TIRE PRICE WAR

Akron, O., March 13.—(AP)—Penfield Seiberling, sales manager of the Seiberling Rubber company, said in a statement today that the tire industry is "locked in a price war to destruction and only prompt government intervention can prevent complete wreckage of the business."

Seiberling claims that "8 to 10 per cent discounts from standard price lists" are being offered in New York. This would average between 45 and 50 per cent below list prices. Other Akron manufacturers admitted today the "situation is desperate."

FEARS DUMPING OF SILVER IF IT IS REMONETIZED

Washington, D. C., March 13.—(AP)—F. H. Brownell, chairman of the board of the American Smelting and Refining company, told the NRA board considering the proposed copper code today, that speculators in New York were holding 175,000,000 ounces of silver. He was speaking against a proposal for a free and open market for copper.

Brownell said a free market for silver had resulted in the purchase of a huge amount of that metal which had been withdrawn and placed in safety deposit vaults in readiness for dumping on the market if silver should be remonetized.

"The free and open market for metals in England and on the continent may have some value," he said, "but in America we find that Americans have no legalized outlet for their gambling urge and speculation as a result causes much greater fluctuation in prices."

He predicted that a free market for copper in the United States would result in 500,000 tons of copper going into the hands of speculators to furnish an additional threat to the copper market.

TRADE REVIVAL AMONG NATIONS IS RECOVERY KEY

BY SIMON LITMAN.
[Professor of Economics, University of Illinois.]

Under the energetic and courageous leadership of President Roosevelt the United States has plunged into a series of bold experiments for the purpose of turning the tide of depression and bringing us back on the road to prosperity. One measure after another has been passed aiming to raise prices, to reduce unemployment, to relieve the distress of the debtors. Billions of dollars are being spent on various projects, codes are being adopted, governmental control over business is being tightened.

PROF. SIMON LITMAN.

The final goal is a coördinated economic system where the various agencies of production should receive their equitable shares and where the value of the goods produced should balance the purchasing power of the people.

With the exception of the recently authorized governmental banks to facilitate foreign trade through the extension of credits and negotiations carried on to conclude reciprocity treaties with South American republics, the rôle of world markets in the scheme of our national existence has been overlooked. The President's message asking congress for specific authority to enter into executive commercial agreements with foreign nations is a belated recognition of this fact.

Root of Trouble Not Reached.

Remedial measures under our National Recovery act have not gone to the roots of the trouble. Our own depression is closely related to the depression in other lands and our recovery is not likely to be either lasting or complete on the basis of economic self-sufficiency and self-containment.

As the President states in his message, measured in terms of the volume of goods, world trade in 1933 has been reduced to approximately 70 per cent of its 1929 volume, and measured in terms of dollars it has fallen to 35 per cent. The drop in foreign trade of the United States has been even sharper. And parallel with the precipitous decrease in our exports and imports has been also a decline in our national dividend, which fell from 83 billion dollars in 1929 to 38 billions in 1932.

Many causes contributed to this decline, not the least of which were the accumulation of industrial raw materials and foodstuffs within the country and the throwing out of work of large numbers of people depending directly and indirectly upon foreign merchandising activities. Prices of agricultural commodities fell to an exceedingly low level; impoverished farmers, unable to find outlets for their goods, stopped buying.

Return of Commerce Needed.

The disease from which the world is suffering is under-consumption and the remedy lies not in a destruction of wealth and a redistribution by means of taxation, governmental borrowing, and civil works programs of our dwindling national dividend, but in the re-

Rail Issues Turn Firmer on Traffic Gains.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 13.—Sentiment was mixed in stock trading circles today and the market as a whole got nowhere. Traders were evidently waiting for a clearer picture of events at Washington.

The passage of the bonus bill by the house did not figure importantly in operations on the exchange, so far as the record showed. Major concern seemed to be over the probable outcome of the congressional drive for security exchange regulation.

Assurances that much of the harshness of the measure will be lost in the legislative shuffle registered to some degree, but most operators make no secret of the fact that they will feel more at ease when the bill is out of the way one way or the other. At least they will know where they stand.

Trading Mainly Professional.

Meanwhile the prevailing disposition continues to be to withhold activity in either direction, leaving it to the floor professionals to carry on until the fog begins to lift. Today's turnover was about on a par with that of yesterday, falling to around 1,300,000 shares.

Railroad shares provided about the only uniform strong spot of the list, and buying here was not particularly aggressive. Union Pacific, Atchison, Delaware and Hudson, Illinois Central, and one or two others rose a point or so, and most of the others went ahead fractionally.

Additional weekly statements of individual carriers showing gains in traffic and wide improvement over the corresponding 1933 period, when the banking holiday crippled business, were capitalized more or less in boosting the rail group.

Motors Are Sluggish.

Motor descriptions were still under the spell of higher wage demands at a number of plants. Chrysler, General Motors, Auburn, and others slid off from fractions to around a point.

Low priced utilities came to life following a display of moderate strength in Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, and Columbia Gas.

The metals group remained in the limelight on efforts in congress to get silver legislation through this session and strength in the market for leading metals. The general trend, however, was toward slightly easier ground.

Steel and the industrial key stocks were irregular, which helped to keep down enthusiasm for the market in general. American Can at one time nearly lost its footing on the 100 ledge.

DETROIT STOCK MART BUILDING SOLD AT AUCTION

Detroit, Mich., March 13.—(AP)—The Detroit Stock exchange building—a $500,000 structure begun during the boom days, but not opened until 1931—was sold at auction today to the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, which had foreclosed a $123,000 mortgage on the property.

The insurance company submitted the only bid to William S. Sayres, federal court master in chancery, amounting to $129,521.95.

It is expected the stock exchange will continue to use the building, which is fitted out for its purpose—even to figures of King Cœsus, flanked by a bull and a bear, in stone on the entrance. The stock exchange did a $750,000,000 business in 1929.

MORE COMPANIES LIFT OR RESUME DIVIDEND RATES

American Brake Shoe and Others Pay More.

Increases or resumption of dividends were announced yesterday by several companies.

The American Brake Shoe and Foundry company declared a quarterly dividend of 20 cents on the common stock, payable March 31 to stockholders of record March 23. The previous disbursement was 15 cents.

The Marlin-Rockwell corporation voted 50 cents on the common stock, due April 2 to stockholders of record March 22. In January the dividend was increased to 35 from 25 cents.

Common stockholders of Sunshine Mining company are to receive 16 cents per share, compared with 12 disbursed in December.

Leather Concern Resumes Payment.

Amalgamated Leather Companies, Inc., declared a dividend of 50 cents on the preferred stock, payable April 1 to holders of record March 28. The disbursement is the first since 1920, when the $7 annual rate on the $100 par value issue was discontinued. In March, 1933, the par value of the preferred was cut to $50.

The Lerner Stores corporation declared a dividend of $1.62½ on the 6½ per cent cumulative preferred stock, payable March 24 to stock of record March 19. The last previous payment was $1.62½ on April 30, 1932.

A dividend of 37½ cents a share, payable April 2 to holders of record March 20, was voted by the Acme Steel company, which paid a quarterly dividend of 25 cents and an extra of 12½ cents in January.

Standard Gas Delays Action.

Owing to lack of a quorum the directors' meeting of the Standard Gas and Electric company, scheduled for yesterday to take action on the preferred dividends for April, was adjourned until next Tuesday.

Word came from Manila yesterday that the two chief gold mining companies in the Philippine Islands, Benguet Consolidated and Balatoc, had declared dividends of more than 100 per cent totaling $4,100,000. Production of the two companies, which are jointly owned, during 1933 was 50 per cent more than in 1932.

The American District Telegraph company of New Jersey declared a regular quarterly dividend of $1 on the common stock, about 75 per cent of which is owned by the Western Union Telegraph company. The dividend is payable April 15 to holdings of record March 15.

PLAN EXTENSION OF 2 MILWAUKEE ROAD BOND ISSUES

The Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad last night announced a plan for meeting the maturity June 1, 1934, of $2,117,000 first mortgage 4½ per cent bonds and $5,072,000 consolidated mortgage 4½ per cent bonds of the Milwaukee and Northern railroad—a subsidiary.

W. W. K. Sparrow, financial vice president, stated that prior to mailing the plan to bondholders it was presented to holders of more than $3,750,000 of the bonds who approved it. He said he was confident the plan would be acceptable to bondholders, and said the company did not contemplate seeking financial assistance from the government to carry it out.

The plan provides that the maturity of both bond issues be extended for a period of five years with interest at 4½ per cent. Bondholders assenting to the plan will receive payment in cash of the six months interest due June 1, next, and the sum of $50 per $1,000 bond, which represents payment in advance of additional interest for the period of the extension and in effect is equivalent to placing the bonds on an interest basis of 5.66 per cent.

The parent road will assume the payment of both principal and interest of the extended bonds of its subsidiary.

NAME RECEIVERS FOR CENT. WEST PUBLIC SERVICE

Wilmington, Del., March 13.—(AP)—Arthur B. Darling, Sioux City, Ia., and E. E. Berl, Wilmington attorney, were appointed receivers today for the $20,000,000 Central West Public Service company, which owns and operates public utilities properties in Iowa, Minnesota, South Dakota and Texas, and also owns stock in other utilities concerns operating in Iowa, Illinois, Nebraska, North Carolina, North Dakota, Virginia, and West Virginia.

The appointments were made by Chancellor Josiah O. Wolcott a short time after receivership proceedings were instituted against the company by the Bussman Investment company of St. Louis, Mo. The Central West company filed the answer admitting allegations contained in the bill of complaint.

The Bussman company alleged it owns $25,000 of the corporation's three-year 7 per cent gold notes and that interest was defaulted. It also was alleged the company defaulted the interest payment on its first lien collateral gold bond and its ten-year convertible 6 per cent debentures.

Our dependence upon foreign markets and foreign sources of supply may be realized if one reflects that we have been shipping abroad about 50 per cent of our production of cotton, 40 per cent of tobacco, 35 per cent of copper, 30 per cent of lard, 25 per cent of agricultural machinery, and that we have been receiving large quantities of rubber, tin, sisal, jute, tanning materials, raw silk, tea, coffee, cocoa, and numerous other commodities essential for the smooth functioning of our industries and the maintenance of our standard of living.

It is extremely difficult to trace the relationship between cause and effect in a situation where so many forces and factors have been acting and reacting upon each other, as has been the case in the present world economic depression. Nevertheless one must admit that one of the leading factors in bringing about the impasse has been the operation of prohibitive tariffs and other restrictions which all but strangled international trade.

Urges Breaking Trade Barriers.

Humanity divided against itself is sinking more and more deeply into a morass not only of economic difficulties but of moral and social degradation. Not less than any other nation have we been responsible for the tragedy. We, the richest country in the world, passed the Fordney-McComber and the Smoot-Hawley tariff acts, which made it impossible for debtor nations to meet their obligations to us, which drained many of them of their gold reserves and led them to pass retaliatory measures against us.

The United States can and must assume leadership in the breaking down of trade barriers, so that our own country and the rest of the world should begin the rebuilding of their shattered economic machinery not by makeshifts, by strangulation of individual freedom, by curtailment of outputs, but by the reestablishment of peaceful international relations which would permit each country to develop to the full its resources and the potentialities of its people.

ILL. NORTHERN UTILITIES SHOWS DROP IN INCOME

The Illinois Northern Utilities company yesterday reported for 1933 a net income of $591,071, compared with $840,626 in 1932. Gross earnings declined to $2,020,190 from $3,321,756. Approximately $135,000 of the decrease in revenue was attributable to the reduction of electrical residential and commercial rates made in December, 1932, said E. D. Alexander, president, in the report.

Total sales of electricity last year were 2.2 per cent less than in 1932 and residential sales were 4.2 per cent lower. However, sales of electricity for power were 3.6 per cent more than in 1932.

"In general, the 1933 sales indicate that the lowest point in electrical consumption over the last several years was reached in the early part of the year and that the latter months of the year indicate a reversal in the trend," Mr. Alexander declared. Operating expenses, exclusive of depreciation and taxes, were cut by $116,231 during 1933. Current assets on Dec. 31, 1933, were $1,324,549 and current liabilities were $817,547.

GRAIN EXPORTS LOWER FOR WEEK, EXCEED YEAR AGO

Washington, March 13.—(AP)—Grain exports from the United States last week amounted to 734,000 bushels, compared with 1,131,000 the preceding week and 314,000 in the corresponding week last year.

Commerce department figures today gave the following comparisons between last week's exports and those of the week before: Wheat, 150,000 bushels, against 963,000; corn, 409,000 against 102,000; oats, 8,000 against none; barley, 167,000 against 66,000. There were no exports of rye in either week.

Canadian grain exported last week from United States ports amounted to 316,000 bushels, against 1,414,000 the week before, while last week's exports of North American wheat flour were 51,000 barrels, against 70,000 the previous week.

OIL OUTPUT UP 130,600 BARRELS A DAY LAST WEEK

New York, March 13.—(AP)—Daily average gross crude oil production in the United States increased 130,600 barrels in the week ended March 10, totaling 2,313,900 barrels, the American Petroleum Institute's weekly summary said today. Daily average production east of California increased 88,200 barrels to 1,844,200 barrels.

Imports of crude and refined oils at principal United States ports totaled 757,000 barrels, a daily average of 108,143 barrels, against 1,084,000 barrels, a daily average of 154,857 barrels for the previous week.

Montgomery Ward Income Estimated Over 2 Million

DOLLAR FIRMER; HINT AGREEMENT TO 'PEG' PRICES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 13.—The dollar gained ground over a narrow range today in the foreign exchange market as the British pound sterling receded from its run-up of late yesterday and the French franc eased fractionally from its previous level. The market again was comparatively inactive.

As the quotation for sterling eased to $5.10, off a quarter of a cent, and today stood in London at $5.09½, the London open market price for gold was dropped by the British to 136 shillings 3 pence, so that the dollar equivalent was $34.71, as compared with $34.70 yesterday.

Believe Rates Are Pegged.

This seemed to verify still further the belief in the minds of many foreign exchange traders that the prices of pounds, dollars, and francs have been pegged by mutual banking agreement in Great Britain, France, and the United States as a preliminary to official governmental action.

The franc finished at 6.58¼ cents, against 6.58½ cents yesterday. Based on the franc at its final New York rate, the dollar was valued at approximately 59.52 per cent of its former parity, compared with 59.49 per cent yesterday. The Canadian dollar again sold at par.

Gold Influx Continues.

The federal reserve bank reported gold imports of $790,600, of which $684,800 from England was additional for Monday and $105,800, also from England, was handled today. Additional shipments of about $10,000,000 gold are due in port tomorrow, of which about $7,000,000 is expected on the Majestic, and further smaller amounts are due later in the week.

Gold on the Europa, arriving tomorrow, is estimated at $8,000,000, while other liners will bring in more than $4,000,000 in the next week. The Chase National bank has contracted for a total of $70,572,000 gold on the movement to date.

British See Inflation.

LONDON, March 13.—(AP)—Fears in some quarters of inflation today caused the United States dollar to depreciate 1 cent from the overnight rate, closing at $5.09⅝ to the pound.

Inflation talk was revived by the bonus bill. An easier New York rate also was a weakening influence. Sale of £480,000 [approximately $2,443,000] in gold was reported.

ROADS AND STEEL MAKERS SEEK TO IMPROVE RAILS

Railroads and rail manufacturers are conducting exhaustive tests on steel rails to determine what further improvements can be made, according to reports submitted to the annual convention of the American Railway Engineering association, a division of the American Railway association.

At the University of Illinois elaborate laboratory tests have been undertaken ranging from microscopic examinations of the steel used in rails and fastenings to the effect of stresses on tracks from the movement of heavy trains.

In addition, individual carriers are conducting experiments on various sizes of rails, the relative strength of rail joints, and other phases of track construction. In 1925 the railroads fixed 39 feet as the standard length for steel rails.

NAME RECEIVER FOR INSURANCE COMPANY HERE

Judge Hugo M. Friend of the Circuit court yesterday appointed H. B. Hershey of the department of insurance at Springfield, receiver for the Fire Insurance Company of Chicago.

At the instance of Ernest Palmer, state director of insurance, a petition, charging nonexercise of the company's charter, was filed last Thursday by Attorney General Otto Kerner.

The company, which began operations in August, 1929, practically ceased doing business in April, 1932. Early last year the management decided to liquidate, but action was halted by a receivership petition filed by some of the stockholders. The petition was ultimately denied by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. Receiver Hershey will undertake liquidation of the company.

Grigsby-Grunow Company Held Bankrupt by Court

Federal Judge John P. Barnes yesterday issued an order adjudicating the Grigsby-Grunow company, manufacturers of radios and electric refrigerators, as bankrupt. The order of adjudication was entered when the company failed to file an answer contesting the involuntary bankruptcy petition filed against it on behalf of three creditors.

GRAINS EASIER; TRADERS CEASE INFLATION TALK

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Inflation talk, which had such a telling effect on grain prices Monday, proved to be a one day affair and was scarcely mentioned in yesterday's gossip. Many buyers of the previous day turned to the selling side, owing to the failure of outside buying to develop and prices averaged lower. However, some recovery from the inside figure on wheat occurred toward the close.

Wheat prices held within a range of less than 1 cent and closed with net losses of ¼ to ⅛ cent from May leading. The latter dropped to ⅛ cent under the July option at the close on moderate selling of the same character that has appeared at the finish for several days. May was 88⅜ to 88¼ cents and July 88½ to 88⅝ cents at the last. Corn was ⅜ to ½ cent lower, May being 51¼ to 51⅝ cents. Oats were ¼ to ⅜ cents lower with May at 34⅝ cents. Rye declined ½ to ⅝ cent with May at 60¼ cents. Barley was unchanged with May at 46⅝ cents.

Dust Storms in West.

Uncertainty as to what might develop at Washington was strongly in evidence in trade gossip. This was regarded as responsible for the refusal on the part of many traders to take a decided stand on either side of the grain markets.

For nearly six months reports from Winnipeg have indicated that the Canadian government agency was heavily long of wheat futures in that market, estimates ranging upward from 100,000,000 bushels. There have been strong intimations that there would be May wheat for sale on all bulges to around 70 cents. The pressure Monday and yesterday from some mysterious source proved too heavy to be readily absorbed, and the weakness which developed yesterday tended to discourage buyers in the local market. Winnipeg closed ⅞ to 1 cent lower with May at 69 cents. Liverpool was ⅛ to ¼ cent higher.

Report Wheat Needs Rain.

An increasing need of rain for winter wheat was reported from a wide area yesterday and dust storms were reported over a considerable area in Oklahoma, Kansas, and Nebraska and extending into the Dakotas. The subsoil moisture is reported scant over the entire area and apprehension as to the outlook for the new spring wheat crop is now apparent in trade comment. Owing to the lack of heavy moisture during the winter it is feared the grasshopper situation in the northwest this season may be acute.

Trade in corn and other grains was not large yesterday and the markets were easily influenced by local operators. Little attention was paid to the strong cash corn situation which has developed abroad, with the March delivery in Rotterdam selling at 55 cents a bushel in American funds, or at 2 cents premium over wheat.

Failure of export business in domestic corn to develop despite the scarcity of Argentine and Danubian offerings abroad has had a depressing effect on the Chicago market.

BUTTER LOWER ON BEARISH STORAGE REPORT; EGGS UP

Butter futures dropped ½ to ⅝ cent on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday under moderate pressure. Eggs were ⅛ to ⅜ cent higher, while potatoes closed unchanged to 5 cents lower.

Monthly storage report was construed as slightly bearish on butter. Selling was light, but new buying was slow.

Egg news improved and encouraged new buying of October and March. Receipts were sharply under last year.

Potatoes drifted lower as a result of contined weakness in the cash market. Sales—Butter, 21 cars; eggs, 49 cars; potatoes, 8 cars. Delieveries—Eggs, 1 car; potatoes, 1 car. Prices:

SILVER FUTURES

At no time yesterday were silver futures as high as the finish of Monday. The aggressive buying so much in evidence the previous day was lacking. The belief expressed by Senator Wheeler that his bill calling on the government to purchase one billion ounces had little hope of becoming a law dampened bullish sentiment. Prices were off .15 to .42c at the last with sales of 156 lots or 3,900,000 ounces. Foreign bar silver was unchanged at 46⅝c and newly mined domestic steady at 64¼c. March closed at 47.00@47.05c; May, 47.30@47.32c; July, 47.80@47.70c; September, 48.10@48.28c; October, 48.55c; and December, 48.85c.

WOOL MARKETS

BOSTON, March 13.—Increasing dullness with prices unchanged because of lack of business, was the situation today on the Boston wool market.

Indications pointed to the quietest week in many months. Reports from the west revealed that the same condition prevailed in the growing section. No large volume of the new clip wool has been moved as yet, Boston wool men said.

The prevailing price to the grower in the west is around 30c a pound for such lots as have been sold.

LONDON WOOL.

LONDON, March 13.—(AP)—At the wool auction today 10,336 bales were offered, of which 9,694 were sold. There was keener competition, which improved the tone, although the limits offered were still causing withdrawals. Buyers from the Bradford district bought extensively.

CATTLE PRICES SOAR ON FEAR OF PROCESSING TAX

Beef Steers Sell $2 Over December Low.

With the possibility of cattle becoming one of the "basic commodities" and subject to a processing tax such as the hog market is carrying, the feature of the live stock markets the last two days has been in the sharp rise in beef steer prices to the highest levels in 15 months. Many of the weighty beef steers are selling fully $2.00 above the low point of last December, with top grades of 1,400 to 1,600 pound averages up more than 40 per cent in less than three months.

All buying interests were on the market early in the session yesterday for numbers as well as quality and many of the better grades indicated further price enhancement, while the rank and file were strong. Gains of 15 to 25 cents were made in the large proportion of the receipts that sold at $7.00 and above, while new tops were made in some of the big weights again.

Steels averaging 1,133 to 1,182 pounds topped the list at $7.60, a new high for this weight since December, 1932. In the neighborhood of 300 to 350 head averaging in loads from 980 to 1,310 pounds reached $7.50. The heavy steers selling at $7.00 to $7.15 yesterday were comparable to the kinds going at $5.00 and less at the end of 1933 and similar to the kinds that were cashed at $4.50 to $5.00 a year ago. Prime 1,468 pound steers brought $7.10.

There also were many of the fat but plain quality heavy steers at $5.25 to $5.75 averaging 1,400 to 1,700 pounds that were a drug on the market three months ago at $3.25 to $3.75.

Hogs Off 5 to 15 Cents.

Hogs made another poor showing yesterday, sinking 5 to 15 cents in a draggy trade, with some of the plain quality light and light butchers off as much as 25 cents at the close. Yesterday was the fourth consecutive session since the government canceled their hog orders that the market has been lower, prices now showing fully 25 cents decline since last Thursday, the last day that packers purchased hogs for the Federal Surplus Relief corporation.

Choice quality hogs made up a very small share of the receipts and very few were eligible to the top quotations. One load of selected 211 pound butchers reached $4.55, within 5 cents of Monday's peak, while the general average at $4.30 was down 10 cents.

Further gains were scored in the lamb market yesterday and brought the top for wooled stock up to $9.90, with in 25 cents of the 2½ year high mark.

Prices were strong to 15 cents higher, with all interests eager for supplies. Eastern outlet has increased materially the last two days.
